PASTORAL — Barns and utility buildings at the historic Cheda Ranch next to Samuel Taylor State Park soon will be transformed into a horse-oriented recreation ranch. The first 100 persons who plunk down $7,920 each will own the exclusive playground, of 915 acres.

Cox Plans To Continue Tape Fight

Prosecutor Unable To Accept Nixon's Order

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox said today he is not "out to get the President" but will fight for what he thinks is right in the dispute over Nixon's secret tapes. (See another story, page 7.)

At a news conference called to explain his refusal to accept the White House compromise to avert a constitutional crisis, Cox said he didn't "feel defiant."

"In fact," he said with a smile, "I told my wife this morning that I hate a fight. But some things I feel very deeply about are at stake and I hole I can explain and defend them steadfastly.

"I am not looking for a confrontation. I have worried a good deal in my life about posing too much of a strain on our constitutional institutions. I'm certainly not out to get the President of the United States ... (but) in the end I decided I had to try to stick by what I thought was right."

Nixon last night announced he had reached a compromise in the unprecedented tapes dispute with the Senate Watergate Committee but that Cox had rejected it. The President ordered Cox to halt all legal proceedings against him.

In lieu of a court determination of the controversy, Nixon said last night he would provide summaries of the tapee to both the Senate Watergate investigators and chief U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, the jurist supervising the criminal investigation.

To authenticate the summaries, Nixon chose Sen. John Stennis, the veteran Democrat from Mississippi and a man he said was "highly respected by all elements in American life for his integrity, his fairness and his patriotism."

Nixon said he would personally prepare the summary and then give Stennis "unlimited access to the tapes" to verify its accuracy.

Stennis, recently recovered from near-fatal gunshot wounds during a robbery near his home, promised he would "render the service the best I can."

The decision, which Nixon said he made only "with the greatest reluctance," headed off a pending historic confrontation before the Supreme Court and left the next move up to Cox. He indicated he would ask Sirica to rule the arrangement

A UFO Sighting In Novato Area

The latest unidentified flying object spotted in Marin — a bright orange ball — was observed last night by several Novato residents, including an Independent-Journal reporter.

Reporter Theron Newell and his wife had just returned to their Buchanan Street home about 8 p.m. when they noticed the UFO in the sky to the southeast of the city.

"It was the third brightest object I have ever seen in the sky; only the sun and moon are brighter," he said. "It was about an eighth the size of the moon and had a concentrated orange light. It was even brighter than fireworks."

The Newells were joined by several neighbors and watched the bright ball for about an hour. At one point it moved quickly, roughly in a rectangle, then came to a stop.

Newell is convinced the UFO was not an airplace. "A four-engine plane with its running lights on came between us and the object at one time," he said, "but its lights were not nearly as bright as the object."

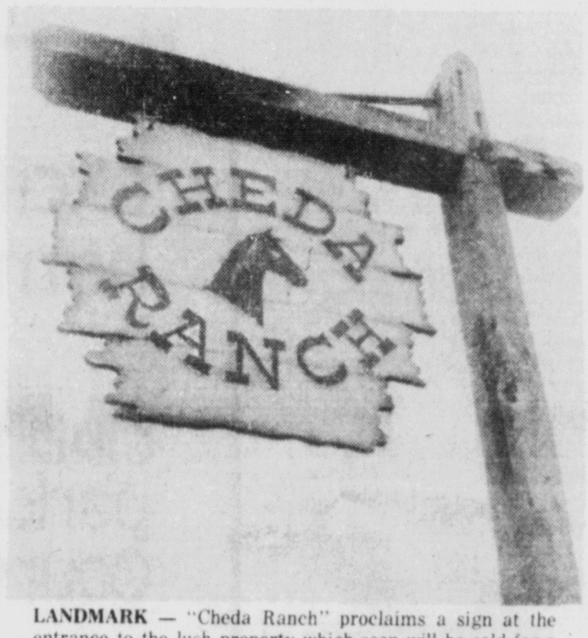
He said the UFO would glow brighter at times, turning almost white, "as though it were turning on some type of power."

As the group watched, the object moved higher and higher in the sky and gradually grew smaller and dimmer.

The Newells quit watching it for awhile after 9 p.m. "When we looked again, it had disappeared," he said.

Novato police said they had received no reports of the object.

Several UFOs have been spotted this week in various parts of the county, from Novato to Sausalito.



LANDMARK — "Cheda Ranch" proclaims a sign at the entrance to the lush property which soon will be sold for a member-owned recreation area. Swimming, hiking, horseback riding and fishing will be enjoyed by the members, but no hunting will be permitted.

RECREATION AREA

New Plan For Cheda Ranch

By WAT TAKESHITA

The historic Cheda Ranch, 915 acres of rolling hills, forest land and valleys adjacent to Samuel Taylor Park, will be sold and converted into a horse-oriented recreation ranch.

Cheda Ranch Associates, present owner of the ranch, announced yesterday it will sell the property to the first 100 persons who want to buy shares at $7,920 per share. The 100 purchasers will form a corporation known as Cheda Ranch Recreation Group, with each owner assessed $25 per month for maintenance of the ranch and its facilities, which include barns, a clubhouse, swimming pool and fish pond for trout fishing, and trails for hiking and riding.

William Ferrua and Merritt Pollock of Davis Realty in San Rafael, partners in Cheda Associates, are handling the sale of the shares. Ferrua said that the sale means the ranch will be kept in its natural state, with no private homes or commercial construction allowed.

"It will cater to horse people, with hiking, fishing, riding and swimming the principal recreational activities," said Ferrua. "No hunting will be allowed."

The existing Cheda home, about a half mile from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, will be converted into a clubhouse. He said surrounding barns and utility buildings can accommodate a hundred horses. The house has a brick fireplace, breakfast area and kitchen, laundry and utility facilities, and recreational room.

A nearby pond has been filled and is stocked with trout, and a branch of Papermill Creek runs through the center of the property, according to Ferrua.

Ferrua said members of Cheda Ranch Recreation Group will have access, not only to the 915 acre ranch itself, but also to the adjacent Taylor Park and Marin Municipal Water District lands because riding trails are interconnected.

The Cheda Ranch was purchased sometime in the late 1800's by Gaudenzio Cheda, an immigrant from Switzerland who came to the Trinity Alps to try his luck in the gold mines.

Richard H. Cheda of Greenbrae, one of the grandsons of the original Cheda, said his grandfather bought the Cheda Ranch from his earnings from the gold mines, but does not

KISSINGER IN MOSCOW

Israelis Widen Wedge Into Egypt

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Israeli tanks "widened and deepened" their wedge on the approaches to Cairo today, Tel Aviv spokesmen said, and Moshe Dayan offered the Arab leadership a way to end the war. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger flew into Moscow at the Kremlin's "urgent request" for talks on ending the bitter conflict.

On his arrival at Moscow airport the spirit of detente that Kissinger helped build was much in evidence despite the warspawned tensions. Kissinger, smilingbroadly, received a warm welcome from Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

As the new Middle East war entered its third week, Egypt claimed its forces had inflicted heavy casualties on a big Israeli armored force which had thrust beyond the Suez canal into Egypt to a point about 50 miles from Cairo.

Fighting was reported on both sides of the Suez Canal. The Egyptians said they were counter-attacking against the Israeli force of at least 300 tanks and 12,000 soldiers that the Israelis said had punched to within 50 miles of Cairo. An Israeli military reporter claimed on the National Radio, "We are on the way to destroying the Egyptian army."

Syria said its planes bombed the important Israeli oil refinery at Haifa in the first strike of the war against a target inside Israel. The Israelis, however, denied the refinery— one of the most important in the eastern Mediterranean—had been bombed.

Israeli Defense Minister Dayan, in a broadcast interview that could be heard in both Cairo and Damascus, delivered what appeared to be a suggestion to Arab leaders to propose a truce before Israeli troops movv any closer to their capitals.

Dayan said that if the Arabs should propose either a "standstill" cease-fire — with both sides remaining in their positions—or a truce calling for a return of both sides to their borders before the new war, "I don't think Israel is in a position" to say no. But he said Israel itself would not propose a cease-fire.

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said ut the same time the Arabs would not accept a cease-fire until they conclude "that the continuation of the fighting is more harmful and damaging than a cease-fire."

He said Kissinger's Moscow trip indicated only that the Soviet Union was interested in speaking to the United States about a truce and so far Israel had not been approached from any quarter.

Kissinger's visit followed talks by Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin in Cairo and Damascus.

On the fighting fronts, Israel said it was expanding its bulge into Egypt in heavy fighting on both sides of the Suez Canal, now labeled significantly by the high command as "the Egyptian War Theater."

An early evening communique said the Israelis had shot down 10 more Egyptian aircraft amid "offensive activity" in the central sector of the canal.

The communique said: "On the other side, to the west of Suez in the central region our forces continued their offensive operations. The sector of penetration was enlarged and deepened and all Egyptian counter-attacks were repulsed. Most took place by tanks."

"In the course of the fighting," the communique added, "tanks were destroyed, missile and artillery batteries were damaged, defense systems were overrun and military camps were mopped up."

Larkspur Promised Help At Ferry Site

The Golden Gate Bridge District has agreed to work with the City of Larkspur to form an assessment district along East Sir Francis Drake Drive to improve the area around the district's ferry terminal.

The approval was given yesterday at a joint meeting of bridge district and Larkspur officials. No cost estimates were given for the improvements that would ease traffic problems in the area east of Highway 101.

The assessment district would finance road improvements, stop lights, and sewer, water and electric services to the area. The City of Larkspur was optimistic, said Dale W. Luehring, general manager of the bridge district, that the work will be completed by the opening of the terminal next June.

Luehring said the assessment district would also pay for improvements to the nearby railroad underpass. Other proposed improvements to the ferry site area include a park and relocation of a sanitary plant toward San Quentin.

The city and the bridge district will meet Oct. 31 at 9 a.m. in the bridge district office to discuss the improvements with area property owners.

Mansfield Believes Order Weakens Cox

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said today he believes President Nixon's tapes compromise weakens the hand of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox and raises a "possible danger" that Watergate prosecutions may be impeded.

He said the decision of the chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee yesterday to accept authenticated summaries of the secret tapes may be fine for Senate investigators, but "undoubtedly could create complications" for Cox.

"It must be pointed out that the committee does not have the power to indict, Mansfield said "It has power to recommend legislation to the Senate; it has the power and duty and obligation to turn over its recommendations and findings to Mr. Cox, who will undertake the vital process which is court action.

"I think the American people want his hand strengthened as much as possible and I think this matter might well be decided in the courts."

Sen. Daniel Inouye, D-Hawaii, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, said he thinks "the President's plan to avoid a constitutional crisis is just developing another one."

"Everything is so strange, I can't quite make it out," Inouye said in Hawaii.

Inouye said the compromise

Stennis: Promise Of Free Hand On Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. John C. Stennis said today he has "an absolute promise of a free hand" in authenticating President Nixon's Watergate tape recordings.

Stennis, a former circuit court judge, added that if he is suspicious the tapes have been tampered with, he will seek some "technical advice."

"I'll just have to do the best I can," Stennis told reporters in his office.

Stennis said he had held three conversations with White House special counsel Fred Buzhardt since last Monday on the suggestion that he verify the contents of the Watergate tapes.

Stennis said Nixon then called him Friday night to say that Sens. Sam J. Ervin Jr. and Howard H. Baker, chairman and vice chairman of the Watergate committee, had agreed to the compromise.

Stennis said he hoped to begin the authentication process next week.

He said Nixon had assured him the tapes were genuine.

"I can't assume the responsibility of saying these tapes are authentic or have been tampered with. I don't know," Stennis said.

"If I discover any suspicion of it (the tapes have been tampered with)," he added, "I would seek if necessary some technical advice."

"I don't want to be dealing with a fake outfit," Stennis said.

In his prepared statement, Stennis said: "My job is merely to verify the contents of the tapes as they relate to Watergate under a procedure to be worked out by me. In this connection I have made no previous promise of any kind but I have had an absolute promise

More Rain Is Seen Tomorrow

Light showers dampened Marin and Southern Sonoma counties last night and today and the weatherman said there was a 30 per cent chance it will rain tomorrow.

In the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today only a trace of rain was reported in Novato, but Woodacre had .20 of an inch; Marinwood, .10; Sausalito, .05; Tiburon, .03, and San Anselmo, .14.

By noon today, .14 of an inch had fallen in San Rafael.

The weatherman said the temperature will rise to the low 70's tomorrow.

TERRA LINDA HIGH BEATS SAN RAFAEL

Terra Linda High School converted three San Rafael fumbles into touchdowns for a 21-16 Marin County Athletic League football victory last night which allowed the Trojans to retain the Bell, symbol of intra-city supremacy.

Yesterday's only other MCAL game saw Novato subdue Tamalpais, 28-0. In a North Bay League clash, Petaluma held off Montgomery of Santa Rosa, 14-7.

FATAL CRASH — Workmen look under the wreckage of a tangled Greyhound bus on the New Jersey Turnpike near Hamilton Township in which eight persons were killed and 13 others injured last night. A tractor-trailer meat truck blew a tire and tore across a divider, slamming head-on into the bus.

Eight Die In Truck-Bus Collision

BORDENTOWN, N.J. (UPI) —Eight persons were killed and 13 injured last night when a tractor-trailer meat truck blew a tire and tore across a divider striking a car and slamming head-on into a Greyhound bus on the New Jersey Turnpike.

The impact crushed the front half of the Philadelphia-to-New York express bus and trapped several of the victims, including the bus driver, in the twisted metal.

Sixteen persons were aboard the bus and four persons were in the car, officials reported.

The car caught fire and the New Jersey state police said the incident backed up traffic for up to 22 miles on the turnpike.

The truck was headed southbound on the turnpike.

Hospital authorities, who counted the dead and injured, withheld the names of the victims until their families could be notified.

Rescue crews pulled apart the wreckage of the bus with a winch in order to reach the injured passengers.

The other survivors got out by climbing through the windows.

William W. Warlow Jr., 21, of Pitman, N.J. the trucker, said he was thrown through the windshield of his meat-carrying rig after it tumbled down a 50-foot embankment.

"After the left front tire blew out my thoughts were just to keep the truck in the right hand lane, but automatically she went to the left," Warlow said at Hamilton Hospital, where he was treated for face and arm bruises.

"I guess I hit the bus and then went down the embankment," he said.

Bob Hill, an ambulance driver, said he counted at least five occupants of the bus who were trapped with fatal injuries.

"The front of the bus was smashed in just like an accordion up to the third or fourth row of seats," Hill said. "The bus driver was trapped in his seat, and there were two bodies in a seat right behind him. I could see five bodies in the bus that I know of."

One of the passengers, Mildred Dias, 20, of Philadelphia, said she had a baby in her arms when the crash occurred.

She handed the 1-½-month-old child to a fellow passenger and they made it to safety through a window.

A Hamilton Hospital spokesman said four persons were pronounced dead on arrival and 12 persons came in with injuries. Five were admitted, four of them in fair condition and one in serious condition.

Two men and a woman were dead on arrival at St. Francis Hospital in Trenton. One woman was pronounced dead at Burlington Hospital, and a woman was admitted to that hospital.

AFL-CIO Report Claims Nixon Guilty Of Watergate Misconduct

MIAMI BEACH (UPI) —The AFL-CIO said today that most Americans believe President Nixon is guilty of criminal conduct in the Watergate and related scandals and corruption in his administration and reelection campaign.

"This is simply not a condition under which a President can govern successfully, or even effectively discharge the duties of his office," said a 91-page report to the AFL-CIO convention by a special committee of union presidents appointed to look into the Watergate case.

The report was to be followed up by a convention resolution which reportedly will call for Nixon's resignation or impeachment, probably under certain circumstances such as refusing a Supreme Couct order.

If the resolution goes that far, the AFL-CIO would become the first major organization with political influence in Congress todemand the President's ouster because of Watergate.

The report said Nixon had given the nation "a sorry gift on the eve of its 200th anniversary" by precipitating a constitutional confrontaton over the White House Watergate tapes.

The document was written before President Nixon yesterday agreed to turn over to the courts and the Senate Wtergate Committee an authenticated summary of the contents of the tapes.

After reviewing the history of the Watergate case, the report said the crisis facing Nixon and the nation "is profoundly political," and not one that can be confined to the courts or left to interpeters of the Constitution.

"To put it bluntly, most Americans believe the President to be guilty of criminal conduct," it said.

The report said "Watergate is an embodiment, in the moral and political realm, of this administration's values and priorities in the social and economic realms—this administration is devoted to the people at the top.

"The mentality that gave rise to Watergate likewise dominates the administration's views on full employment, minimum wage, national health security, anti-poverty programs and other spending for social purposes."

Judge Refuses To Dismiss Charges In Break-In Case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) —A judge refused yesterday to dismiss burglary and conspiracy charges against John Ehrlichman and the White House "plumbers" in the burglary of the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. The judge denied their argument they were acting as federal officers protecting the nation.

Superior Court Judge James G. Kolts denied the motion on behalf of Ehrlichman, Egil (Bud) Krogh, David Young and convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy.

They are awaiting trial for the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, during the White House investigation of Ellsberg for leaking the Pentagon Papers.

They maintained they acted as federal officials to protect the national security.

"They do not necessarily appear to have been acting as federal officers," the judge said "and if they were outside their scope of authority, they are as liable to prosecution as anyone else."

The judge dismissed one count against Krogh of solicitation to commit burglary.

He let stand a charge of perjury against Ehrlichman, and charges of burglary and conspiracy against all for four men.

Their attorneys had also argued for dismissal on the grounds that their joint efforts as White House officials could not be regarded as a conspiracy.

Libya Orders Oil Cutoff To United States

BEIRUT (UPI) —Libya ordered a cutoff in oil shipments to the United States yesterday, the latest step in an Arab campaign to use an "oil weapon" against countries supporting Israel in the Middle East war.

The small Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Qatar also announced it was cutting its oil production by 10 per cent immediately, following an identical announcement by Saudi Arabia on Thursday.

Qatar, with a population of 100,000, threatened to cut sales completely if the United States did not stop a military airlift to Israel.

Libya had been selling about 200,000 barrels of crude oil a day to the United States, about 11 per cent of its total production. Its sales represented less than one-tenth of one per cent of U.S. consumption.

Libya was the second Arab state to suspend U.S. oil sales. The Persian Gulf sheikhdom of Abu Dhabi announced it was cutting oil sales to the United States on Thursday.

The Libyan action came one day after Libya instructed its delegate to the Organization of Arab Petroleum Exporting Countries (OAPEC) meeting in Kuwait to encourage all Arab states to halt oil sales to the United States to force a change in U.S. Middle East policy.

The biggest Middle East seller of oil to the United States, Saudi Arabia, threatened to cut off sales unless the United States ends its military airlift to Israel. But for the time being, it held to a 10 per cent reduction.

Libya also announced a 30 per cent increase in its posted oil prices and Iraq raised its posted prices by 66 per cent. The increases were in line with increases in posted oil prices by six Persian Gulf oil producers on Wednesday and were not related to the Middle East war.

In anouncing the posted price increase, the Iraq news agency said from Libya that it was prompted by inflation, unstable world currency exchange rates and an increase in freight rates.

The Libyan increase was from $6.90 a barrel to $8.90; the Iraqi increase was from $3 a barrel to $6 a barrel.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

To Delay Probe

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Three Maryland prosecutors agreed yesterday to postpone local investigations of former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew until the federal inquiry of state political corruption, which resulted in Agnew's resignation last week, is completed.

U.S. Attorney George Beall, who is heading the federal investigation, said simultaneous activities by the three prosecutors could "cause confusion and generally inhibit our work."

State's attorneys Samuel Green of Baltimore County, Milton Allen of Baltimore City and Warren Duckett of Anne Arundel County said in a joint statement, however, that they will ask for "full disclosure of all facts in the Agnew case" when the federal investigation is finished.

$900,000 Award

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (UPI) — A federal court jury yesterday awarded $900,000 to the estate of a man who was killed in a traffic accident apparently caused by blowouts of two tires.

The jury returned the judgment against Sears, Roebuck and Co. and the Michelin Tire Co. of France after hearing two weeks of testimony.

Mrs. Doris Edwards, administrator of the estate of her husband, George, had sought $3.6 million in damages from the two firms and the Chrysler Corp. The jury found that Chrysler was not liable.

More Executions

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Authorities yesterday announced the executions of 15 more alleged extremists by the military government.

A brief announcement said the executions were ordered by a military tribunal in the city of La Serena, 290 miles north of Santiago. No specific charges were announced.

The military junta that took power in Chile Sept. 11 declared a state of siege under which military tribunals are trying civilians as if in time of war.

Indictments Reported

CHICAGO (UPI) — Twenty-two persons reportedly have been indicted by a county grand jury in connection with the $2 billion Equity Funding Life Insurance Co. case. More indictments were reported forthcoming from California.

The Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Sun-Times reported yesterday a Du Page County grand jury returned indictments charging 22 persons with conspiracy to commit fraud in an alleged scheme rated as one of the biggest in financial history. Some 62,400 phony insurance policies were allegedly created to increase the price of Equity Funding on the New York Stock Exchange.

Plea For Agnew

DETROIT (UPI) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower said yesterday people shouldn't prejudge former Vice President Spiro Agnew until all the facts are laid on the line.

Mrs. Eisenhower, 25, the younger of President Nixon's two daughters, made an unannounced trip to Detroit to attend an Adcraft Club luncheon for the Curtis Publishing Co. and one of its magazines, the Saturday Evening Post.

Gilda Weakening

MIAMI (UPI) — Weakening tropical storm Gilda crossed skinny Eleuthera Island into the open Atlantic today after veering away from Florida and making a harmless 55 mile an hour trek across the central Bahama Islands.

At 6 a.m., Gilda had crossed the lower end of Eleuthera, a banana-shaped island at the eastern edge of the Bahamas.

A Call For More Minority Teachers

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The National Education Association said yesterday that there should be as many teachers from racial minority groups as there are minority students in elementary and high schools—which would require the hiring of 211,000 more black, Indian, Asian and Hispanic teachers.

At least 116,000 more black teachers, 84,500 more Spanish speaking teachers, 7,400 more Indian teachers and 3,000 more Asian-American teachers are needed—especially in the North and West—according to an NEA study released in Washington and discussed in a New York City speech by Samuel B. Ethridge, director of NEA's teacher rights program.

"I honestly have the feeling that at least in the South we have turned the corner and that we actually have discrimination on the run in some districts," Ethridge told the 58th Annual Convention of the Association for the Study of Afro-American Life and History.

"While we shall continue to fight discrimination in the air, on the seas, on the beaches, on the streets, from the South, starting today, we must also turn our eyes to the fight against discrimination in the East, the North, and in the West as well," he said.

In order to reduce the ratio of black teachers to black pupils in New York State alone to the national ratio of 1 teacher for every 22.5 students, over 40,000 more black teachers should be hired, Ethridge said.

"New York State would need almost as many additional black teachers to correct its black teacher-pupil ratio as would the entire 17 southern states," he said.

From a percentage standpoint, the Spanish-speaking minority has the greatest disproportion of teachers to students, a ratio of 1 to 107, he said. American Indians are next at 1 to 86, followed by blacks at 1 to 36 and Asian-Americans at 1 to 31.

"Since Afro-Americans are the largest identifiable minority in the nation-much larger than the other minorities combined—discrimination against black teachers takes on huge dimensions," Ethridge said.

The NEA study cited the black teacher-black pupil ratio in 37 cities and said that East Baton Rouge, La. had the best ratio, 1 to 26 and Boston had the worst, 1 to 89. Among other cities which NEA said had unfavorable ratios were New York, 1 to 83; Buffalo, N.Y., 1 to 79; San Francisco, 1 to 61; Pittsburgh, 1 to 57; Oakland, Calif., 1 to 52, and Columbus, Ohio, 1 to 50.

By contrast, school areas with ratios of 1 to 32 or lower, close to the national pupil ratio, included Houston, Tex.; Atlanta; Charlotte-Mecklenburg, N.C.; Richmond, Va.; Caddo Parish, La.; Washington, D.C., and Duval County, Fla.

Guilty Pleas Are Made To Armed Robbery

Three San Franciscans have pleaded guilty to taking $500 cash from a San Rafael takeout restaurant in an armed robbery March 9.

Kingsley Wayne Shew, 19, admitted first degree robbery, while two others, Tommy Wong, 26, and Keijo Nakahara, 23, pleaded guilty to second degree robbery.

They will be sentenced in Marin Superior Court Nov. 12.

San Rafael police said the trio entered the Kentucky Fried Chicken restaurant on Second Street and threatened the manager, his wife, daughter and a customer with a gun.

Strawberry Plan Review Slated

The Strawberry Area Community Council has set Nov. 5 for the first public review of a new master plan for its area drawn up by planner Steven Chaum.

Chaum has been under contract with the county to prepare the plan, which draws in part on one prepared for the council by architct J. Martin Rosse of Strawberry.

Sandra A. Dorsaneo, council secretary, said the county planning commission will review the plan Nov. 26.

Elections for new council officers, to have been held Wednesday night, were postponed to Nov. 5. Mrs. Dorsaneo also said.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Negligence Is Hard To Prove

"But my little girl's only 9," Hank said. "How could she make that whole brick wall fall down?"

Hank, his wife, and their daughter, Linda, had just moved into a new house. While Hank and his wife unpacked, Linda played outside. She was climbing the garden well when it fell down. Linda's leg was broken in the accident.

"There must have been something wrong with the way it was built," Hank decided. So he sued Charlie, the former owner who built the wall.

"I warned my kids about climbing walls," Charlie told the court. "It's not my fault that Hank can't control his own kid."

"But you knew that the wall was built without reinforcing steel," said Hank's attorney. "Something your buyers could only know if you had told them. Which you did not."

"The thing speaks for itself — res ipsa loquitur," the court said. "Because the wall collapsed so easily, it is valid to assume that Charlie constructed it poorly.

"The wall appeared to be sturdy and solid. Charlie should have expected children to climb it," the court added. "He is liable since he didn't strengthen the wall properly. Or give any warning to the new occupants."

It's not always easy to prove that someone was negligent. Still, common sense tells us that accidents don't happen unless someone wasn't careful.

Take the case of the negligent landlord.

Tenant Tess walked onto her outdoor stairway and through the top step. She injured her ankle and hip from the fall. And sued her landlord for negligence.

"That step gave way because you wouldn't fix those treads and risers," Tess told her landlord. "They were so loose that water seeped in and rotted the wood and nails."

Tess sued her landlord. And the court ruled in her favor.

"What actually caused the step to give is not certain," it said. "But it gave way for some reason. So there must have been negligence."

Hikers Seek Sponsors For Coast Act Fund

The Marin Ecology Center will hold a 20-mile hike along Bolinas Lagoon on Nov. 10 to raise funds for technical and legal support for the Coast Conservation Act, passed by voters last November.

Hikers will start at 9 a.m. at Rock Springs in Mount Tamalpais State Park. Hikers will seek sponsors to pay 50 cents for each mile walked.

Younger To Honor Belvedere Resident

A Belvedere resident will receive a certificate of commendation from State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger Tuesday in San Francisco.

Daniel B. Gale will be honored for aiding Belvedere police in the apprehension of two persons accused of taking $3,101 worth of property from a Belvedere home.

Students Show Appreciation

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (UPI) — Even after half a century, some of her pupils have let Lucia Harrison know they remember her with "fondness and great respect."

Miss Harrison is professor emeritus of geography of Western Michigan University. She recently observed her 98th birthday at a local nursing home. At the same time the WMU class of 1923 was observing a 50th anniversary reunion at the campus.

Miss Harrison couldn't come to the party, so the old grads and former students taped a "Happy Birthday" and laudatory comments, which were delivered to her at the nursing home. A residence hall also has been named after her on the WMU campus.

Share Of Tax Funds Announced

Marin County and its cities will receive $259,325 in local sales and use tax funds from the state Board of Equalization.

The county will receive $29,000. Cities' shares are: Belvedere, $625; Corte Madera, $23,000; Fairfax, $4,750; Larkspur, $6,750; Mill Valley, $15,000; Novato, $28,500; Ross, $450; San Anselmo, $10,250; San Rafael, $112,500; Sausalito, $22,750, and Tiburon, $5,750.

Courts At School Can Be Reserved

Tennis courts at Martin Luther King School may be reserved for use by Sausalito residents through November, the parks and recreation commission has decided.

Courts may be reserved for 8:30, 10, and 11:30 a.m. by telephoning the city department of public works between 10 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. weekdays, according to commission secretary Sandra Babbino.

Deportation Fight

Petalumans Take Awards

I-J Special Report

KANSAS CITY — Petaluma youngsters have taken third place awards at the National Future Farmers of America National Convention.

Christopher Bergstedt was the third-highest scoring individual in farming skills competition and Daniel Graveman, David Shaw and Chip Schalch won a gold emblem for their third-place rating in the team competition. All are students at Petaluma High School.

The competition tests the entrants knowledge and skills in all phases of farm maintenance. The FFA members perform actual shop work then take a written examination covering such areas as electric machinery, welding, plumbing and pipe fitting.

Gonorrhea Leads Disease List

Gonorrhea was the most prevalent communicable disease in Marin County last week with 25 cases reported, according to Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, county health officer.

The disease was reported in every community except San Anselmo.

There were 12 cases of streptococcus infection, one of salmonela and two of shigilla for the week ending Oct. 13.

'73 Chevrolet Impala Meets New Ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A production-line 1973 Chevrolet Impala with a Japanese-invented engine modi has become the first U.S. car to meet 1975 air pollution standards.

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) gave its approval to the car with a carburetion system invented by the Honda Motor Co. of Japan. Honda's system, called a Compound Vortex Controlled Combustion system, involves the replacement of heads and intake manifold with a prechamber and dual carburetion system.

Miniclass Preview Scheduled Friday

The Marin Association for Gifted Children, participants in the College for Kids program at the College of Marin, will present a preview of supplemental miniclasses for children Friday at 7 p.m. at the Independent Learning School, 5168 Paradise Drive, Corte Madera.

Courses to be demonstrated include extra sensory perception, ancient coins, communications, building a future city, puppets, and folk dancing.

Refuse Refueling

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Airport authorities at Tucuman refused to refuel an Argentine Airlines Boeing 737 hijacked on a domestic flight today, forcing the twin-engined jetliner to fly to a Bolivian border town where it was stranded, airline sources said.

Woman Is Found Dead Near Dam

The body of Madelyn Jinx Weeks, 25-year-old former Woodacre resident, was found yesterday near the Nicasio Dam.

Miss Weeks apparently took her own life by firing a .38-caliber revolver into her head, according to the coroner's office. Keith C. Craig, coroner's investigator, said the gun was found near the body, and its box was in her car, parked about one-fourth mile away.

The dead woman was found by a hiker at about 1:30 p.m. on a dirt road just off the Petaluma-Point Reyes Road.

Miss Weeks had been living in Alameda with her brother, Bruce. He said she left their house about 8:50 a.m. yesterday. Weeks said his sister had been depressed, according to Craig.

Miss Weeks was a student at Peralta College.

In addition to her brother, she is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. W. Weeks of Emeryville.

was not acceptable and to demand that the President comply with his order of Aug. 29 to turn the tapes over to him for personal inspection.

Sens. Sam J. Ervin and Howard H. Baker Jr., ranking members of the Senate committee, said the arranagement suited them. They were briefed on it in a 40-minute session with Nixon Friday evening.

But Cox said it was a move to "deprive prosecutors of admissable evidence in prosecuting wrongdoers who abused high government office."

He said he would obey Sirica's decision in the matter but not the President's, a position which virtually challenged Nixon to fire him. "No. Hell, no," he said when asked if he intended to resign.

Nixon's move came just three hours before the deadline by the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here for him to comply with Sirica's order.

It marked abandonment of the position he has held since existence of the tapes was revealed July 16—that any disclosure of them would ruin the confidentiality of the Presidency and severely hamper his ability to perform the duties of his office.

He fought Cox's suit and another brought by the Senate committee on constitutional grounds that the executive, as a separate and equal branch of the government, could not be compelled to disclose the information. Sirica threw out the Senate's suit last week on jurisdictional grounds.

The appeals court had earlier suggested that Nixon and Cox get together and work out a compromise to avoid the constitutional crisis. Nixon said his decision to breach confidentiality "in this one instance" was done in the spirit of the court's suggestion.

Nixon said the arrangement "goes beyond what any President in history has offered" and would resolve "any lingering thought that the President himself might have been involved in a Watergate coverup."

Myers Now Favors Women As Priests

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Bishop C. Kilmer Myers of the Episcopal Diocese of California said yesterday he changed his mind and now favors admitting women to the priesthood.

Addressing the 124th convention of the church he said he had recently written a letter on the subject to the House of Bishops, at their request, favoring a move "toward opening ordination to women to the priesthood."

Fallen Tree Cuts Power In One Area

A fallen tree cut off electricity in northern San Rafael for an hour this morning, darkening street lights in the area.

A Pacific Gas and Electric spokesman said a tree fell through the lines on Prospect Drive near Vineyard Drive at 5:53 a.m. affecting more than 1,000 residents in the Lincoln Avenue area. Power was restored at 6:45 a.m.

Out Of Jail

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Byron de la Beckwith, the man acquitted of the murder of civil rights leader Medgar Evers, was freed from Orleans Parish prison yesterday, where he had been held on a charge of carrying a bomb across state lines.

WAR

sisted the ground forces with sorties against the Egyptian deployment," it added.

A military spokesman also said artillery duels raged through the night on the East Bank of the canal, seized by the Egyptians in a surprise attack exactly two weeks ago.

In Cairo, an Egyptian communique said the Egyptian forces had "inflicted serious losses" in men and equipment on the Israelis during the past two days, destroying 85 tanks, 56 halftracks and capturing several complete Israeli tank crews.

Air raid sirens sounded for one minute in the Egyptian capital at 1.50 p.m. (7:50 a.m. EDT). It was the seventh and shortest alert of the war. Nothing was seen or heard above Cairo.

The Egyptians said their planes had shot down at least 15 Israeli planes Saturday.

A brief Syrian military communique said: "In retaliation for the aggressive operations of the enemy against some economic installations in Syria, our air force this morning bombed the oil refinery at Haifa."

It did not make a damage claim.

The attack, if confirmed, would first Syrian retaliation for repeated Israeli air raids and naval attacks on oil refineries, depots and terminals in Northern Syria, mainly along the Mediterranean coast.

An Israeli spokesman denied, however, that Haifa had been hit at all.

Israel said the Syrian front was quiet. But an Israeli communique said Israeli missile boats hit Egyptian military installations in the Nile Delta between Damietta and Rozeta while frogmen damaged vessels in the Egyptian harbor of Jardaka on the Red Sea.

Mohammed Haydar, Syria's deputy premier and minister in charge of economics told a news conference Syria's "sectors of oil and electric power have been practically totally damaged" by Israeli attacks.

In a related development, the government of the Persian Gulf island of Bahrain announced on Bahrain radio Saturday it had unilaterally abrogated the 1969 agreement with the United States allowing U.S. navy ships to use the former British naval base there.

Diplomatic sources believe that the United States loan to Israel, announced Friday night, was the immediate cause of the move.

The United States has grown increasingly unpopular in Bahrain and other Gulf states in the past few days following reports of the increasing volume of armaments being sent to Israel, the sources said.

of a free hand."

After announcement of his selection for the job last night, Stennis issued a statement saying: "If I am called on to listen to the tapes and certify as to their content I will consider it a call to duty and render the service the best I can. I have not yet perfected the pla of operation and therefore cannot elaborate further on it now. This will be a semi-judicial assignment anyway and I will have little to say before I do the work."

Stennis, 72, was nearly killed earlier this year when he was robbed and shot in the driveway of his Washington home. He returned to the Senate only a few weeks ago.

Stennis is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and one of the most respected men in the Senate. Perhaps of greater importance to his new assignment, he was a circuit judge in Mississippi between 1937 and 1946, when he was elected to the Senate.

In making known his choice, Nixon said he was selecting "a very distinguished man, highly respected by all elements in American life, for his integrity, his fairness and his patriotism."

OBITUARIES

Elinor Burt, 75, Writer And Teacher, Succumbs

Elinor Burt, Mill Valley teacher and author, died yesterday in the 160 Hillside Avenue home where she was born 75 years ago.

She was found by a nephew Dale Stocking who became concerned because she failed to keep an appointment.

An autopsy is planned.

Miss Burt formerly taught high school home economics for San Francisco and other California cities.

She was a dietition for the U.S. Air Corps during World War II and in 1933 was employed by the Bureau of Home Economics in Washington D.C. to prepare minimum cost diets for minority groups.

In 1924 her cooking class for boys at a high school in Porterville, Tulare County, was the subject of wide-spread publicity because it was the first such class in the nation.

In the late 1940's while teaching at Galileo High School in San Francisco she developed ready mixed food for classroom use.

A pioneer in introducing the American public to foreign foods she began research while teaching at Berkeley High School in 1929 which resulted in her first published cookbook "Olla Podrida" a chronicle of Spanish cookery. In 1947 she published "Far Eastern Cookery."

Except for her extensive global travels, Miss Burt was a lifelong resident of Mill Valley. She was a graduate of Mill Valley Grammar School, Tamalpais High School and the University of California at Berkeley.

Her travels included several trips around the world. Before World War II she traveled to North China and took a safari across the Turkish and Iranian deserts and traveled to Indian and Africa.

She was a former director of the Marin Historical Society.

About three years ago, Laurence Bono bought the ranch for $295,000. It was purchased a year ago for $392,000 by Cheda Ranch Associates, including Ferrua, Pollock and 10 others. Each of the 12 must put up $7,920 to become members of the new Cheda Ranch Recreation Group.

When the 100 shares are sold, the new recreation group will elect officers and operate the recreation ranch by majority decision, Ferrua said.

might be a good idea, "But at first blush, I can't quite buy it."

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., also a member of the Watergate Committee, called the settlement a "hollow victory" and Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., blasted it as "a travesty."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott said, "a very wise solution has been reached."

Speaker of the House Carl Albert called the proposal "interesting," and Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford said it was "a reasonable, fair solution to an unfortunate problem."

"I reject the hollow deal to release a summary of the evidence rather than the evidence itself," Weicker said. "The nation deserves the truth rather than politics as usual."

Stevenson recalled Att. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson's pre-confirmation promise in May to give Cox "full access" to "all documentary evidence available from any soucce." "By denying the special prosecutor access to the white House tapes," he said, "Mr. Nixon gives the American people no reason for confidence that they will ever know the whole truth about Watergate.

"Mr. Nixon's proposed compromise is a travesty; he is asking the nation to accept a compromise with truth and justice," Stevenson continued.

Rep. Jerome Waldie, D-Calif., called the Nixon offer "an outrage" and said the President should be impeached if he fires Cox.

Train Hits Mine

ALICE ARATA

Alice Rose Arata, a 59-year Marin resident, died yesterday in a Ross hospital after a long illness. She was 87.

Mrs. Arata was born in San Francisco and attended public schools there.

She married the late Mario F. Arata, in San Francisco in 1910.

The couple moved to Marin in 1914 and lived in San Anselmo and Ross before moving to Greenbrae in 1957.

Mrs. Arata is survived by two daughters, Marian Jensen of Greenbrae and Gloria Davies of San Rafael.

Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in St. Sebastian's Catholic Church in Greenbrae. Entombment will follow at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery.

Rosary will be recited Monday at 8 p.m. in Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

RAYMOND AIKEN

Funeral for Raymond E. Aiken of Fairfax will be tomorrow at 1 p.m. at the Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

Aiken, 77, died Thursday in a local convalescent hospital after a lengthy illness.

He was a native of East Orange, New Jersey and worked for 41 years as a customer's service representative for the Public Service Gas and Electric Company in New Jersey.

Aiken and his wife, Margaret, moved to Fairfax a year ago and resided at 2575 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard.

He leaves the wife, two daughters, Joyce Kuns of Fairfax and Marion Luckey of Munising, Michigan and four grandchildren.

The family prefers memorial gifts to St. Augustine's Episcopal Church in Fairfax.

HAROLD ANGIERS

Harold Angiers of Novato, a retired executive, died yesterday in a local hospital. He was 70.

Angiers was born in Lodi. He was an executive of the Grape and Tree Fruit League for 25 years. He and his wife, Maxine owned a ladies ready-to-wear store in Belvedere. They had lived in Belvedere and Larkspur before moving to Novato five years ago.

Angiers is survived by his wife and a daughter, Mrs. Bruce Obbink of Fresno.

Memorial service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato. Inurnment will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael.

JOHN GOTOVAC

John Gotovac, 44, of Tomales, died at his home yesterday apparently of a heart attack, according to the Marin coroner's office.

Gotovac was born and reared in Chicago, Ill., and moved to California 10 years ago and to Marin five years ago. He was a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley. At the time of his death he was a salesman for Oakite Products of San Francisco.

He was a member of the Tomales Grove Ancient Order of Druids.

Gotovac is survived by his father, Robert Gotovac and a sister, Florence Verveny, both of Shell Beach, San Luis Obispo County, and two brothers, James Gotovac of Yorba Linda and Robert J. Gotovac, La Placentia, both Orange County.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato.

No Longer A Flag Under Fire

By FLORENCE MOUCKLEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The once-reviled program for training United States military officers on college campuses — ROTC — is no longer under seige.

With the Vietnam War — and the draft — over, the consensus is "live and let live" — no wild enthusiams, but no strong opposition.

Numbers are down but units are up. And unless the Nation becomes embroiled in another armed conflict, college officials and the military expect it to stay that way, a Monitor survey found.

An ROTC recruiter at the University of Wisconsin says, "Students are not blatantly anti-military, which leads me to think that they are approachable." In 1969, damage to the ROTC building amounted to $50,000. It was fire-bombed again the next year.

Actual enrollment is down to 75,029 college students in 1972, from 213,000 in 1968. Military men say this is only to be expected, but that present enrollments are meeting the present needs of the military service.

At the same time, 68 new ROTC units from all three military branches have been established at 59 educational institutions in the past five years, the Pentagon says.

This compares with 40 units at 29 schools withdrawn during the same period.

Sixteen of these ROTC branches at 15 schools were closed with the mutual agreement of the school and particular military branch because there was little interest in the program. Twenty-four units at 14 colleges were withdrawn because of strong and sometimes violent student opposition.

Only one of the 14 schools which backed out of the program because of student pressure, Boston University, has asked for the return of ROTC.

Almost all those knowledgeable of ROTC say that the Vietnam war left many students with a bitter aftertaste for all things military, and that this is also contributing to lower enrollments.

The Monitor survey found that generally there is no great "pro" or "anti" ROTC feeling among college students across the country.

Tom Humphreys, an undergraduate at UCLA and an editorial assistant on the school's Daily Bruin, says ROTC was never popular but today it is "less unpopular" than it was in 1969.

"Three years ago, at the heights of the antiwar movement, ROTC was in the dumps. Anyone walking around campus in uniform would catch a lot of flak. Today, most people ignore it."

To some extent the popularity or unpopularity of ROTC on any one campus reflects the amount of antiwar sentiment which was generated there during the Vietnam conflict.

For example, at Columbia University where students in effect forced the withdrawal of ROTC in 1969, the scars of the confrontation still remain.

But John Murphy, Columbia's associate director of public information, says: "There has been no mention of ROTC since the phasing out in 1969. Columbia (the university's administration) is neutral as to its future. There is no interest in it as far as we can see."

Pennsylvania State University is at the other end of the spectrum. Col. Thomas Collins, professor of military science there, says: "ROTC never lost its popularity although we had the national one in 1969-70.

"It was as a result of the student government and university faculty vote that it was retained. Enrollment was up 20 percent last year. . . Peer pressure is just not around, they are coming in droves, they are coming forward."

Boston University, meanwhile, has asked for the reinstatement of the ROTC military training program.

A large majority of the BU faculty voted to have ROTC back on campus.

One of the reasons, but not the most important, says a spokesman for the university, was money.

According to the Department of Defense, if a school bars military recruiters, under the present law it cannot receive any Defense Department or NASA research funds.

Military recruiters were allowed to return to BU campuses early this year.

John R. Silber, BU president, echoes many of the "pro" ROTC arguments which are still debated on college campuses around the country.

Recently he said, "We are moving towards a professional army — an Army made up, not of draftees, but of career soldiers. I believe that ROTC programs provide — along with the draft that we have so recklessly abandoned — the best means for placing persons of essentially civilan outlook in positions of responsibility and command in the armed forces."

Further, he said, no person nor group of persons have the right to deny a student access to an ROTC program that might provide the only available financial source whereby he may pursue a higher education.

The most-used argument against having ROTC units on campus is that the military — either training officers or conducting defense research — has no place in educational institutions. Having the military there provides a built-in bias, the argument goes.

Although ROTC scholarship enrollments are up in some colleges, officials say it is too early to tell if this reflects the fact that other forms of federal student financial aid have been cut back.

The three military services can have some 19,000 scholarships in being at any one time.

Scholarships include the costs of tuition and books, plus $100 a month during the school year. The nonscholarship program provides only $100 a month for the school year during the third and fourth year of the program.

Many schools report increased interest in ROTC scholarships.

At West Virginia University, for example, James Hawthorne, assistant professor of military science, says:

"There are twice as many applications for scholarships now than there were two years ago. . ."

At the Univeristy of Florida, Georgia State University, Georgia Institute of Technology, and the University of South Carolina officials agreed that the $100 a month "taxfree" allowance given to ROTC students was a crucial inducement to sign up.

Shoreline Board Asks Federal Aid

The Shoreline Unified School District board has applied for federal funds to offset income lost when the federal government took district land off the taxrolls.

The lands in question are the Point Reyes National Seashore and the Coast Guard installation in Point Reyes Station, Supt. Kenneth C. Barnes said.

The Shoreline Unified School District board also:

PROPANE — Heard a report that the district must pay five cents a gallon more for propane gas. The new price is 27.5 cents for the high school and 28 cents for the elementary schools. The district uses about 75,000 gallons a year.

HIRED — Hired Sylvia Rivers as teacher aide at the high school at $3.08 per hour and William Manni as custodian at the high school at $3.24 per hour.

A Brisk Business

ATLANTA (UPI) —Georgia Lt. Gov. Lester Maddox said Friday his new record album "God, Family and Country" is doing a brisk business in Georgia.

More UFO Sightings Across Nation

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

"They all say they are seeing little-bitty flying saucers with lights on them," said a police dispatcher in Gaston, N.C., adding she's been telling callers to invite any spacemen wto land to come to the station house "and we'll have a tea party."

Unidentified flying objects were spotted across the United States yesterday, and Allen Hynek, chairman of the Northwestern University Astronomy Department, urged the government to "cut out the nonsense and get down to study" of the UFO reports.

"This UFO business has been going on for a quarter century," he said. "We forget that sometime there will be a 30th Century science which probably will be as different (from science today) as Babylonian society."

A deputy in Winston-Salem, N.C., reported a call from a Walkerton woman who said she was passed in her front yard by a UFO that "had a long blue tail, blew wind up her dress and made the trees in her yard sway."

Billy Hatchet said he and his wife, Donna, were in their pickup truck in Tulsa, Okla., watching flashing objects that larger than a jumbo jet. Police said the objects were helicopters taking part in an air show.

"You couldn't possibly confuse this with an airplane or a helicopter," Mrs. Hatchett said. "A moron couldn't make that big a mistake."

Paul Brown of Athens, Ga., said he saw a space craft land on a highway and two 4-foot-tall creatures wearing silver uniforms get out. He shot at them twice with his pistol. "I was shaken. I didn't sleep," he said.

Manistee, Mich., County Deputy Sheriff John Gielczck said he saw a "mother ship" and smaller craft. A city policeman in Bonham, Tex., said he saw a UFO that was "cigar-shaped, glowing red at each end." Henry Lambert of Griffin, Ga., said he saw a craft shaped like a 60-foot football hovering off the ground. J.F. Chesson and Leonard Reeves of Livingston, Tex., said they saw a fleet of six UFOs inspect Lake Livingston for three hours. A babysitter at a ranch in Muldooon Canyon, near Bellevue, Idaho, said she saw a UFO that looked like a star.

In Biloxi, Miss., meanwhile, Charles I. McQuiston, a psychologist, said Friday that his tests of tape recordings made by two Mississippi shipyard workers show they are genuinely convinced they were abducted by strange creatures from outer space.

The crew of a sheriff's department helicopter in Brownsville, Tex., closed in on the scene of some reported UFOs and managed to catch sight of some pranksters who were shooting parachute flares in the sky before they escaped.

The whole problem of whether or not there are UFOs bothers Michael Kurth of Saginaw, Mich., so much that he has offered a $1,000 gift certificate to the first person who brings him a "bonafide creature from another planet."

"I have nothing to lose and if someone does show up to claim the prize it should be worth something on the open market," he said.

So far, he said, the response has been slow.

Cosmetics Expert's Widow Slaps Holiday With Suit

The widow of a cosmetics expert who worked for William Penn Patrick yesterday filed a $1.3 million suit, claiming breach of contract.

Betty Westmore said the late Patrick's Holiday Magic Co. promised to pay her husband $1,250 a month for the use of his name and writings in the promotion of Holiday Magic cosmetics.

But after Ern Westmore died in 1970, his widow said Holiday Magic told her it was cutting the monthly stipend to $200 and dropping it entirely after one year.

Through a mixup, according to the suit filed in Marin Superior Court, the contract stated the $1,250 would be paid each month indefinitely, although Westmore's intent was to receive the money as long as he, his wife or Holiday Magic survived.

Mrs. Westmore's suit asks $300,000 general damages and $1 million punitive damages for the alleged breach of contract. The suit was filed by San Francisco attorney Robert B. Ingram, who also represents other clients suing Holiday Magic and Patrick's estate.

To Visit Moscow

MOSCOW (UPI) —Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie will visit the Soviet Union later this month on business at the invitation of the government, the Soviet Tass news agency said yesterday.

Selassie last visited Moscow in 1967.

Consolidated Sewer Plan Is Supported

A consolidated sewer system for Southern and Central Marin with an outfall at Point San Quentin has been recommended as the best of three sewer consolidation schemes being studied by the Southern Marin Subregional Sewerage Agency.

The system would be the cheapest and most efficient, according to a report compiled by three engineering firms. It was received Wednesday by the sewerage agency, which includes representatives of nine sanitary districts.

Also being considered is a system with outfalls at Point San Pedro and Point San Quentin that would consolidate sewage treatment and disposal for all of Marin and part of Southern Sonoma County and a consolidated system for Southern and Central Marin with an outfall at Point San Pedro.

The report will be available to the public at libraries and city halls throughout Southern Marin, according to John T. Schulte, agency administrative officer. Public hearings on the three proposals are expected in February.

Beginning Nov. 1, the agency will be located in new offices at 180 Harbor Drive in Sausalito, Schulte said.

Nixon's Tape Plan Could Put Cox Into A Difficult Position

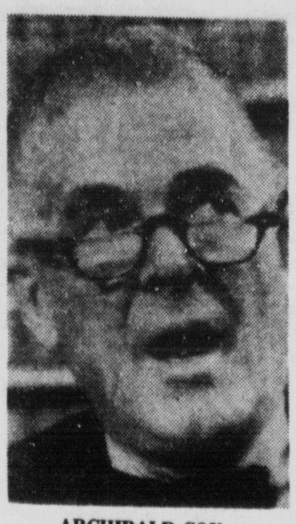
WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's proposal to head off a constitutional crisis over his Watergate tapes has triggered yet another: The future of Archibald Cox, the man picked five months ago to resolve the crisis of Watergate. (See other stories, page 1.)

The specialprosecutor came to office in May given "full authority" by Att. Gen. Elliot L. Richardson to conduct an independent investigation of the bugging scandal separate from a Justice Department tainted by the alleged involvement of some of its officials.

That promise apparently went out the window sometime this week and Cox is now in a bind.

Although Cox and Richardson talked casually from time to time about the prospects of settling the dispute over Nixon's secret Watergate tapes out of court, Cox seemingly was kept in the dark about the proposal Richardson was making for compromise.

The final proposal was worked out through the day yesterday at meetings Richardson held with his staff at the Justice Department and that Nixon held at the White House with Sens. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., and Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., the chairman and vice chairman of the Senate Watergate Committee.



ARCHIBALD COX
Stsnned by decision

Cox was not present at either meeting, and there was no public indication he had been consulted.

He was stunned when finally informed of the proposal, discovering that the President had ordered him to quit pressing the tapes issue in court, an issue Cox had twice won in lower courts and had hopes of winning in the Supreme Court.

"I cannot be party to such an arrangement," Cox said.

By throwing down that gauntlet, the special prosecutor signaled his willingness to go to war with the President of the United States.

Cox apparently is not willing to resign, but knows he risks being fired. Should that occur, the constitutional crisis over the Watergate tapes may have been averted but at the cost of deepening the crisis of Watergate itself.

$1.3 Million For Projects On 101

A $929 million State Highway Department budget for 1974-75 will include more than $1.3 million for construction work on Highway 101 in Marin.

Approximately $840,000 of local shareofthemoney will go to upgrade lighting on 101 from the Golden Gate Bridge to the Waldo Tunnel near Sausalito. An estimated $480,000 will be spent to build a 1.6 mile stretch of frontage road near Novato to provide access to and from Gnoss Field airport.

200 Deaths Feared In Spanish Flood

GRANADA, Spain (UPI) — Authorities today mounted a massive relief and rescue airlift to the flood-stricken southeastern provinces where more than 200 persons were feared dead in Spain's worst natural disaster in more than a decade.

With communications still washed out in parts of Granada, Almeria and Murcia provinces, provincial authorities put the number of dead and presumed dead at more than 200. The worst hit town appeared to be Puerto Lumbreras where, the Murcia province governor said, the death toll was expected to be between 150 and 200.

An airlift of 40 helicolters flew relief supplies to the worst hit regions, including the small resort of La Rabita on the Costa del Sol where police said between 70 and 80 persons were dead or missing—most of them washed into the Mediterranean by a mountain creek transformed into a raging river by heavy rains.

The torrential rains ended one of the hottest summers on record in Spain. it is the worst natural disaster since the 1962 floods, which killed 600.

Authorities said hundreds of army engineers and soldiers aided by police and civilian rescuers were digging for victims, bringing in food, medicines and fresh water and evacuating villagers.

The government also dispatched three cabinet ministers to the disaster area. In Puerto Lumbreras, a ceramics-producing town halfway between Granada and Murcia, the Nogalte river swept away 20 homes. Police said close to 40 bodies have been recovered.

In Huercal-Overa, south of Puerto Lumbreras, flooding halted the Barcelona-Granada train. Helicopters flew in food and clothing for 225 stranded passengers and crew waiting for buses to reach them.

In the nearby town of Lorca, where at least three persons died, the main street was choked with 70 wrecked cars.

Norman Chandler, 74, Key To LA Times Climb, Dies

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Former Los Angeles Times publisher Norman Chandler, who helped make the Times one of the most influential newspapers in the country, died early today at the age of 74. Cause of death was not announced.

Chandler, who spent 16 years as the Times publisher from 1944-1960, died at 3:30 a.m. at Good Samaritan Hospital in Los Angeles.

A spokesman for the newspaper said Chandler had undergone surgery three weeks ago.

The family said funeral services would be held Tuesday in Beverly Hills. Chandler is survived by his widow, Dorothy Buffum Chandler; a son, daughter, eight grandchildren, a brother and two sisters.

In 1922 Chandler Chandler quit Stanford in his senior year and joined the newspaper owned by his father, Harry Chandler, as a $16-a-week circulation clerk.

The Times owned $5.5 million in assets the year Chandler went to work for the newspaper and today, ranking as one of the top three media operations in the nation, grosses more than $600 million annually.

At the time of his death the former Times publisher was chairman of The Times Mirror Co.'s executive committee and director of the Times Mirror Foundation.

Chandler became the Times' assishant general manager in 1934. Seven years later the 37-year-old Chandler was named president of the Times Mirror Co., succeeding his father, and guided the Times through the war years.

He became publisher in 1944 and relinquished the post 16 years later to his son, Otis.

Today the Times has 600 editorial staff members, 18 foreign and seven U.S. bureaus and its daily circulation tops more than one million.

Baby No Bother To College Pair

By BARBARA HOSMER

Usually the birth of a couple's first baby changes the parents' daily schedule mightily, especially the mother's.

But Ann and Steven Padover are finding that baby David is fitting into their schedule quite easily, even though both parents are full-time faculty members at Dominican College.

Born June 30 during summer vacation, David, now 3½ months old, has been going to college every weekday since late August.

Steven usually goes to his office earlier, but Ann and David leave their Mill Valley home for her office on the San Rafael campus about 11 a.m. David has a crib in her office at the college, where she is director of special education and teacher training in that field.

A playpen for David also is set up in his father's office in Guzman Hall, where Steven is assistant dean for Extended Learning at Dominican College.

Ann is involved with some classroom work and either takes David with her to class, where she says he behaves quite well and the students enjoy him, or to Steven's office to be with his father, who has administrative rather than classroom duties.

"I REALLY appreciate having the time with David. He's growing so fast, and I'm tired at the end of the day and wouldn't feel so much like spending time with him then. I can spend time with him here," said Steven with David in his second-floor office.

There was never any question that David could come to college after his birth, the couple said. When the baby was born, director of admissions Sister Marie, O.P., sent him an admissions certificate for the college, Ann Padover added.

When the baby has an occasional cranky time, Steven says that he is not much distracted from his work, but makes a little effort to pay some attention to him. Ann said she finds it helpful to switch tasks, pick up David and hold him in her lap while she makes some phone calls, for instance.

"Nursing makes it easier," his mother said of having David with her at work. "And nobody minds at all."

David's father totes him across the campus in a canvas front-carrier, but Ann just carries him. When David isn't with a parent, the students ask where he is, they said.

Often Ann leaves David with Steven while she does the shopping after work and the family will stop at a San Rafael restaurant for dinner before they go home.

"My hours are shorter. I can do more work at home than he can," she said of Steven's leaving earlier in the morning for the office. The family has lunch together each workday.

DAVID IS no stranger to the library or at faculty meetings, either. If one parent has a meeting, the other takes David.

Ann and Steven Padover said they had postponed having a child for several years because they both had careers they liked and wanted to continue. Now, with David, they are finding that they can have both quite easily.

"It's working out well so far," said Ann, "and he's comfortable going from person to person," she said of David's being with many people daily. "I like sociability in a baby."

When David becomes six months old, college will be out for a month. Then as he begins to move around on his own, he can be out of the crib or playpen more in the offices, his mother reasons. Maybe a student or somebody can help part of the time, she added.

Meantime, David seems to enjoy the history lecture from the classroom next door and being with his parents and friends all day.

BABY DAVID goes to college every weekday in San Rafael with his Dominican College faculty parents, Steven and Ann Padover. David spends the day with one parent and then the other. Ann Padover has a crib for him in her office, and David's father keeps David in the playpen in his office in Guzman Hall. "I hope he doesn't grow up to be a dropout," says his mother, director of special education at Dominican. Steven is assistant director of extended learning at the coolege.

New Laws Will Greatly Change Two Areas Of Women's Status

By BARBARA HOSMER

Two areas in which many Marin wives have had questions and complaints concern the husband's legal status as head of household and sole controller and manager of the couple's community property and credit discrimination against married women.

Both areas will be affected greatly when two new state laws go into effect.

The new community property revision act (SB 569) for the first time gives California wives equal right of control and management with husbands of their community property. Culmination of a three-year drive in which nearly every major women's group in California participated, the community property equalization bill met such legal attack and amendment before the governor signed it early this month.

The way it emerged leaves room for some technical amendments next session. This session past, a provision for joint rather than equal control, requiring both husband's and wife's signatures and another limiting amount of encumberment of community property by either spouse were cut away. But supporting legislators believe that by the time the law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1975, "clean-up" legislation will be passed.

THE LAW cuts new legal ground for California women, giving wives equal right of control and management of property acquired after marriage. Either spouse may encumber the community property without consent of the other with the exception of real property — their house, for instance — which will require signature of both husband and wife to buy or sell.

The husband will no longer be legal head of household and his place of residence will no longer automatically determine his wife's legal residence. Instead, the standard residence law will apply to each person: where you live and where you intend to stay indefinitely.

Both husband and wife will be responsible for support of their children and each other.

A wife no longer will need her husband's consent to operate a business. If either operates a business, he or she has management and control of it.

The community property will be liable for either husband's or wife's post-marriage debts, but not for debts incurred before the marriage.

The one-year period before the law goes into effect should give the lawmakers a chance to pass bills to iron out problems which may arise in the change-over to the concept of equal management and control of the community property, which brings California's community property law into conformance with the ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution voted last year.

THE SECOND law, (AB 312) gives a married woman the right to engage in credit transactions in her own name and without her husband's consent needed. It also will prohibit denial of credit to a married woman "if her unco-mingled earnings or separate property are such that a man possessing the same amount of property or earnings would receive credit."

This law will take effect next Jan. 1.

The granting of credit to wives is strongly tied to community property law, and here's where it gets sticky. The new credit law makes a couple's community property liable for contracts a wife makes during her marriage (after Jan. 1) to the extent that her earnings or separate property have been "comingled with the community property or have become community property by gift or agreement of the husband and wife.

In part, the two bills amended the same section of existing law. Since the governor signed the equal control of community property bill first and the credit bill afterward, the latter bill controls this point, allowing one spouse's earnings to cover the debts of the other. Otherwise, wives who have no earnings could easily be denied credit. The same, of course, would apply to non-working husbands.

So if the wife works and the husband does not, her earnings could be used to cover his debts made in the marriage, just as the husband has been responsible for his wife's debts in the past. The community property is liable in either case.

Equality cuts both ways under the new laws.

Whether the credit law improves the credit situation materially for wives and divorced women, who will carry their previous credit record with them out of a marriage, remains to be seen.

Yachters Sailing On Dreamboats

By MOLLY MARIN

A dozen members of San Francisco Yacht Club's Women's Auxiliary set sail Wednesday on Filhamar, a 40-foot Offshore owned by Dr. George Williams of Tiburon. It is one of six "dreamboats" offered to the auxiliary for its Wednesday sailing series.

The experienced yachtswomen next Wednesday will sail Severn, 44-foot sloop owned by Dr. Francis A. Sooy of San Francisco, chancellor of University of California Medical Center at San Francisco.

They plan a Halloween cruise aboard Tigero, a 41-foot Hinkley owned by Thomas Fleming Jr. of Belvedere.

The auxiliary members have already sailed aboard the Sunchaser, a Palmer-Johnson 43 owned by Harry Altick of Belvedere which won last year's Perpetual Trophy Race against St. Francis Yacht Club, and Alembic, a 47-foot cutter owned by Ernest Van Asperen of St. Helena.

MR. AND Mrs. Allen Dahl of Novato will celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary tonight. They were married on Oct. 21, 1948.

Their three daughters and son-in-law, Mrs. Pamela Rhodd, Chris Dahl and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Robbins, all of Novato, have invited relatives and family friends to a dinner at Sonoma Joe's in Petaluma tonight. They will return to the Dahl home for refreshments following the dinner.

Coming to the celebration from Minnesota are Mrs. Dahl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Moore, and Mr. Dahl's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Dahl, who were best man and matron of honor at the wedding.

MARIN SEEMS to be turning out a number of professional ballet dancers, largely from the Marin Civic Ballet. Kathy Prescott, who spent the summer months in Marin, has returned now to Europe to continue with the Stuttgart Ballet this season.

Jan Thelen of San Rafael is performing featured roles with the Royal Winnipeg Ballet, which will perform in New York City's Lincoln Center for a week and tour Cuba and South America afterward. David White is a performer with the National Ballet of Canada and may appear in San Francisco during the company's tour of the United States beginning next March. Also spending time attending ballet classes and workshops in Canada, Sara McKinnon of San Rafael is performing during the opera season with the San Francisco Opera Ballet.

And Bonnie Bent, who has been with the Royal Netherlands Ballet company has joined the American Ballet Theatre in New York.

LIVING IN San Diego are Mr. and Mrs. Dale G. Reeder, who were married at St. Peter's by the Sea Church in Palos Verdes Sept. 29. The bride, the former Pamela A. Marcinek, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony R. Marcinek of Novato. Her brother, Michael T. Marcinek flew home from Kaiserlautern, Germany, where he is stationed with the Army, to attend the wedding. Pamela's other brother, Kevin Marcinek of Novato was an usher.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reeder of San Jacinto, is stationed aboard the USS John McClain in San Diego.

MARINITES WHO are among the sponsors for the annual Antiques Show and Sale of the Episcopal Church of St. Matthew in San Mateo are Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Cary of Ross, and Mmes. Alan G. McLenegan of Kentfield, Jefferson J. Graves Jr. of Ross, and Wallace E. Scott and Frank King of Belvedere.

The show will be held Wednesday through Friday, and luncheon and tea will be served.

Celeste Holm Gives Marin A Sampling Of Her Charm

By JOAN LISETOR

If you have seen Celeste Holm you know she is warm and witty. She brought the same warmth and wit to the lecture stage yesterday when she spoke at the A.M. Program at the Marin Veterans Memorial Building.

Miss Holm is a story teller and weaves a tale around each incident of her childhood and her rise to success as an actress.

"The question I am asked most often is 'How do you get to be a star?' I always answer 'You have to choose your parents very carefully and your grandparents,' " she said.

Her maternal grandfather was a professor of life sciences, and his wife taught English and drama and "met life with a sense of joy," Miss Holm said. Her mother, a portrait painter, designed the baby clothes patterns for her that are still being sold by Vogue Patterns. Her father's contribution is his ability to speak six languages and read 13, and he was the youngest of 11 children, the son of a minister, whose wife wrote his sermons.

Most important, her forebearers showed respect for children, she said.

Her first experience with the theater was at 2, when she saw Pavlova's ballet company perform the "Nutcracker." That made her decide to be a ballet dancer, her ambition until she learned to play the piano at 9 while attending boarding school in Paris. From piano she switched to wanting to be an actress because she enjoyed working with words.

THE QUESTION she is asked second, she said is, "How did you get started?"

"There are 21,000 acting jobs and 6,000 actors for each one, and that includes ones like holding up your arm pits on television," she said. "So it's not easy."

Her start came at a summer theater near where her family spent 13 summers camping. When she got over the fear of lights, she went off to Broadway, where her father agreed to support her for four years, instead of sending her to college, if she studied. Her first roles were in touring companies with Leslie Howard's "Hamlet" then "The Women," a play she found denegrating to women.

CELESTE HOLM

She bullied her way past a receptionist at the American Theater Guild office to audition for Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt. She didn't get the part because she was too tall, but most precious to her is the fact that Miss Fontanne called her and told her, "You have it."

Her success came on Broadway with "Time of Your Life," which also starred Gene Kelly and the late William Bendix.

"After that things came easy," she said. "I never heard, 'Don't call us we'll call you.' "

SHE GOT THE role that made her famous, Ado Annie in "Oklahoma," by hog calling for composer Richard Rogers. And she didn't disappoint Rogers, because on opening night "I stopped the show cold with 'I Can't Say No,' " she said.

She went to Hollywood to star in "Gentlemen's Agreement" in 1947. "Snake Pit" was being made at the same time, and because of a sympathetic feeling for mentally ill persons she wanted to be in the movie. By trapping the film's producer, Anatol Litvak, in an elevator, she got the part, and worked on both films at the same time.

She is proud of the films because they are the types of pictures she wants to be in, pictures that matter.

"Gentlemen's Agreement" won her an Oscar for best supporting actress.

"Winning an Academy Award is like getting hit on the head. All of the lights are suddenly shined on you. They tell you if you win don't stop and talk to your friends, just get up on the stage and give a speech. I couldn't get out of my seat after Donald Crisp said my name, and he said it wrong 'Celestie Holm.' I didn't have a speech because I didn't think I was going to win, but an angel was sitting on my shoulder and told me to say I was pleased to be winning for a film that told the important message of how terrible prejudice can be," she said.

THAT SAME angel was sitting on her shoulder the night she met former President Harry S Truman — in the men's room of the Statler Hotel in New York, a story she said, she would rather not see in print. The women's room was changed to a men's room for a stag party, and not knowing it, Miss Holm walked in as the President was walking out.

Along with humorous stories, Miss Holm throws out such quips as, "The trouble with life is, it's so daily" or "the play was so bad people stayed away in droves." To her "an artist is a person who sees order in chaos, an actor should give security to an audience, and nudity is a fad that will go away."

"An acting career lasts such a short time," she said. "I'll illustrate with five sentences, 'Who is Celeste Holm?' 'Celeste Holm has something.' 'Get me Celeste Holm.' 'Get me a Celeste Holm type.' and 'Who is Celeste Holm?' "

The Ghosts Started In Middle Ages

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ghosts, rattling skeletons and witches on broomsticks became part of Halloween celebrations during the Middle Ages when superstition was rife.

Black cats, however, were linked with Halloween years earlier. Druid priests in ancient France and Britain worshipped Samhain, the god of death, on Halloween night.

Values In Today's Society Are Explored

By PAT BALMES

"If you could have your hopes and dreams, what would you have happen, assuming it would magically come true but that you would have to work hard on it for a year?" asked Lee Slimmon of Catholic Social Services of the women gathered before a cozy fire at Community Congregational Church in Tiburon Thursday morning.

It is one of hundreds of questions he uses as values clarification techniques in his daily work as project director in drug abuse prevention education in public high schools. Value Clarification's aim is to help adrift people to live their lives more meaningfully to themselves, he said.

However his workshop on Thursday morning was not about drugs, but was titled "Values Clarification — Where Am I As A Person and What Are My Priorities?" It was the second in a series of five weekly public talks, "Women and Their Opportunities."

After each question Slimmon divided the women into groups of two or four to discuss it for a few minutes. When they emerged, they had identified their personal preferences which he called value indicators.

To be a true value, it must be consciously and freely chosen from alternatives, consistently used in her life, prized, cherished and an idea which she is willing to share with others, he said.

"As a person clarifies her own values, she becomes more independent and less subject to peer pressure," said Slimmon.

The values clarification theory is explained in two companion books, "Values and Teaching" by Raths, Harmon and Simon and "Values Clarification" by Sydney Simon, which explain how to make functional, not moral, evaluations.

AT THE high schools Slimmons takes over health education classes to run his thought-provoking workshops. He says nothing about drugs; the students think it is an education experiment, he said.

Drug abuse education began 10 years ago with scare tactics and it has backfired, Slimmon said. Credibility was lost. Drug abuse films are being recalled because of significant scientific errors. Drug use is not going down. Alcohol use is on the increase.

"Evidently information leads to abuse. It has destroyed the fear of the unknown," said Slimmon, who tries instead to make the teen-agers feel good about themselves.

Self-esteem has come up and drug abuse has gone down, according to lengthy questionaires filled out by sophomores who have completed the first of his three-year state funded project at San Rafael High School.

Slimmon's method is to get his students to look at the consequences of their activities and to ask themselves if these are of the desirable high-reward, low-risk variety or vice versa.

He tells them it is a good idea to look and see if they are doing things because they really want to. This way they can resist peer pressure, he said.

"THE GOOD accomplished is that students moved in the direction of a thoughtful appraisal of what life is," he said.

The new focus of drug abuse prevention is a value directed education which slimmon can teach classroom teachers to use in a week, he said.

"If you start in fifth and sixth grades, you won't have to be telling them hard hitting facts about drugs' effects on their brain cells and livers when they are in high school," said the educator.

To the women at the church Slimmon said that one morning workshop certainly will not have changed their lives but that they had done some validating and gotten some ideas of what others were doing with the same situations.

"See if your acts really make you feel good. Values Clarification is a way to look at your actions. Get into a low-risk, high-reward life," he counseled.

GENERATION RAP

RAP:

Sometimes a shy person can become a "new" person just by getting out of the town where people accept him or her as a loser. Especially if he or she changes looks at the same time.

I weighed 260 and had a 46-inch waist, which meant no girls would look at me, the "fat boy." Then my doctor diagnosed my trouble. I went to the hospital for an operation and treatment. Came out less than two months later weighing 175 pounds, with a 34-inch waist. Since recovery was almost immediate, I had no period of readjustment to my fairly slim self.

So I bought a bunch of new clothes and took a three-day trip to a city 240 miles from my home. There I listened to how girls reacted to me, and discovered I could "act my weight" around people who never knew I had been fat and unpopular.

Then I came home and kept on acting — until I actually became the new me. I never once allowed anyone to think of me as I formerly was — good old fat, funny no-change Charlie. So now, I'm popular, because my new weight gave me a better self-image and a new personality.

What I mean is, you shy people, change one thing about yourselves, and believe in yourselves, and you'll become, like me, a — REGULAR GUY

RAP:

My mother and I argue about how to pronounce "wash." She puts an "r" into it. The dictionary pronounces it "wosh," and I say "Waash."

What do you two say? — ARGUMENTATIVE

DEAR A.:

I say "warsh," which may be wrong but I don't plan to change.

And no, I'm not a midwesterner: it's just that when you put an "r" in "wash," it sounds more efficient — as if you're scrubbing clothes instead of wishing them clean. — HELEN

P.S. Sue says "waash."

DEAR RAP:

Here's a warning for girls of any age.

Today a man jumped out of the bushes, indecently exposed, and muttered disgusting things at me. I was calm, because this has happened before. I walked quickly to the nearest house and asked that the police be called. I described the man when the police arrived, and while they didn't catch him this time, they'll be alerted when he tries it again.

I would just like to say, if this happens, don't get hysterical. Just scream for help if he advances toward you (which he probably won't), and get away fast. Remember, he's sick. It isn't anything you did, and you don't have to feel unclean or degraded. Above all, don't blame all men for what one or two deranged people do. Psychopathic exhibitionists are usually harmless. Rapists aren't!

If a man tries to grab you, fight to hurt and hurt bad. Remember the knee kick to the groin, or the fingernails in the eyes. And don't be afraid to inflict injury. After all, he's out to rape you, and that's injury of the worst kind. But if he has a knife or gun — well, your life is more important than something you can forget.

Mainly, don't walk in deserted areas unless you know karate or have a big vicious dog with you. — LEARNED MY LESSON

SOME GOOD TIPS

How To Organize A Child's Clutter

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEW YORK — If you want to help children organize their clutter and their clothes, here are a few ideas.

One busy mother in the Midwest was constantly finding her small son's clothes heaped in a pile in the corner of his closet. It seemed too much trouble for him to hang them up — even on lowered wall hooks.

One day, on a trip to a local hardware store she spotted a plain wooden folding clothes rack. Installing it in her son's closet, she arranged his folded clothes on the dowels, so he could easily see what he had, and what he wanted to wear.

She instructed him how to hang his clothes back on the dowels, after he took them off. The idea has worked beautifully, and there are no more piles in the corner.

ONE ARTIST and her husband suggest a no-clutter closet, like the one shown here, for a small boy.

They would divide a normal closet with two upright plywood partitions from a lumberyard, and section off the last portion into cubbyholes to keep sports equipment immediately available for the reaching.

They would provide two 41-inch high unfinished furniture units to stand side by side and to provide reachable storage for socks, underwear, rock and game collections. They would paint the drawers in different colors and label them as contents.

In that space above the chests that is too high for small children to reach, they would hang garment bags to store out-of-season clothes. Noncurrent books would be put on top shelves until needed.

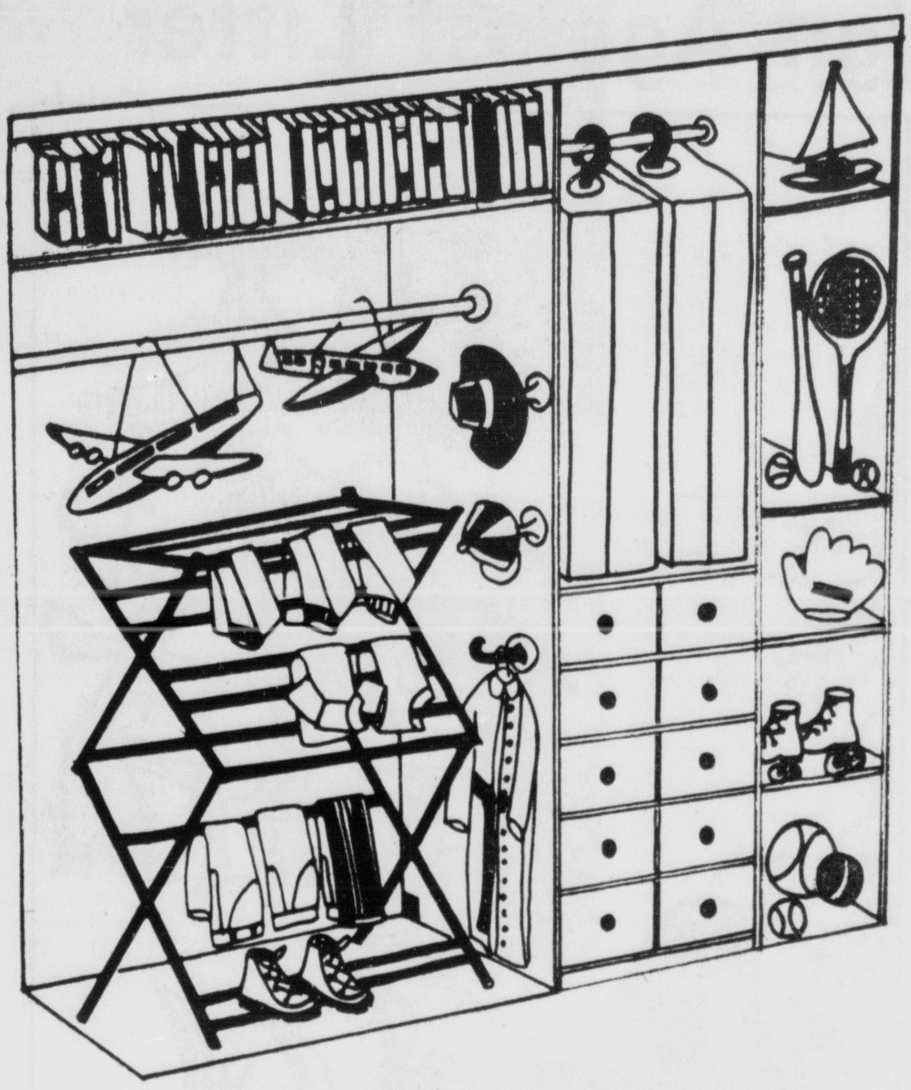
It doesn't take many dollars to organize a closet, and it simplifies life for both children and parents.

CONSIDER THE versatility of an old steamer trunk, which can be found at Salvation Army and Goodwill stores, or at secondhand shops. With a little paint and paper, a few decals, and some added plywood shelves, they can serve as toy chests.

The drawers provide ample storage for small games and toys. Drawer knobs can be surrounded with brightly colored petal decals from a local dimestore. You can paint the old trunk, inside and out, in colors that go with your child's room, or playroom. Or wallpaper parts of it, or trim it with Con-Tact paper.

The erstwhile hanging space of the trunk can be quietly converted to shelf space.

Simply measure the area, think about the specific things you want to put on the shelves — such as a lightweight phonograph, records, dolls, balls, then have a lumberyard cut thin plywood shelves to fit.



Have small pieces of wood cut to hold the shelves, and glue them in place. Lay shelves on top, a plan which makes them easily removable, and changeable. Shelves can be painted, or covered with an adhesive type paper.

Such a trunk turned toy chest can be a hand-me-down in a family of children. Actually, many an old steamer trunk has grown up with the child, and eventually gone off to college.

Not Only Pumpkins, But Fruit, Nuts

NEW YORK (UPI) — Homes in England and Wales are decorated at Halloween not only with pumpkins but with corn, leaves, grain, fruits, nuts, potatoes and cabbages.

The custom goes back to ancient Druid harvest festivals, and even before that to the Roman autumn feast of Pomona, goddess of the Orchard.

Why Brooms?

NEW YORK (UPI) — One Halloween card asks — "Why do witches ride on brooms?" Answer: "Vacuum cleaners need a long cord and make too much noise."

Mrs. Barr Heads Art, Garden Unit

Mrs. John Barr of Ross has been elected president of the Marin Art and Garden Center Unit of the Junior Theater of Marin.

Mrs. Barr has been an active member of the Junior Theater bofrd and involved also in the cultural arts program at Ross School.

An ardent theater-goer and interested in gourmet cooking, she lives in Ross with her husband and their three children.

She said the unit will hold a summer workshop for children in drama for six weeks and is planning to hold a costume ball at the Meadow Club in February. The aim, she said, is to establish a fund to eventually provide a year around workshop for Marin youngsters interested in theater.

Tonight the unit is welcoming new members with an international gourmet supper at Mrs. Barr's home.

The unit's main project, as in the past, will be to present the summer drama workshop at the Marin Art and Garden Center for children aged 7 to 14, offering acting in a full stage production and the experience of stagecraft, scenery, makeup and costume design.

Avoid Making The Buttonholes Through A Garment's Interfacing

By EUNIE FARMER
(Distributed by Register and Tribune Syndicate)

DEAR EUNICE,

I am about to attempt my first tailored suit with your encouragement. The pattern says to place the interfacing on my fabric and make the bound buttonholes. You always say not to include the interfacing in the buttonholes. If I don't, how will the buttonhole go through this layer of interfacing?

MRS. N.E.D.

DEAR MRS. N.E.D.,

The reason I don't make bound buttonholes through the fabric and the interfacing is because the interfacing will cause the front of your garment to draw up and look puckered. I suggest instead that you use a strip of organdy to stabilize the area for the buttonholes. After they have been made, you may remove the organdy by clipping it away carefully from around each buttonhole.

Next, press the buttonholes on the wrong side of your fabric. Then, place the interfacing over the buttonholes and baste in place. From the right side of the garment, stick a pin in each of the four corners of your buttonhole. This will be a guide of where to cut the interfacing on the back. Cut it away slightly farther than the pins. Bring your welts through to the back of the interfacing.

You will love this method because it keeps the buttonholes from making a mark when the garment is pressed. Also, it keeps the interfacing in place.

If you would like a free copy of my leaflet "Bound Buttonholes" please send a self-address, stamped long envelope to Eunice Farmer in care of this newspaper with your request. You will love my step-by-step, easy-to-follow directions.

DEAR EUNICE,

I have a problem that I hope you can help me with. Most everything I make ends up with a fold of extra fabric above the bustline, otherwise the garments fit perfectly. Is there anything I can do to eliminate this?

MRS. L.B.

DEAR MRS. L.B.,

Many of my readers have sent in this same question. I shall try to give you an answer that is reasonable to most of you. It is very difficult to answer fitting problems without seeing the woman.

Some women have a higher bustline than others. If they are large besides, this could cause a fold of fabric to form because there is too much space between the shoulder and the bustline.

I would suggest taking a fold in your pattern just below the neckline, straight across the pattern from the armhole to the front edge. The fold would possibly be one-fourth inch deep, which would take out one-half inch of fabric. I doubt if you would need more eliminated than that.

Now that you have eliminated the excess fabric, you must remember to lower the armhole to its original depth so the pattern will fit the back.

There is one other reason for this fold of extra fabric. Your bustline darts could be too high for you.

Be sure they do not extend above the fullest part of the bust. If you are large, they should end about ½ inch below the tip of the bust. It's amazing how the correct placement of darts can affect the fitting of a garment. It's worth a try because once you find out the real problem, you will automatically adjust each pattern in the same way.

DEAR EUNICE,

Since pleats are so fashionable in today's picture; both for skirts and dresses, I am wondering how to make my pleats look nice and sharp. They don't seem to press as well as they should.

MARTHA Z.

DEAR MARTHA,

The pleats would definitely be determined by the fabric you are using. When you decide for sure on your fabric, you must choose the right pattern. All fabrics will not work successfully with pleats.

It is best to select woven fabrics rather than knits for pleats.

Woven fabrics may be pressed lightly with your steam iron. Be cautious when pressing on the right side of the fabric. It's best to have your garment professionally pressed so that the pleats will remain almost permanent.

In many instances, the pattern will look just as well with a softer, unpressed effect. This is especially advisable for soft jersies and knits of any kind. The construction would be the same with the exception of the pressing. This is all a matter of individual preference. In any case, check the pattern and the fabric and decide the effect you want.

A New Perfume On The Market

The manufacturer says a new perfume "captures the delicate sensuality of real flowers in a passion-compelling fragrance." Jovan, the perfume house, calls it "very special perfume" — VSP, for short.

Though the perfume is patterned after the world's costliest perfumes, according to the manufacturer, it will sell at an "unheard of" low price for costly perfume — $5 for a one-third ounce bottle. That comes to $15 an ounce. Costly perfume goes for over twice that.

The manufacturer also says: "The woman who wants real romance will find VSP's flower power a heady blend of shyness and sensuality."

Where Halloween Derived Its Name

NEW YORK (UPI) — The name Halloween means the evening before All Hallow or All Saints' Day, Nov. 1.

Although now known as the eve of the Christian festival, Halloween long antedates Christianity. In ancient days it was believed that of all nights in the year Halloween was the one when ghosts and witches were most likely to wander.

Jack O'Lanterns Started In Ireland

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jack O'Lanterns at Halloween started centuries ago in Ireland, according to Flora Mears, a designer of seasonal decorations for a greeting card company.

An Irishman named Jack O'Grady, so the story goes, could not enter heaven because of his miserly nature. On Halloween he was turned out of hell for tricking the devil. Since then, says the myth, Jack has wandered the earth with his lantern, appearing to human eyes only at Halloween.

Campaign Against Litter

They Call Him Beer Can Bill

By ERNEST DOUGLAS

The Christian Science Monitor News Service

PAYSON, Ariz. — Beside a sweep of mountain road a small, red Toyota truck comes to a halt, almost invisible under the shade of the towering ponderosa pines.

From the driver's seat steps a little wisp of a man, a black plastic bag in either hand.

He proceeds along the roadside, tramping between the trees or pushing oak brush aside to pick up cans, bottles, candy wrappers, and other litter tossed from passing cars. The cans are thrust into one bag, all else into the other.

After a quarter-mile of this trash collecting, the man crosses to the opposite side and works back toward the truck. When he is even with it, he deposits both bags in the truck body, takes two empty bags, and repeats his performance in the other direction.

Then he drives half a mile farther and stops again.

The man is William E. Smelzer, known to his Payson-area neighbors as Beer Can Bill because, once every week, he hauls a load of cans to an aluminum recycling plant at Phoenix, over 100 miles from his home! The rest of the litter he gathers is disposed of at the Payson dump.

Arizona has no more effective ecologist than he. He keeps the roadsides of the Payson district, in the Tonto National Forest, reasonably clean.

But he doesn't regard himself as an ecologist, an environmentalist, or even a conservationist. He insists that he is "only a trash picker-upper."

When Smelzer retired in 1964, after 30 years as an extruder operator at the Reynolds Metal Co.'s aluminum plant in Phoenix, he and Mrs. Smelzer moved just outside of Payson.

They delighted in the summer coolness of this rugged country, 5,000 feet above sea level. They loved the pines and oaks and firs, the squirrels and the jaybirds, even the little striped skunks that roamed at night through East Verde Park.

But the Payson country already had been discovered by the people of Phoenix and other lowland cities. Its "development" was under way, and motor traffic was heavy, especially on Sundays.

"And it seemed," Smelzer recalls, "that everybody who drove up here drank something and when his can or bottle was empty, out of the car window it went. If they didn't have a can or bottle to throw, they threw some other rubbish. They didn't know, or maybe didn't care, what they were doing to the natural beauty of the Tonto Forest."

One morning, after the Smelzers were settled in their new home, Smelzer undertook to clean up a stretch of the road from East Verde Park to Payson. Afterwards it looked so much better that he began on another stretch the next day. Since then he hasn't stopped. He averages 70 miles a day in expeditions to mountain settlements such as Pine, Strawberry, and Sunflower.

At first all expenses of his extraordinary hobby were met out of his own pocket, even to replacement of his old worn-out truck with the red Toyota.

In 1970, when Reynolds set up its aluminum-reclamation facility and set 10 cents a pound as its price for used cans, he began to separate cans from the other refuse.

Since then he has delivered a full Toyota-load of 700 pounds once every summer week, and almost as often in winter. In the first seven months of 1973 his deliveries totaled over four million cans.

And what does he do with the $70 a week he receives for aluminum scrap?

He keeps six Little League teams of the Payson neighborhood in aluminum bats and other baseball equipment.

He is a member of the Tonto Soil Conservation District board, and if it has some special project on hand that can be financed out of the "tin-can treasury," it is so financed. He also is affiliated with several other conservation groups that he helps from time to time.

Hayakawa Says Demonstrations Thing Of Past

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Students on college campuses are turning their attention to books rather than demonstrations, Dr. S.I. Hayakawa said Thursday night.

"Student unrest has gone out of style," Hayakawa of Mill Valley, former president of San Francisco State University told students at the University of Nevada, Las Vegas.

He said some students in the late 1960s felt pressures that they should be protesting something, but now most have turned to books in hopes of finding an answer to social problems.

"Students now are much more concerned about social injustice, civil rights and other problems, so they are studying to find the answers, rather than turning to violent protest," he said.

Conversion Of Hospital Is Endorsed

A plan to convert a Novato alcoholic rehabilitation hospital to a facility which will provide long term care for mental patients has been endorsed by a committee appointed by the Comprehensive Health Planning Council of Marin.

The decision, which came after a public hearing on the proposal Thursday, clears the way for the council to vote on the conversion at its Nov. 14 meeting. Final decision on the application is expected to be made Nov. 27 by the Bay Area Comprehensive Health Planning Council.

Applicant for a change in license is the Canyon Manor Convalescent Hospital, 655 Canyon Road. It asked for a change in status from 62 skilled nursing beds and 17 alcoholism beds to 80 beds for mental patients.

The panel however recommended that only 76 beds be approved, saying there was not enough space for more.

Four citizens living in the neighborhood expressed concern at the hearing that the patients might present a danger to the community, according to Joan Ripple, executive director of the Comprehensive Health council.

As a result, the committee asked hospital administrators to explain their security system to concerned neighbors.

Field Plans At Redwood

By LEW CODDINGTON

The future of Redwood High School's football field — and indeed of the entire physical education complex of which it is a part — is now in the hands of the Tamalpais High School District Board.

After efforts which began five years ago and intensified in the last few months, persons connected with Redwood athletics have convinced the district of the hazards of the field, and the need for improvements.

Temporary improvements are being made now, but the long-range problem must be solved in the school is to have a field next year.

According to a report submitted by the board by Redwood principal Donald Kreps, it is feasible to place a new football field on a part of the athletic complex to the west of the present field. Cost is estimated by the egineering firm of Hoffman and Albritton of San Rafael, which prepared the report, at $85,000.

MOST LIKELY source of the money will be an increase in the "override tax," according to district administrative assistant Edward J. Neumeier. The district is permitted to levy a tax of five cents but is presently levying only three cents, and therefore is allowed to raise it two cents, which under current assessed valuation would yield approximately $80,000. The money would be available July 1.

Funds in the district's special reserves which had been earmarked for improvements in the field were allocated instead to purchase portable classrooms for the district's continuation school, a special school for part-time students who have been suspended from regular classes or who work part time.

The board took that action at its Sept. 25 meeting, after learning that the state required the classrooms be in use by Nov. 30 to conform with provisions of the Field Act, the state's earthquake safety law.

THE SCHOOL previously had been housed in rented quarters on Tamal Vista Drive in Corte Madera, but was to be moved to a site on the northwest edge of the Redwood campus.

It's hard to argue with a decision to conform to state earthquake safety standards, especially since an alternative method of solving Redwood's problem is provided, but the question arises as to why the board waited as long as it did before responding to Redwood's problem. The answer is that, despite statements by persons associated with Redwood beginning five years ago, the board was not convinced of the gravity of the problem until recently.

When Supt. Robert D. Torrey volunteered to inspect the field and make an executive decision on the matter, the board agreed, and following an inspection Tuesday, Torrey said the field should not be used for football, and ordered work crews out to make it safe for other activities.

Since then, Redwood athletic director Al Endriss said, rocks and stones on the field have been picked up; the splintered, jagged boards around the inside perimeter of the track have been replaced; exposed sprinkler heads have been removed; and topsoil has been placed in low-lying areas to level the field.

The football teams now are practicing in the soccer field and the right field area of the baseball diamond. The soccer team, whose practices do not cause players to fall to the ground as much, will practice on the football field. This season's varsity, junior varsity and freshman football games have been switched to the visiting team's field or to Tamalpais High, the only other suitable field in the district.

(Drake High has a field with an acceptable surface, but lack of room for bleachers prevents its use for varsity games. The J.V.s and frosh use it. No field at any other Marin County Athletic League school, incidentally, has an unsuitable surface at the present time, according to commissioner George Corson.)

THOUGH ENDRISS said he first complained by letter about the condition of the freshman and J.V. baseball fields in 1968, the situation did not reach its peak until this fall, when it became apparent that reseeding of the previous spring would not cover the field with grass, despite the fact that teams and P.E. classes stayed off it all spring and summer, according to Endriss.

Injuries began piling up. By Endriss' count, five injuries were attributable to the field in 1972 and eight in 1973, including junior varsity receiver Chuck Hall, who was hurt twice, and whose father, Kenneth, wrote a letter to the board complaining of the field's dangers, which the board heard Oct. 1.

Spurred by the Hall letter, and by personal appearances by Endriss and Kreps, the board has begun to move. Its actions in the next few weeks will be crucial.

OVER SAN RAFAEL

Terra Linda Victorious

By LEW CODDINGTON

Playing as if the football were as hard to handle as the cumbersome but coveted Bell, San Rafael High School saw three ruinous fumbles turned into touchdowns in a 21-16 loss to Terra Linda last night.

The bobbles negated a fiery second-half rally by the Bulldogs, who scored with 2:04 left in the game and had another (albeit slim) shot before time ran out.

The victory before an estimated 2,700 fans at San Rafael High enabled the Trojans to retain the Bell, symbol of intra-city supremacy donated by the San Rafael Police Department, for another year.

It alo gave Terra Linda a 2-1 Marin County Athletic League record and a 3-3 overall mark, compared to San Rafael's 1-2 and 3-3.

"We were lucky," said Trojan coach Don Lucas afterward. "They made those fumbles, and we scored on them."

In fact, Terra Linda had a 14-0 lead almost before the ticket-takers were free to turn around and watch. Quarterback Kevin Kirby drilled a 23-yard scoring pass to tight end Jay Love with 4:28 left in the first quarter after linebacker Jon Kagleas had recovered a Bulldog bobble, and on San Rafael's next offensive play, cornerback Harry Bolton scooper up another fumble and ran 27 yards for a score.

Upset but not unraveled, San Rafael came back after halftime on a 40-yard run by quarterback Dave Steele. In the fourth quarter, however, Terra Linda safety Bob Gelardi recovered another fumble on the San Rafael 12 to set up a six-yard scoring screen pass from Kirby to his brother Mike with 7:04 left. Mike, a sophomore, replaced injured Cam Leith, who did not play.

Gelardi caught four passes for 80 yards from his wide receiver spot, punted eight times for a 32-yard average, intercepted a pass to end San Rafael's final bid, and was named the game's most valuable player.

San Rafael's Steele put the ball up 16 times in the fourth period, including seven passes on a 57-yard scoring march which ended on a three-yard touchdown run by Craig Saunders with 2:04 left.

Novato Whips Tam In Football

Novato and Tamalpais high schools entered yesterday's football game with identical overall records (2-3), identical league records (0-1) and similar losing streaks, but there was no semblance of equality on the field.

Novato scored touchdowns on its first two offensive series and went on to defeat the Indians, 28-0, before a crowd of 475 persons in Mill Valley, to end its own three-game losing streak and extend Tam's loss skein to three games.

"We won the game, and that's the important thing, but we're going to have to do better when we play Redwood," said Novato coach Al Scott, looking forward to Saturday's meeting with the Marin County Athletic League-leading Giants.

Aided by four penalties on Tam, Novato marched 58 yards after the opening kickoff to score on a three-yard run by tailback Mark Magers.

Following a Tam punt, the Hornets went 73 yards in 10 plays to tally on a four-yard pass from quarterback Mike Moroski to tailback Mark Reagan, both starters.

There was more of the same after intermission. A 53-yard, 13-play march resulted in a one-yard sneak by Moroski on the first series of the third quarter. In the final period, Tam passed from punt formation on fourth and 51 on its own 10, and defensive back Barry Mangan intercepted and returned 15 yards for a touchdown.

Novato kept the ball on the ground, gaining 172 yards in 48 carries by eight backs, including fullback Mark Lipe, who limped off the field with a first-half leg injury. Les Nicolini led with 55 yards in eight tries, while Lipe had 43 in nine and Magers 37 in 13.

By contrast, Tam had a total

Marin Academy Wins

SAN FRANCISCO — Hunt Conrad scored three goals and Bill Spencer and Terry Finley added single tallies yesterday at Marin Academy (5-3-1 overall) improved its Bay Counties League soccer record to 2-2 with a 5-0 victory over Lick-Wilmerding in Golden Gate Park.

MARIN BENEFIT LAUDED

Fighters 'Doing Own Thing'

By RON LENT

Former ring champions Archie Moore and Henry Clark claimed that last night's first Redwood Empire Amateur Boxing Show in the College of Marin gymnasium showed how their sport can build bodies and characters of young combatants.

Moore, the erstwhile light-heavyweight king, said that the youthful pugilists participating in the San Rafael Jaycees — sponsored benefit for the Central Marin Boys' Club were learning "self sufficiency. Boxing and Boys' Clubs are helpful in teaching people to function in society."

Clark, state heavyweight champion from 1966 to 1972, pointed out that "this type of show gives boys a chance to do their thing. It keeps them off the streets."

Last night, the gloved gladiators "did their thing" and were rewarded with constant whistling and clapping from the estimated 350 onlookers gathered on a drizzly evening.

All 12 jousts stirred positive response during the nearly three-hour program — the first locally in 40 years — sanctioned by the California State Athletic Commission.

Of the three, two-minute round bouts, the Barry Davison-Nino Mildonado battle was one of the most exciting. San Rafael's Davison, 144 pounds, knocked down his Modesto rival in the opening stanza. The slugging Marinite flurried continuously during the first two rounds but punched himself out. His on rushing foe, meanwhile, rallied with effective body blows. Mildonado's late surge gave the 143 pounder the decision.

The Wayne Beale-Ronny De Afley encounter represented supervised warfare. The stylish Beale from San Diego, managed by Moore, could not ward off the bullish tactics of De Afley. The muscular 146-pound De Afley lowered his head and charged into his slender, 147-pound foe, forcing referee Jack Campbell to break up numerous clinches plagued by pushing and shoving reminiscent of wrestling. The tough De Afley earned the decision prompting the disappointed Beale to weep in the dressing room.

No tears were shed when popular Kevin Reilly, 133, of Santa Rosa got the nod over Bob Pack, 134, of Kentfield. The powerful Marinite started fast in the opening frame and rallied in the third, but Reilly

Schlee Prefers Longer Layout

NAPA, Calif. (UPI) —John Schlee has a six birdie string on the back nine of the Silverado Country Club's south course, but he much prefers the longer north layout.

If that's the case, the remaining 69 players left in the $150,000 Kaiser International Open might as well head for home. The north course is where the final two rounds will be played.

After an opening round 66 on the 6,819-yard north course Thursday, Schlee, winner of the Hawaiian Open, ripped off six birdies yesterday on the par 37 10th through 18th holes where he started the round.

He bogeyed two of the next three holes, but came up with a birdie on his 17th (8th hole) to wind up with 66-67--133 and a one stroke lead going into the third round over young Ed Sneed.

Sneed, a lesser known Ohio State product who hasn't won on the Professional Golfers Association tour but took the Australian New South Wales Tournament last week, shot a 66 to stand alone at 134. Ex-Colorado football player Hale Irwin also carded a six-under 66 for third place at 135.

Grier Jones, the first round leader with a 65, managed even par and that put him in a three-way tie for fourth at 137 with Forrest Fezler and John Schroeder.

"I felt super human out there for a few holes," Schlee said of yesterday's six birdie performance. "Being 12 under after just 27 holes is highly unusual.

"I'm actually glad to get off the south course with that score," he added. "It's a course you really have to play with your mind. I like the north course because it's laid out for a long, precision hitter."

A seven under par 65 by Tom Watson put him with seven others at 138. The group included Miller Barber, who took a rain-abbreviated Kaiser five years ago, Rod Curl, Dave Eichelberger, John Mahaffey, Babe Hiskey, Bobby Cole and pre-tournament favorite Johnny Miller, who despite a headache shot a 68.

A's Green Against 2nd Base Platooning

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

OAKLAND (AP) — Dick Green is the regular second baseman for the Oakland A's. Well, as regular as a second baseman as can be for owner Charles O. Finley. Finley likes his second baseman in platoons.

Finley suggested last year to Oakland manager Dick Williams that because none of the A's four second basemen was a good hitter, they should be rotated, using pinch-hitters as early as the first inning if runs were in scoring position.

Naturally, none of the second basemen were enthralled with the plan. Williams thought it was a good idea and used it successfully. This past season, the manager started out with the same maneuver, but the A's fell behind in the Western Division race, and Williams junked the second base game of musical chairs. He gave Green the job — almost.

Green is still lifted for a pinch-hitter early, but not as often as before. The 32-year-old native of Iowa, who now lives in Piedmont, S.D., says:

"It's just as bad. I still only play two or three times at bat. For a couple of weeks, I'll be in the lineup, then the first time I come to bat, out. But that's Mr. Finley, not Williams."

Green says he has complained, but to no avail.

"It's not right to do it that way," says the 5-foot-10 infielder. "I don't care which one of us second basemen plays as long as he plays his innings, or gets his chance at bat. You really can't play that way and get the feel of the game. We're cold in the field and the pinch hitter is cold at bat. It has failed miserably."

That's what happened during the first half of the 1973 season was that the fielders weren't fielding and the pinch-hitters weren't hitting, just as Green indicated. So Williams junked it — partially.

As the regular second base-

Sanders In New Role As Harvard Coach

By DAVE LANGWORTHY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — It was New York University which gave Satch Sanders, possibly the best defensive forward in the history of basketball, to the Boston Celtics and the National Basketball Association. Now the pros are returning the compliment, with a slight geographical twist.

Guess who's coming to dinner as Harvard basketball coach this year? Sanders, that's who. And he already looks right at home with the rest of the Crimson brain trust.

Satch called it quits as a pro when he fell out of stride with the Celtics' constant running attack. The C's were to retire his familiar No. 16 before their game on Oct. 12 against the Buffalo Braves.

He saw spot duty, but actually spent most of his last two seasons at the end of the bench — looking like the Sheik of Araby with a towel headdress. He played more basketball in his head than on the court.

"I guess I was preparing," he says from behind his desk at Harvard. "I was almost sure I never wanted to coach, but then I got to thinking, 'I wonder how I would do?' I had some alternatives — business and the like — but I finally realized that basketball was the one thing in which I had some proven competence.

"Besides, after all those years around Red Auerbach, I figured some of the magic had to rub off."

At 35, Satch is 13 years and eight NBA championships removed from the mistakes of college basketball. In fact, the only National Collegiate Athletic Association action he's seen in the last decade has been the John Wooden-UCLA show at the national championships, and a couple of films of last year's Harvard games. But that doesn't mean he's neutral on the subject of how to coach in college.

"I look at basketball as a part of the college curriculum. At Harvard it's sort of a "minor" minor. And personally, I think the teaching aspect has to come first. I think knowledgeable ballplayers equal winning teams."

The man many considered one of the finest ever to wave a hand in an opponent's face is professorial in his approach to coaching.

He regularly arrives at the office at 9 a.m. and has to set two briefcases down before he can think about unlocking the door. The only reminder of his playing days is a Celtics' duffle-bag and a pair of green sneakers piled in the corner of the room.

"Playing and coaching are so different," he explains. "As a player, you're interested in what you can do man-to-man.

NBA ROUNDUP

Midwest Flag Battle Looms

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

A rugged battle is shaping up in the National Basketball Association's Midwest Division but Milwaukee is holding the early lead after a tense game against Detroit.

Milwaukee has Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who can dominate any game when he puts his mind and 7-foot-2 body to it, and must therefore be considered the favorite in the four-team division. But Detroit has Bob Lanier and the Pistons, who also have considerable strength in the backcourt with Dave Bing and up front with Curtis Rowe, are solid contenders.

Milwaukee is off to a quick start with a 4-1 record after Curtis Perry's layup with 21 seconds left choked off the last Detroit threat for a 96-94 Bucks' victory last night. Detroit, by contrast, is only 2-3 but it has shown signs of being very strong. Abdul-Jabbar paced Milwaukee with 20 points but was outscored by Lanier's 28.

Chicago certainly will be in the thick of the Midwest fight and the Bulls showed their explosiveness again last night with a 117-103 rout of the Caqital Bullets. Bob Love, the Bulls' leading scorer, got 16 of his 33 points in the second half and Norm Van Lier netted 17 in the same span enroute to a 29-point night. Phil Chenier led the Bullets with 36 points.

In other NBA games, boston romped over Philadelphia 133-102, New York edged Cleveland 92-90, Los Angeles ripped Seattle 118-91 and Portland downed Kansas City-Omaha 111-99.

Eight Celtics scored in double figures and three reserves combined for 58 points as Boston ripped Philadelphia.

Dave DeBusschere tossed in 17 of his 24 points in the second half to spark the Knicks to their slim win over Cleveland. Austin Carr led the Cavs with 28 points.

Gail Goodrich pumped in 28 points and Jerry West added 18 points and 13 assists Los Angeles scored its 20th straight victory at home against the Sonics.

Portland held KC-Omaha's Nate Archibald to 21 points and Geoff Petrie and Sidney Wick scored 25 and 22 points respectively as the Trail Blazers beat the Kings.

Leesman Bowls A 752 Series In Greenbrae

Greenbrae's Rich Leesman Thursday night bowled a 752 series at Greenbrae Lanes — tops in Marin County kegler league action last week.

The 1973 Marin County Men's Masters Bowling Tournament runnerup had games of 240, 258 and 254 in the 910 Scratch League. It was his best performance at Greenbrae Lanes.

SAN RAFAEL'S Orlando Conti turned in a creditable 743 series Tuesday night in the 905 Classic at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. He had games of 234, 243 and 266.

Ex-Champ Ali Decisions Foe In 12 Rounds

JAKARTA (UPI) — Former heavyweight champion Muhammed Ali warmed up for his rematch with Joe Frazier when he easily decisioned Dutch champion Rudi Lubbers over 12 rounds Saturday at the Jakarta Soccer Stadium.

Ali, 31, kept Lubbers backpedaling through most of the fight and appeared in excellent shape despite a short 11-day training period.

Ali, who lost his title for allegedly dodging the draft, will meet ex-champion Frazier at Madison Square Garden in a grudge match Jan. 28. Ali has only two losses in his professional career — one to Frazier and one to Ken Norton, whom he later defeated.

Lubbers, who trained nine months for the chance to meet Ali, showed flashes of aggressiveness and a willingness to slug it out with Ali, who outweighed him by 21 pounds.

Ali kept control almost the entire fight, jabbing Lubbers with a straight left and connecting with several series of damaging combinations that constantly backed Lubbers into the ropes and corners and several times knocked out his mouthpiece.

"I was slow and he was very good," said Lubbers after the fight. "There's no doubt about it, He's the best." Lubbers had a slight cut on his forehead and was slightly puffy in the face.

The results of the three judges who watched the fight declared Ali the unanimous winner, but the actual point count was not announced.

"He is a very good fighter," Ali said after the fight that was witnessed by 20,000 fans at the open-air stadium where temperatures were in the mid-80s.

There were no knockdowns in the 12-round fight, but Lubbers suffered a persistent nose bleed beginning in the eighth round.

Lubbers, realizing he needed a knockout to win, rushed out of his corner before the bell sounded for the final round and had to be held back by the referee. When the round began, however, Ali immediately took the offensive, backing Lubbers into a corner and tearing at him with solid lefts and rights. Ali, who seemed to gain energy as the fight progressed, was the fresher of the two as the final bell sounded.

Ali walked back to his corner swiftly without even congratulating Lubbers while the Dutchman walked around the ring holding both hands in the air, happy that he had lasted the distance.

Ali weighed 216 pounds to Lubbers' 195.

Ali, 31, won the world championship in 1963 but the title was taken away after he was accused of draft dodging. He went into retirement for four years before starting his comeback.

Since then he has lost two fight — to Joe Frazier and Ken Norton, whom he has since defeated in a rematch. He meets Frazier for a second time on Jan. 28 in New York.

Lubbers, 28, has been fighting professionally for 3 ½ years and has lost only one fight. He was defeated on points by European champ Joe Bunger last January.

Funds for the completed projects totaled $919,513.

ABA ACTION

East Division Has Frontcourt Power

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

Certain trends are becoming evident as the young American Basketball Association season matures and coaches juggle lineups in search of winning combinations. October is still a time for experimentation.

For example, it is developing that the race in the East Division will largely revolve around the teams whose forwards and centers are strongest. Those are the positions at which four of the five teams in the division feel most solid.

In times of trouble, Kentucky goes to Dan Issel or Artis Gilmore, New York goes to Julius Erving or Billy Paultz, Carolina looks to Billy Cunningham or Tom Owens and Virginia looks for George Gervin. Memphis is looking for anyone.

Kentucky, never really threatened last night by Carolina, again relied on the high-powered scoring of 6-foot 9 Issel, who connected for 30 points and paced the undefeated Colonels to their fourth victory, 121-109, over the Cougars, defending champions in the East.

Issel is second only to New York's Erving in scoring in the league. Erving again was the key man for the Nets last night as they brought their record to 3-1 with a 101-88 victory over Mexphis.

Nets Coach Kevin Loughery called his team's performance, "one of our worst this year" and said he was "very happy" to escape with the victory. Two dozen turnovers by the Tams in the second and third periods as the Nets gambled successfully on defense proved to be the difference.

Erving was not the highest scoring Net for the first time this season as Paultz hit for 24 points, one more than Erving and two more than guard John Roche. In the second quarter, Paultz and Erving led the Nets' fast break as they recovered from a 37-30 disadvantage to go into halftime leading 50-45.

Former Net forward George Carter took over the scoring duties from Gervin for the Squires and, with 27 points, led Virginia to a 105-93 triumph over San Antonio. Rookie center Swen Nater, trying to come into his own after playing in Bill Walton's shadow at UCLA, contributed 17 points for Virginia. Rich Jones paced San Antonio with 20 points.

Guards James Jones and Ron Boone spearheaded a fourth period rally that carried Utah to a come-from-behind 106 victory over Indiana. Veteran center Zelmo Beaty returned to the Stars after a contract dispute but did not play a significant role in their victory. Willie Wise led Utah with 33 points.

Warren Jabali hit 22 points and reserve center Mike Green scored 17 in the second half to lead the Denver Rockets to a 113-100 victory over San Diego. San Diego was led by Stew Johnson, who had 23 points, and rookie guard Dwight Lamar, who contributed 21.

Raiders Try To Keep Perfect Monday TV Mark

OAKLAND (UPI)—The Oakland Raiders will be trying to make it 5-for-5 on Monday night television when they call on the Denver Broncos.

The rookie and the recordsetting veteran who handle the Rauders' kicking could be the key figures in the contest, which finds Oakland favored by five points.

Ray Guy figures to almost orbit his punts and kickoffs in the light air of Denver and George Blanda, with a lifetime record of 299-for-579, could well hit his record-setting number 300 in this one, since opposing kickers are a perfect 15-for-15 against the Brgncs.

Blanda and center Jim Otto will also be playing in their 188th consecutive game, tying the record set by former offensive tackle Forrest Gregg of Green Bay.

Attles Disappointed By Warriors' Playing

OAKLAND (UPI)—Coach Al Attles, who glowed with optimism after an unbeaten exhibition season, now says his Golden Stwte Warriors are "not consistent in our offense, and to make matters worse, our defense is non-existent."

The Warriors are 1-2, with both losses coming to Milwaukee, as they move into tonight's 8 o'clock Coliseum Arena battle with the Nate Archibald-led Kansas City-Omaha Kings.

SANDERS

But you're dealing with the whole picture when you coach.

"I'm not going to be one of those guys who says 'do as the coach does.' I'm not gonna run around the court all through practice and try to keep up with the team. Sure, I'll demonstrate the fundamentals, but I really think I'll do most of my coaching from the sidelines. I can get a better picture sitting and observing."

Satch hasn't given the Ivy League title fight much thought yet, saying that predictions would be premature at this point. But he knows there's talent around the league because Phil Hankinson, a Pennsylvania product, is filling a vacancy with the Celtics this season.

Although he's only been away from the pros six months, he says there are already some things he misses about the nomadic NBA life. But not what you might expect.

"I'm a great people-watcher," Satch explains, "and it's funny but I really miss the opportunity to just look at people — in places like airports."

man for the American League champion A's, Green played in 133 games and had only 322 times at bat. He hit .262 with 42 runs batted in, sharing the job with Ted Kubiak, Mike Andrews and Manny Trillo.

"I don't know whose decision it was to put me out there fulltime in the middle of the season but I was pleased," said Green, who almost retired from baseball after the 1971 season.

He decided to play and was off to a fine start in 1972, when he ruptured a disc. He fooled the doctors and made it back, playing in every game of the A's World Series triumph over Cincinnati. He was outstanding defensively against the Reds and had six hits in the Series, including a double.

Green hasn't gotten a hit in the five games of the Series against the New York Mets. He says the cold weather in New York for the three games stiffened his back. He feels, as do the other slumping Oakland hitters, that the warmer weather of Northern California should help, if he isn't haunted again by Finley's second baseman, then a pinch-hitter, then a new second baseman, another pinch-hitter . . . ad infinitum.

Probe Sought For A's Doctor

Combined AP & UPI

HANFORD, Calif. — Assemblyman Gordon Duffy wants an investigation of the doctor who placed Oakland A's infielder Mike Andrews on the injured list, allegedly at the behest of an angered team owner Charles O. Finley.

The Hanford Democrat yesterday requested an immediate inquiry into the position of team physician Dr. Harry Walker in a telegram to the California Board of Medical Examiners.

"According to news accounts, Dr. Walker certified that a team member, Mike Andrews, was injured and should be placed on the disabled list of players," the telegram read in part. "Later events proved this not to be so. It is alleged Mr. Andrews was coerced into signing his concurrence.

"If these facts are correct, I believe it possible that Dr. Walker is in violation of California law. If a physician incorrectly certifies that an injury exists for a baseball employer, there is no reason to believe that he would not do so in other situations."

Football

ATLANTA — Guard Frank Gallagher has been sent to Minnesota for the $100 waiver price, the Atlanta Falcons said yesterday. The 6-foot-2, 245-pound guard started the first game of the season for the Falcons and played extensively in the next two but had been relegated to the taxi squad for the past two games.

NEW YORK — Tight end Gary Ballman was put on the injured reserved list by the New York Giants yesterday to make room on the roster for returning quarterback Randy Johnson.

FOXORO, Mass. — Running back Paul Gipson yesterday was placed on waivers by the New England Patriots to make room on the roster for quarterback Dick Shiner, who was acquired Thursday on waivers from Atlanta.

Tennis

NEW DELHI — Top-seeded Vijay Amritraj of India yesterday struggled to a 5-7, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 8-6 victory over Paul Ramirez of Mexico in the semifinals of the $25,000 Indian Grand Prix international tennis tournament.

BOCA RATON, Fla. — Top-seeded Chris Evert of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., yesterday eliminated Julie Heldman of London 6-2, 6-4 and moved into the semifinals of a $110,000 women's professional tennis tournament.

Golf

WACO, Tex. — Kathy Whitworth yesterday fired a four-under-par 68 and took the first round lead in the $25,000 Waco Tribune-Herald Ladies Golf Classic.

Goalie Smith Gives Canucks NHL Strength

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

The Vancouver Canucks knew they were stronger in the goal the moment they acquired 6-foot-4 Gary Smith in an off-season trade. Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero now agrees with them.

Smith, 29, turned back 31 of 32 Philadelphia shots as the Canucks edged the Flyers 2-1 in Vancouver's home opener last night before a noisy sell-out crowd of 15,570.

It was the lone National Hockey League contest of the night and it was also the first loss of the season for the Western Division leading Flyers after four straight wins. The Eastern Division leaders, New York, are now the lone unbeaten team and even they have a tie on their record.

The Flyers scored first on Ross Lonsberry's goal but the Canucks took the decision on second period goals by Bryan McSheffrey and Jocelyn Guevremont and Smith played tough in a rough third period to give Vancouver its second win in five tries.

"The Canucks just had to be better with Smith in goal and it showed tonight," said Shero. "They had to be an improved team because they made some good draft choices and their young players from last year have a full season under their belts."

Harmon, Michigan Top Cal Gridders

BERKELEY — It's September, 1940 and the shadow of war is engulfing Europe. The citizens of London have been scurrying underground daily for weeks as the German Air Raiders continue their deadly missions. In Berlin, the Royal Air Force is retalliating with destructive bombings of their own.

At home the war is still an ocean away. The upcoming presidential election has the Republicans driving hard to put Wendell Wilkie in the White House. However, President Franklin Roosevelt is an imposing opponent as he runs for his third straight term.

Here in Berkeley's Memorial Stadium today, there is nobody more imposing than number 98 of the Michigan Wolverines. He is Tom Harmon. He was an All-American halfback last season and 35,000 spectators are out here to see him and his teammates tangle with the University of California Bears.

The Bears are kicking off. It's a long kick. Harmon fields it at the six. He sprints upfield toward the converging Bears. Tom breaks a tackle and then explodes into the open. Nobody will catch him. The Michigan sensation goes 96 yards for a touchdown.

In the second quarter, Cal punts. Harmon catches it at his own 28 yard line. He dodges, weaves and completely dazzles the Bears for a beautiful 72-yard touchdown run.

It's still the second quarter and Michigan has the ball on their own 14. Harmon bolts through the line, breaks into the clear and once again the Bears are in futile chase. This one is an 86-yard touchdown.

Tom Harmon isn't through yet. In the fourth quarter, he makes an eight-yard touchdown run for his fourth of the day.

Michigan easily beats Cal today, 41-0, but the fans leaving this stadium aren't talking about the score. They're talking about amazing number 98, the All-American from Michigan.

Terra Linda Takes Soccer Loop Lead

There are very few problems in athletics that cannot be cured by a little patience and a five-game winning streak.

After Terra Linda High School lost its Marin County Athletic League soccer opener to Redwood, coach Bob Vasser insisted his team was not through, and today the Trojans are in first place following a 7-1 victory over Marin Catholic and the Giants' 3-2 loss to Drake yesterday.

In yesterday's other games, San Marin topped visiting San Rafael, 5-3, and Novato edged host Tamalpais, 2-1.

Steve McCarthy and Bob Vaupen scored three goals each for host Terra Linda (now 5-1), and Mark McCarthy added a single tally.

Drake's Keith Light scored two goals, the second (on an assist from Tom Perkins) breaking a 2-2 tie. "It was a happy occasion," said Drake coach Imants (Easy) Abers. Joe Stevenson had the hosts' other goal, while Manny Natsios scored twice for Redwood (4-2), which dropped its second straight after four opening victories.

Novato (4-2) ended a two-game losing streak and captured its fourth one-goal decision of the year. Fred Angulo scored the go-ahead goal on a header in the first half after Henry Westphal had tallied earlier.

San Marin senior Bruce Smith and sophomore Tom Abelew scored twice each and Mike Linder had the other goal. The Mustangs went ahead, 3-0, but saw the gap narrowed to 4-3 before Abelew completed the scoring.

STANDINGS

Terra Linda 5-1, Novato 4-2, Redwood 4-2, Drake 3-2-1, San Marin 3-2-1, Tamalpais 2-4, Marin Ctholic 1-5, San Rafael 1-5.

Seals Regain Stewart In Pittsburgh Tonight

PITTSBURGH (UPI) —The California Golden Seals had a couple pieces of good news to cheer them as they readied for their first road game tonight at Pittsburgh.

For one, division leader Phpladelphia tasted defeat for the first time this season Friday at Vancouver which gives both the Seals and Penguins a chance to close within two points of the top with a win here tonight.

Another bit of good tidings for the Seals is the return of Bob Stewart, the Seals' rough policeman on the ice. He was sorely missed when he had to sit out the loss to Philadelphia with a shoulder injury. He'll play with a brace tonight.

Reserve Paul Shakes, called up to fill in for Stewart, has been sent back to Salt Lake City.

Coach Fred Glover is unhappy over the Seals' inability to cash in on the power play. They have managed only two goals in 16 man-advantage situations.

Wembley Hockey Team Defeats Austrians, 5-4

LONDON (UPI) — The Wembley Lions, an affiliate of the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, defeated the Austrian Internationals, 5-4, yesterday in an exhibition match designed to help revive interest in ice hockey in Britain.

An unassisted goal by Nelson Pyatt in the final period provided the margin of victory after the Lions overcame a 3-1 first period deficit by scoring three goals in the second period.

The fight was the liveliest moment in an otherwise lackluster game, watched by a crowd which, for the most part, did not understand what it saw.

Different Saints Team Visits 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—It's a different New Orleans Saints team that goes against the San Francisco 49ers tomorrow at Candlestick Park.

Under new coach John North, the Saints have scrapped the image of being mainly a purely passing team to one of better balance. In Bill Butler and Jess Phillips, New Orleans has two of the league's strongest rushers.

"I think we're finally achieving a balanced attack," said North. "Our in-line and backfield blocking has been excellent and our ball carriers are running awfully hard."

Archie Manning guides the Saints' attack and his favorite receiver is former 49er Jubilee Dunbar. Dunbar has caught seven passes for 179 yards.

Steve Spurrier starts his second straight game at quarterback for the 49ers, who are favored by two touchdowns. But 49er Coach Dick Nolan says this doesn't mean he has forgotten about the 38-year-old John Brodie.

"I have two No. 1 quarterbacks and I'm using them both," said Nolan.

Spurrier will be throwing into a secondary which has already surrendered nine touchdowns. And one of Spurrier's targets will be Danny Abramowicz who used to plague the 49ers when he played for new Orleans.

Oddly, the 49ers have beaten the Saints only once in four games at San Francisco. That was in 1967. Since then, New Orleans has whipped the 49ers once in San Francisco with a pair of 20-20 ties.

New Orleans again appears on the move after posting upset victories over Chicago and Detroit in the past two weeks.

Rams' Jackson Savors Success

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

After four years of trudging through the lower reaches of the National Football League with the Philadelphia Eagles, Harold Jackson is savoring every moment of his new-found success.

Jackson, the 5-foot-10, 175-pound wide receiver who was an NFL receptions leader and was traded to Los Angeles for quarterback Roman Gabriel, has been one of the key offensive weapons for the Rams this season.

He scored four touchdowns last week as the Rams upset the Dallas Cowboys and he'll be the man the Green Bay Packers will be watching tomorrow as Los Angeles attempts to run its record to 6-0.

Jackson, who was called "All World" by Cowboy defensive back Charlie Waters after decimating the Cowboys, will be facing one of the top secondaries in the NFL. The Packers use primarily man-to-man coverage and that means Jackson will go head-to-head against Willie Buchanon, regarded by many as the finest cornerback in the NFL.

Elsewhere in the NFL tomorrow, Buffalo is at Miami, Kansas City at Cincinnati, Philadelphia at Minnesota, Houston at Cleveland, St. Louis at Washington, the New York Giants at Dallas, New England at Chicago, the New York Jets at Pittsburgh, New Orleans at San Francisco, Atlanta at San Diego and Baltimore at Detroit. Oakland is at Denver Monday night.

Buffalo and Miami will battle for the American Football Conference East lead. Both are tied at 4-1 and the Dolphins will try to stop O.J. Simpson, which hasn't been easy this season. Simpson has surpassed the 100-yard mark in all five games, set an NFL single game rushing record with 250 yards in the Bills' opener and is ahead of the season yardage pace for Jim Browns record 1,863 yards.

Minnesota, the other unbeaten club in the NFL, is heavily favored over Philadelphia, which scored its first victory last week, and Kansas City tries to hold its slim lead in the AFC West against Cincinnati, which dumped Pittsburgh from the unbeaten ranks last week.

Houston, with Sid Gillman taking over as head coach for the ousted Bill Peterson, will be in Cleveland to face a Browns team

Casey Has Love For Mets, Yogi

By WILL GRIMSLEY

OAKLAND (AP) — Old Casey Stengel loves the Mets because he's on their payroll but he loves Yogi Berra because he's Yogi.

"If you had three suits, Yogi wouldn't look good in any of them, like me," the crusty, 83-year-old baseball Methuselah says. "Put a bat in his hand, he looks pretty well dressed."

Stengel, winner of seven World Series as manager of the New York Yankees and first skipper of the fledgling and once futile Mets, is crossing the continent to watch every pitch in the ultimate Series between the Mets and Oakland Athletics.

Once manager of the old Oakland Oaks in the Pacific Coast League, the spry and garrulous octogenarian has no mixed loyalties about this World Series.

"Mrs. Payson, Joan Payson, owner of the Mets pays me good money so there's no secret who I'm for," Stengel said here yesterday.

Otd Casey rocked the cradle when the Mets were born in 1962 and he led them until 1965. He is paid $50,000 a year as consultant and vice president.

He has been a familiar figure at all the Series games this year — both here and in New York. At Shea Stadium, where the weather was blustery and biting, he watched on television from the press communications room, standing much of the time against a wall with a crumpled cloth hat on his head and a tattered scorecard in his hand.

He is beginning to show his age. But he walks with a bounce and talks in a loud, husky voice, rambling on in unending sentences and baffling rhetoric.

The guys still gather around to probe his active — if unbridled — mind and Casey never tires of obliging.

His high regard for his protege, Berra, is unconcealable. It's as if he sees much of himself in the stubby, pock-faced little manager of the Mets who, like Casey, often defies percentages and traffics in baseball miracles.

Casey has his own idea bout miracles.

"Miracles," he says in all his profound wisdom, "is when you have good pitching and a fellow at bat who can't hit."

Somebody asked Stengel if he thought Berra, who has been the butt of criticism for his diamond tactics, is a good manager.

"When he caught for me, he wore a loose, spongy mitt — that shows he was smart," Casey said. "He's been in 400,000 plays. He's been in more plays and more tough situations than any baseball player in the world."

Stengel referred to Yogi's record of playing in 14 World Series, managing in two and coaching in another, and setting records that are still the goal of every sandlot kid who picks up a bat.

"After all them plays, if he didn't learn anything, he'd be stupid," Casey said.

Petaluma Gridders Defeat Santa Rosa

By PAUL DWORIN

Petaluma High School's stout defense survived a second-half passing onslaught by visiting Montgomery High School of Santa Rosa last night to post a 14-7 North Bay League football victory.

The Trojans are now 3-0 in NBL competition and tied for first with Vallejo, which beat Napa last night, 24-22, to drop the Indians into a second place tie with Ukiah at 2-1.

With 1:55 left in the game and Petaluma leading, 14-7, the Trojans attempted a 30-yard field goal, but Dan Solis' kick was wide right. That gave the Vikings the ball on the Petaluma 20-yard line.

Bob Borowicz' first pass was off-target, but then the 5-foot-8 junior connected with Gary Gomes for two straight 30-yard advances to move the ball to the Trojan 20-yard line. A Petaluma facemasking violation moved the ball up to the 10, but on the next play Mark McCormick fumbled with Jim Judd recovering for Petaluma and the game was over.

Petaluma's first score came on a 20-yard run by Don White in the opening period, and the second was a spinning, 11-yard effort by Mike Maselli in the second quarter. The Viking touchdown in the final period came on a three-yard plunge by McCormick.

Athletes Gain Funds Victory

GLENDALE, Calif. (UPI)— Girl athletes at high schools here gained a victory and women coaches ended a semes-- terlong boycott yesterday as more funds were alloted for girls' athletic and physical education programs.

With the aid of a federal mediator, the Board of Education and the Certified Employes Concil agreed to: apportion the athletic budget regardless of sex; make all athletic facilities available to all students on an equal basis; increase women coaches' pay from $3.50 to $3.70 per hour; and allocate $5,000 to each of the district's three high schools to help fund afterschool girls' sports.

The women coaches had charged sex discrimination

Browns' Flanker Is Fined $800

SOUTH EUCLID, Ohio (UPI) — Cleveland Browns flanker Gloster Richardson was fined $800 and costs yesterday in municipal court here for possession of marijuana and two traffic offenses.

Richardson was also placed on three years inactive probation and prohibitied from driving in the state for 30 days by Judge Jerome A. Klein.

The conviction stems from an Aug. 12 auto accident. The marijuana was found in Richardson's car when he was arrested.

On Oct. 4, an eight-man jury found him guilty of possession of marijuana, however, sentencing was deferred until yesterday.

IN WATER POLO

Top Three Teams Get Triumphs

The three top teams in the Marin County Athletic League water polo standings picked on three teams below them yesterday, as Redwood, Terra Linda and San Rafael captured victories.

Redwood overwhelmed San Marin at Novato High, 22-2, while Terra Linda topped host Tam, 6-3, and San Rafael trounced host Drake, 20-7.

Tom Schindler scored 12 goals and Dave Russell eight for the league-leading Giants (7-0).

Goalie Peter Thomas made 13 stops for Terra Linda (6-1), which built a 6-0 lead after three periods. The only scorer with more than one goal was the Trojans' Tom Enright, with two.

SEN. HOWARD BAKER
Disputes Meany charge

Baker Sees Good GOP Vote Chance

CHICAGO (UPI) —Sen. Howard H. Baker, R-Tenn., said yesterday he has seen no evidence the Watergate scandal has damaged Republican election chances for 1976 and predicted over-confident Democrats would be in for a "terrible jolt."

Baker, a member of the Senate Watergate Committee, also disputed a charge by AFL-CIO President George Meany who called the Nixon administration the most corrupt in U.S. history.

"I do not argue with Mr. Meany that it is patently clear there have been political excesses from the political norm," Baker told a a news conference. "But the fact is that only certain people in the administration have been called to account.

"Mr. Meany's statemnt is inconsistent with the fact that a bi-partisan vote of 77-0 established the Watergate Committee and that the committee itself is composed of Republicans as well as Democrats," he said.

As for Republican chances in future elections, Baker said judging from his own post-Watergate assessment, "Democrats who plan to stand around and be handed the elections on a silver platter are in for a terrible jolt."

Baker was in Chicago to address a convention of the National Automatic Merchandising Association.

He said he was "not surprised" at ex-administration aide John Dean's guilty plea to one charge of obstructing justice and predicted "we will see a string of similar pleas in the days to come."

Baker said the Watergate Committee "probably will accept an adverse Supreme Court decision" on the question of whether President Nixon should turn over his taped office conversations to the committee, but we won't like it."

He said he also regards as unlikely that the President would refuse to surrender the tapes if ordered to do so by the high court.

"There has been much speculation on this matter, but I will continue on my assumption that if the court orders Mr. Nixon to turn over the takes, he will do."

Music Of '30s To Be Presented

Music from the 1930s will be presented in concerts next Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. in Ives Hall at Sonoma State College.

The program will include the college philharmonic, chorus and dance workshop. Directors are David Sloss and Sandra Dunwoody.

Featured music will include "Lieutenant Kije Suite" by Prokofief, "Sonisation" by Varese and "Cantate for Solo Voices" with music by Curt Wiell and words by Bertol Brecht. Soloists will be Steven Covington, Gardner Rust and Bill Bisanti.

WAY TO FOOD?

Challenge To Dancing Bee Theory

By BILL GARDNER

A scientific dispute centers on this question.

Karl von Frisch, 86, won the Nobel Prize for Medicine last week, but his most famous theory — that bees communicate by dancing — is under attack by two Southern California scientists.

Twenty-seven years ago von Frisch, an Austrian scientist, told the world that honeybees have a language. A bee who stumbles across a rich source of nectar flies back to the hive and does a tail-wagging dance on the comb, von Frisch said.

The bee's gyrations, known as a "waggle dance," show the other bees where the nectar is, von Frisch said. The food's direction is shown by the bee's position on the comb and the distance is indicated by the duration of the dance, according to the theory.

"The tail-wagging dance makes known the distance and the compass direction to the goal," said von Frisch. "This description of the location enables the newcomers to fly rapidly and with certainty to the indicated flowers, even when these are kilometers away."

The challenge to the von Frisch theory comes from two biology professors, Patrick Wells of Occidental College in Los Angeles and Adrian Wenner of the University of California at Santa Barbara.

Wells and Wenner agree that bees dance on the comb after finding food and that a human observer watching the dance can predict where the food is.

But the other bees don't use this information, the professors say.

They say their experiments show that bees find food by scent, not by decoding another bee's waggle dance.

Wells and Wenner have found that almost all of the bees find unscented food even after watching a dance that supposedly showed where the food was.

They also conducted an experiment in which they altered the hive so that a bee's dance would be disoriented and therefore unreadable. They found it didn't seem to matter whether a dance was oriented or disoriented. Roughly the same number of bees found the food either way.

But they found that many more bees found the food if the scent was made stronger.

The controversy has not been resolved and the von Frisch theory still commands considerable support, but Wenner said, "I think the tide is turning."

Honeybees are very important commercially for pollination and Wenner believes his findings will help make pollination more efficient. Bees can be stimulated to pollinate particular fields through the skillful use of scent, he says.

Driver's License Sex Listings Complicated By Change Surgery

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The growing number of Californians undergoing sex change operations has compelled the state to develop a new procedure for sex listings on driver's licenses, it was disclosed yesterday.

A new paragraph has been added to the state drivers license manual spelling out how to alter the sex designation on licenses of men who become women or vice versa.

A department spokesman said "sufficient requests" for the change had been received to warrant the new procedure. However, the Department of Motor Vehicles said it had no total figures on the number of men and women who have asked that their licenses be changed to reflect their new sex.

The sex change applicant is required to provide a doctor's statement that the operation has been performed before the change is permanent in the eyes of the state.

Meanwhile, one of the state's other licensing bureaus, the Department of Fish and Game, reported it had not made any switches in its hunting and fishing license procedures for sex designations.

"The sex changes we're concerned with are in marine fish and other marine species which change as a matter of growth development," said a fish and game spokesman. He mentioned sheepshead and grouper fish and some ocean shrimp as examples.

Voiceprint Reliability Under Fire

MENLO PARK (RW) — A Stanford Research Institute engineer has questioned the reliability of an increasingly popular criminalistic technique for linking voices to crimes such as bomb threats and obscene phone calls.

Fausto Poza, a senior research engineer, told a group of criminalistic experts at the 42nd semiannual seminar of the California Association of Criminalists Thursday the error rate of voice prints under certain conditions is unknown and may be phohibitively high.

(The validity of voiceprints as a means of identification was the central issue of a trial last July in Marin County, a trial that stirred national interest.

(Although Steven C. Chapter, a 28-year-old Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. installer and repairman was charged in Marin Superior Court with telephoning a bomb threat to his employer, it was widely held that the voiceprint itself was on trial, having been used to identify him and serving as the only evidence against him.

(Ultimately, the charge against him was thrown out of court, Judge E. Warren McGuire ruling in the nonjuried case that voiceprint identification needs more study before acceptance as evidence in the courts.

(Chapter has since sued the phone company and Lt. Ernest W. Nash of Michigan State Police for $110 million for his arrest and trial. Nash is a voiceprint expert and identified Chapter as the phoner of the bomb threat before his arrest and testified in court that he was the guilty man.)

Poza noted that an expert voice print examiner working in the field typically encounters distortions due to degradation of the recordings, emotional stress, masking noise and disguised voices. Yet the error rate of experts working under such conditions has never been tested.

Poza added "the subjective nature of the voiceprint examiners' task requires concern as to the objectivity, standards and responsibility of the examiners.

"In my opinion," he said, "it requires their qualification under test conditions which closely simulate the practical case."

In an article scheduled to appear in the fall issue of institute's quarterly publication, "Investments in Tomorrow," Poza pointed out that "unlike the fingerprint, the voiceprint is not an impression of a part of the anatomy that never changes. It is a complex display of the voice as it comes out of a speaker's lips."

He added that "although the unique structure of an individual's vocal tract is no doubt reflected in the voice, this uniqueness is not always detectable by voice print analysis.

"There are several reasons for this," Poza said in the article. "One is that the speech signals recorded by the voice print vary with what is said as well as with who is saying it. Thus, two voice prints of the same statement will have the same general pattern.

"In fact, the voiceprints of two different people saying the same thing will resemble each other far more closely than those of the same person saying two different things.

"Even when one person says the same thing twice," the article points out," he never does so in precisely the same way. Thus two voiceprints made by the same speaker are never identical in all details.

"Conversely, two people's voices sometimes resemble each other so closely that the voiceprints of a short utterance made by each of them bear a closer resemblance than do two voice prints made by one of them at different times.

"This might be true for example, in the case of two speakers of the same dialect."

The article goes on to say that "if the speech samples are long enough, differences would emerge. But the recording of the criminal's voice at the scene of the crime may contain only a few words. And even those few words may be distorted."

"He may have been in a state of stress or even panic and he may have attempted to disguise his voice. There may have been background noise, in addition to the noise and distortion introducted by the poor-quality recording equipment typically used in the field.

MARK J. CONLAN
Student seeks election

Collegian's Reason For Making Race

By BILL ROBERTS
(Third of a series of stories on the eight candidates for a vacancy on the Marin Community College District board.)

Mark J. Conlan, a student at the College of Marin, is seeking election to the Marin Community College District Board because he believes the present board's is not responsive enough to student and faculty views as expressed through the college's committee system.

He is one of eight candidates for a seat vacated by Elizabeth M. Deedy's resignation to accept a state post. The election is Nov. 6.

Conlan, 20, has been a College of Marin student the past five semesters and has served as student body president and editor of the College of Marin Times.

He thinks the board should be a "watchdog" and formulator of "general policy", while relying heavily on student and faculty views being expressed in the committee system. He would also favor setting up faculty senate type organizations for students and classified staff in the district to increase their involvement with the board.

Conlan believes each phase of the building project at the new Indian Valley Colleges in Novato should be reviewed by the College board. Override taxes are an "unpleasant but necessary evil" to complete construction in Novato because bond issues for construction was not passed, according to the candidate.

Although he said adult education programs could only grow at the expense of other programs under present budget restrictions, he supported them as essential to meet community needs.

Conlan doesn't think the district should budget for hiring many new administrators in the future but he thinks a superintendent and two presidents are necessary for the district. The current arrangement of the College of Marin president functioning as district superintendent creates too much work for one man, in Conlan's view.

He called vocational programs "the wave of the future," said the district is not doing enough in this area and expressed interest in starting vocational training for television technicians.

Conlan also said ethnic studies should be in a separate unit in the district but he did not think they should have a separate department of their own.

Prison Inmate Found In Attic

A San Quentin inmate, discovered missing at the 4:30 p.m. head count yesterday, was found several hours later hiding in an attic of the prison hospital, officials said.

Donald Rasmussen, 30, serving time for first degree murder from Santa Clara County, had been working with a welding crew during the day. Prison officials said he was missing from his cell in the north block at the end of the work day.

He was found about midnight.

Rasmussen was convicted in December 1972 and has been at San Quentin since last February.

Mideast Vigil

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — About 600 persons, most of them Bay Area business and professional men, marched through the downtown area yesterday in a silent vigil for peace in the Middle East.

The demonstration was sponsored by Build the Earth, a non-profit organization devotzd to goals of peace and international understanding.

Nixon's Aid Request Could Face Trouble

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon's urgent request for $2.4 billion in emergency aid to Israel and Cambodia has received a cold reception from some key members of Congress. Other lawmakers, however, immediately endorsed the proposal.

Unexpected resistance that developed yesterday in both the House and Senate centered on the President's hurry-up tactics, a disclosure that some U.S. military men had been sent to Israel, financial aspects of the request, and the tying-in of Cambodia.

While it seemed likely the money would eventually be voted, two key members of the House, Reps. George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the Appropriations Committee and Clement Zablocki, D-Wis., a ranking member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, said they would take a long, careful look at it.

QUESTIONS NEED

A substantial number of Senators endorsed the request' but Sen. Stuart Symington, a ranking member of both the Foreign Relations and Armed Services committees, questioned the need for new money to Cambodia. One prominent Republican, Mark Hatfield of Oregon, voiced outright opposition.

Any serious delay in approving the money could undercut some of the diplomatic impact with the Arabs and the Soviet Union that White House sources said the request was expected to have.

Mahon and Zablocki, speaking separately, questioned the need for grants to Israel as opposed to credit or cash sales, as well as the possible need for U.S. troops or technicians.

"I think we should consider this in a calmer atmosphere," Mahon said. "We don't want to get involved in World War III here" by authorizing measures that could involve troops.

Zablocki, who cautioned that "we must not go down the same bitter road we took in Vietnam" predicted it would take a minimum of three weeks to complete action and it could take a month or more.

QUICK BACKING

Among those who immediately endorsed the measure were Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., chairman of the House Foreign Operations Subcommittee that normally considers aid requests, and Sens. Hubert Humphrey and Walter Mondale, both D-Minn., Edward Brooke, R-Mass., and John Tower, R-Tex.

Hatfield, however, said the request would merely "up the ante in this deadly arms race and lead away from a peaceful resolution."

Cooperative Depends On Sewer Line

A nuisance abatement hearing, which could result in the disapproval of plans for an 18-unit housing cooperative in Homestead Valley, will be held Tuesday by Marin County supervisors.

The abatement proceedings were requested by the Marin County Public Works Department which said an illegally built sewer line has not been brought up to county standards.

Upgrading of the sewer line was made a condition of county approval for the project, sponsored by the housing cooperative, a group of 16 families planning to build on the 12-acre site at 519 Montford Avenue.

At the time supervisors gave tentative approval, they said the sewer line would have to be properly upgraded before the first winter rain or their approval of the project would be withdrawn.

Irving L. Schwartz, county land development engineer, said the group has done nothing to improve the sewer line. All that can be done now, he said, is to cover the long furrow and hope it doesn't wash out this winter.

Neighbors fear the improperly built sewer line could cause a mudslide on homes below the steep site, Schwartz said.

Supervisors, meeting at 10 a.m. at Civic Center, also will consider a proposal from Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere that tax revenues from pleasure boats be used for public boating facilities.

Roumiguiere said he will ask for the board's authorization to meet with various county officials and boating enthusiasts to discuss the kinds of public facilities needed.

TIBURON REPORT

$2.6 Million Tab On Wastewater Standards

By REBECCA LARSEN

It would cost about $2.6 million for the Tiburon Sanitary District to raise its level of wastewater treatment to meet federal and state standards, according to a preliminary report on district facilities prepared by the John Carollo engineering firm of Walnut Creek.

The report says that the district's plant is large enough to provide its present level of wastewater treatment to an estimated ultimate population of 10,650 for Belvedere and Tiburon.

The plant could also handle the proposed extensive downtown Tiburon development project now being planned by Sequoia Pacific of Santa Ana, the engineers said.

But the level of treatment has to be raised, and the district either has to add more facilities or join with other Marin sanitary districts in a joint treatment program as is being studied by the Southern Marin Subregional Sewerage Agency, the report said.

If the district decides to continue treating its own sewage, it also will have to extend its sewage outfall into San Francisco Bay by 150 feet, according to the report. This improvement, required by federal law, would cost an estimated $80,000.

The $9,000 Carollo study is still being reviewed by district directors and the engineering firm and will be discussed at the district board's Nov. 5 meeting.

The report also says that present pumps and lines carrying sewerage to the plant need about $200,000 in repairs to handle future flows. According to the engineering firm, about $98,500 should be spent on repairing and enlarging trunk sewers and $100,000 on repairs to pumping stations.

Lawrence Haynes, superintendent of the district's treatment plant, said that such changes will have to wait until Tiburon develops its downtown area so that they can be coordinated with the building of new sewer lines for the development project. He also said that some district officials thought the repairs could be done for less money.

The report also recommends repairing infiltration leaks into the sewer line system, but district board president James Murray said that the district already is devoting about $12,000 to this task and completed much of it last summer.

According to Murray, directors consider this Carollo study the first of two which should be done before Tiburon permits any major development on 36 acres of Southern Pacific Railroad property in the city's downtown area.

He said the district has asked Sequoia Pacific, the proposed developer, to finance a $4,000 study of what might have to be done to realign and add to present sewer lines to accomodate its development. The study would also consider what the developer would have to pay for connecting up to the sanitary plant.

Mideast Could Be Weapons Test Ground

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Middle East war may be turning into a testing ground for new, sophisticated, American-made weapons which the United States is airlifting to Israel.

Pentagon sources said yesterday that among the advanced arms aboard recent flights to Israel were the television-guided Maverick missile, the two antitank missile, and the M60 battle tank, the most modern in the U.S. arsenal.

In addition, the sources said regular replacements of equipment lost in the first two weeks of Arab-Israeli fighting were also being supplied.

The Maverick missile, which just came into the Air Force inventory in the past few months, is fired from planes at small targets like tanks and artillery. It carries TV camera in its nose and a pilot guides the missile while watching where it is aimed on a Japanese-made Sony television set in his cockpit.

The TOW missile is another new weapon. It is fired at tanks from helicopters or an infantryman's shoulder. The Army experimented with TOWs in Vietnam last year and was very pleased with their success.

But tanks were a minor part of the action in Vietnam while they are a major element of the Middle East war where these new missiles are expected to get considerable on-the-job testing.

Aside from the newer weapons, the sources said, the United States has also flown 28 F4 phantom fighter bombers to Israel. That is one more than Israel has reportedly lost in the war. The Israelis have also lost about 50 A4 Skyhawk attack planes and the first replacements are due to be flown in very soon, officials said.

Floating Dock Permit Sought

A Novato company has applied for a Department of the Army permit to construct a floating dock on Corte Madera Creek in Larkspur.

The dock, at 505 Larkspur Plaza would serve the residents of an 11-unit apartment complex on the adjacent property owned by the Boughton and Horne Inc. of Novato. The proposal has been approved by the City of Larkspur and does not require an environmental impact statement by the Corps of Engineers.

Objections to the construction of the 350 square foot dock must be sent to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers office in San Francisco before Nov. 16.

How to sell your home in a tight-money, and high interest-rate market

With the real estate market today, it takes a special kind of knowledge and sophistication to sell your home at the best possible terms.

Interest rates are constantly fluctuating. Sometimes changing from day to day. This situation may call for "creative financing" to handle your sale (or purchase) of property. The importance of knowing sources of money and ways of arranging private financing that safeguards the interests of both buyer and seller can hardly be overestimated.

When you deal with a Realtor; a member office of the Marin County Board of Realtors, you are in the best possible hands. They are professionals at finding alternative methods of buying or selling a home during a tight money market. Selling a home today is too complex to take any chances. Always work through a Realtor and you'll never be sorry.

NOTICE OF PRIVATE SALE OF REAL PROPERTY LOCATED AT 89 HARBOR DRIVE, NOVATO, MARIN COUNTY, CALIFORNIA, TO KRISTENSEN
Civil No. 72-41

In the United States District Court for the District of Oregon

UNITED FINANCIAL GROUP, INC., formerly known as USI Group, Inc., et al, Defendants.

Notice is hereby given that, pursuant to an order entered by the United States District Court for the District of Oregon, entitled "Order for Sale of Real Property at 89 Harbor Drive, Novato, Marin County, California, to Kristensen," William E. Tassock, the receiver herein, was authorized to sell approximately 7 acres of real property located at 89 Harbor Drive, Novato, Marin County, California, to Tage Kristensen, for $232,000 cash. The purchaser is entitled to a credit of $1,000 for replacement of the front doors on the house located on the premises so the effective sales price is $231,000.

You are further notified that the above-described sale shall come on for confirmation before the above-described court on October 24, 1973, at 2:00 p.m. and shall be confirmed unless a bona fide offer is made which guarantees at least a 10 per centum increase over the price offered by Tage Kristensen.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Many Dentists Now Examining Patients For Signs Of Cancer

Many dentists now examine the mouth for evidence of cancer. Dr. Arne Romnes made a thorough search of my lips, gums, tongue, cheeks, and the floor and roof of the passageway. After doing so, he announced that he could neither see nor feel any tumors, blisters, or ulcers. Dentists have been doing this for the last few years and, it is hoped that through these routine exams, more and more maligancies will be detected at an early stage.

An examination of the oral cavity should also include a history of smoking and drinking habits.

IN THIS country, tobacco and alcolhol have been suspected as causes of a number of different types of oral cancers. Several reports along this line have appeared in the medical journals. A recent one came from the State University of New York (Brooklyn), where a medical team examined the head and neck of 3,007 alcoholics from four different treatment centers.

The subjects were questioned about their drinking, smoking, and dietary habits for an average week during the three months before the interview and during the five years before this period. Meanwhile, similar studies were in progress on 2,758 nonalcoholic subjects attending another screening program.

Both groups were examined thoroughly for cancers extending from the lips to the voice box. Physicians used the usual equipment to study these parts. In addition, they palpated the thyroid and salivary glands for evidence of a tumor. A Pap smear was taken from any suspicious lesions.

TEN HEAD and neck cancers were found in the alcoholic group, but none in the nonalcoholic controls. This is a significant difference. As a matter of fact, in alcoholics, the incidence of cancer was higher than for the general population (286.5 to 53.9 per 100,000). But this is not all. The 10 individuals with cancer had been heavy drinkers and smokers for a much longer time than the alcoholics without head and neck abnormalities. What the researchers were not able to determine was whether alcohol or tobacco acts independently or whether one acts as a catalyst in causing the malignancy.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 330, San Rafael, Ca. 94902. Telephone inquiries will not be answered.

IRREGULAR BEAT

T.E.M. writes: What is a fibrillating heart?

REPLY

This is a gross irregularity of the heart beat, in which the auricles contract rapidly and beat independently of the ventricles. Remedies include quinidine and digitalis; now and then an electrical defibrillator must be used.

FLATFOOT

A reader writes: Could arthritis of the knees cause flatfoot?

REPLY

No, but vice versa is possible if the weight bearing surfaces of the knees are thrown out of kilter by flat feet.

Nuclear Plant Permits Issued

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Atomic Energy Commission has announced it has issued construction permits for expansion of the San Onofre nuclear generating station near San Clemente.

The permits, for units 2 and 3 of the plant, will increase capacity by about 2,280,000 kilowatts. Unit 1, in operation since 1967, has a capacity of about 430,000 kilowatts.

The AEC office here said approval of the permits followed a public hearing and reviews by the AEC staff and a committee on reactor safeguards.

San Rafael air quality yesterday:
Oxidants, clean air.
Nitrogen dioxide, clean air.
Carbon monoxide, light air pollution.
Smoke particles, light air pollution.
Other areas:
San Francisco, light air pollution.
San Jose, light air pollution.
Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Don't Peek At Answer; Try To Catch The Criminal In Action

A bridge crime took place in the play of today's hand. See if you can spot the crime and the criminal without peeking at the answer.

LOW SPADE

Dummy played a low spade at the first trick, and East won with the ace. He returned the nine of clubs, which rode up to dummy's jack. Declarer finessed the ten of hearts around to West's king, and the club return was taken by East's ace. South then claimed the rest of the tricks, making his contract plus an overtrick.

It shouldn't be hard to identify the criminal, but naming the exact crime may be more difficult. Work it out for yourself before you read on. You may avoid a life of crime if you know just how some other poor wretch went wrong.

CHOSE WRONG CARD

East was the criminal, since he should have defeated the contract. He was correct in winning the first trick and in shifting to clubs, but he chose the wrong card for his shift.

At the second trick, East should lead the queen of clubs! South wins the trick with the king of clubs, but he must then tackle the hearts in order to play for nine tricks.

ANOTHER CLUB

West wins with the king of hearts and leads another club, whereupon East has the A-10-9 behind dummy's J-8 and can easily win three club tricks. This is enough to defeat the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner deals and bids one no-trump.

The next player passes.

You hold:

♠ - K 9 3
♥ - 10 9 5
♦ - A 10 8 2
♣ - J 8 5.

What do you do?

ANSWER: Bid two no-trump. Partner can pass with a minimum (16 points) but will go on with a maximum (18 points). You would avoid this raise to two no-trump on a very bare eight points, but in this case your hand is bolstered up by two tens, two nines and two eights.

Felony Pot Charge Filed

A Tiburon man — thought to have mailed himself a tinful of cookies and hashish from overseas has pleaded innocent to a felony marijuana possession charge.

A preliminary hearing was set Nov. 6 for John Christopher Robertson, 19, by Judge David R. Baty of Marin Municipal Court.

Tiburon police said they arrested Robertson last Saturday after he received a package from Amsterdam containing 486.5 grams — about 17 ounces — of hashish. They were tipped off by postal authorities.

ALMANAC

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Today is Saturday, Oct. 20, the 293rd day of 1972 with 72 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning stars are Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter.

American educator John Dewey was born October 20, 1859.

On this day in history:

In 1918, Germany accepted American President Woodrow Wilson's terms to end World War I.

In 1944, American troops began a campaign to recapture the island of Leyte in the Philippines. General Douglas MacArthur said, as he strode ashore through the surf: "I have returned."

In 1968, Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy, widow of President Kennedy, married Greek shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis.

A thought for the day: Herbert Hoover said: "Older men declare war. But it is the youth that must fight and die."

Felony Counts Are Reduced

Felony charges of auto theft and possessing stolen property have been reduced to misdemeanors in the case of a Larkspur man suspected of stealing a real estate broker's car.

A pretrial conference for Marquis Matthew Scott, 25, was set for Wednesday by Judge Robert A. Smallman.

Larkspur police said Scott stole Sue Schaefer's car Aug. 14, then tried to extort $100 from her for its return.

Case Is Sent To Superior Court

A Bolinas man has been ordered to appear Oct. 29 in Marin Superior Court to stand trial on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

The felony count accuses Charles Lee Shortz, 30, of beating a former girlfriedn Oct. 8 and knocking out several of her teeth.

Following a preliminary hearing, Judge Robert A. Smallman ruled there is enough evidence to hold Shortz.

ABOUT THAT TIME — The wary look exhibited by Blanche Small's "Turkey in the Straw" may be due to somber thoughts of his fate during the upcoming holiday season. The woodcut, in harvest red, yellow and russet brown, is part of the Terra Linda Art Association's current exhibit in celebration of autumn. The show will continue through Nov. 3.

ART REVIEW

Palette Of Autumn Colors Is Reflected

By ADA GARFINKEL

The beauty of autumn colors has inspired artists in the Terra Linda Art Association to come up with some rather original ideas for the current "Autumn Spectacular" show.

Crescent Venuto, for example, has created a fanciful, magic garden with bowing trees and cascading paths that possess almost human qualities.

Joan Boosey's monoprint, "Autumn Canyons," conveys the season in salmon pink tints defining extensive craggy formations. Blanche Ayres' tiny monoprint, "Autumn Twilight," is a veritable witches' ball with ghostly creatures gyrating in great abandon.

"Autumn Pazazz" by Carol Zogg is aptly named. A collaged swag of textured scallop-shaped mounds in red, yellow, and orange forms an inverted triangle as it strides across the white background. A rivulet of black paint oozes intermittently as if from some labyrinthian source.

Several artists have focused on the ritualistic aspect of the fall season. Nany Brennan's "Indian Summer" is a segmented circle encased in gold foil. Touches of stain lend a patina of antiquity.

Subtly embossed oak leaves on gold foil comprises Ilse Poeschl's "Golden Autumn." In "October Leaves" Mrs. Poeschl imprints the same leaf forms in delicate outlines of plum and green colors on white ground. Random strippling in gray adds textural balance.

Mae Wygant's watercolor, "Fall", expands a section of an oak tree. Lively, curling leaves dance and swirl in a multiplicity of greens and rust colors. Thready outlines of white paper showing around the forms add a vibrant energy.

Another batik — this one by Marion Thorne — carries both geolic and visual impact with its narrow grove of trees resting on a striated cross-section of earth formation, and its pungent lemon, olive, and orange colors.

And the impact of Thanksgiving day is unmistakable in Blanche Small's woodcut portrait of a turkey.

The exhibit will continue through Nov. 3, and may be seen Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the association's gallery, 4172 Redwood Highway.

DRAMA REVIEW

Ross Valley Players Gives Good Accounting In 'Albatross'

By GERALD GENESE

It is very surprising to see a community theater present a play with taste, intelligence and some very sensitive and excellent acting.

Last night the Ross Valley Players presented Ronald Alexander's, "Nobody Loves an Albatross," to a very appreciative and responsive opening night audience.

The production has a very nice look and feel to it. Set designer Peter Weller decided not to portray the home of successful Hollywood producer-writer, Nat Bentley (played by Alan Barnes) in a garrish manner. The muted quality of the set blends very nicely with the soft yellows, browns and tweeds selected by costumer Della De Moss. As a result the actors become the center of focus on stage.

Mona Horwitz portraying Marge Webber, a rather bombastic, conniving comedy writer, does a complete about face in characterization at the very end of the play. Beneath Marge's tough veneer she shows a loyalty to another member of her craft who is in trouble and exits the stage a more sympathetic character.

Less subtle but as effective is Peter Weller as Victor Talsey, the inventor of canned laughter for TV. Weller conveys the essence of comedy, a singularity of purpose. His Talsey is totally committed to his machine.

Some pairings in the supporting cast are very funny and well acted. Agent and writer, Mike Harper (Hugh Leppo) and Sean O'Laughlin (Bob Salvas) do an Edgar Bergen and Charley McCarthy routine. Studio head Hildy Jones (Lorna Dale Savage) and her hatchet man L. T. Whitman (J. John Courtney) do a Nixon and Agnew number. And the aforementioned Miss Webber and Bert Howell (Ralph White) do a husband and wife version of King Kong and Mr. Milquetoast.

The production would have been uniformly excellent, save for Alan Barne's interpretation of the main character, Nat Bentley. Bentley is a very bright, but unscrupulous producer and writer. He has a surface charm and bravado that allows him to maneuver quite well in the jungles of network television. Beneath the surface, though, is a very desperate and lonely man. Barnes fails to convey the desperation and loneliness. You get the frosting, but not the cake. Barnes may be too young for the part.

Special mention must be made of Beverly Berry who plays Jean Hart, Bentley's secretary. She brings to her part a sweetness and simplicity that is nice to watch.

"Nobody Loves an Albatross," will be performed tonight at 8:30 o'clock and Fridays and Saturdays through Nov. 17 with two Sunday performances at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 28 and Nov. 4.

Education Post Goes To Wilson

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has today appointed Harold O. Wilson, an administrator of California Polytechnic State University at San Luis Obispo, as his new chief adviser on education.

Wilson, 63, a Republican, will succeed influential Alex C. Sheriffs at the $33,960-a-year-post effective Nov. 1.

Wilson has been administrative vice president of Cal Poly since 1967 and has been associated with the college for 37 years.

Regents In Delay Over Tax Stand

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of California Regents have overwhelmingly rejected a proposal to come out against Proposition 1, the controversial ballot measure that would limit spending by the Legislature.

The regents defeated the motion by William M. Roth of Ross despite warnings by UC Presidet Charles J. Hitch that passage of the proposition would mean "a crisis of major proportions for California's campuses."

However, the board, at its meeting yesterday, passed a motion by Regent Elinor Heller to table the issue until its November meeting which will be held after election day.

Hitch told the board the university would have to "continue to trim and squeeze" and would be forced to eliminate some academic programs. he said aid to poor students would suffer heavily.

"The future will certainly be different and budgets more sharply restricted," he said.

Gov. Ronald Reagan, a member of the board, was present when Hitch spoke.

"My only concern was for the Regents not to politicize" the university, governor later told newsmen. "We've had enough of that in the past."

Hitch read the regents his 27-page analysis of the measure. He said that passage "might produce a 1974-75 crisis in financing of state agencies, including the university."

Hitch said he spent months studying the initiative and its possible impact.

"It's complexities are such that I still don't fully understand many of its aspects," said Hitch, an economist who was once the chief fiscal officer for the Department of Defense.

Conservation Should Not Ignore People

THE CONSERVATION-environmental protection organizations have grown in recent years until they have become among the most powerful in our nation.

The Wilderness Society, with headquarters in Denver, along with the Sierra Club and Friends of the Earth are among the most powerful.

Their power lies in their ability to provoke response from those of us who have strong conservation and environmental concerns. In this day and age, that means just about all of us.

"It is important for the (U.S.) Interior Department to recognize that people from all over the nation value the quietude, beauty and integrity of our National Parks and that these qualities of our heritage cannot be compromised at any cost.

"Please write today.' "

NEARLY ALL of us would respond to that call, issued jointly last week by the aforementioned three organizations in a mail piece headed "Jets in Teton National Park?"

We would respond just as the three lobby organizations would wish us to — if all we knew about the situation was what the Wilderness Society, Friends of the Earth and the Sierra Club told us about it.

What they tell us is that the noise level may rise considerably if the Teton airport is enlarged to accomodate jets, that air pollution may increase and that the possible effect on wildlife is "unknown."

"Less than one per cent of the nearly four million annual visitors to Teton National Park travel to Jackson Hole by air. The demands made upon the integrity of the Park and the majority of the visitors for the convenience of this minority are illogical as well as erosive of the national park concept and purpose," say the three conservation pressure groups.

Obviously, they make an effective pitch for opposition to airport expansion there.

Unfortunately, they don't tell the whole story.

THE STORY BEGINS before ever there was a Teton National Park.

The tiny community of Jackson, Wyo., was a remote place. Farming in those parts was marginal. The land is not especially fertile; the growing season is short. Winters are long and harsh.

Nevertheless, Jackson produced a crop of civic leaders intent on making the best of the situation and improving their community. They were never served by a railroad. They decided an airport would help.

They found a site some miles north of town. It wasn't easy to find. The mountains thereabout are high and steep. The community voted bonds and, with the help of matching funds and so on, finally was able to develop an airport.

All this took place before there was a Teton National Park. In fact, the area that is now embraced in the national park was then mostly privately owned farm land which had to be acquired piece-by-piece from private owners. Teton National Park still contains many "islands" of privately owned land within its boundaries.

When the park expanded to take in most of the lands surrounding Jackson's airport, National Park Service officials thought it would be nice to take Jackson's airport into the park, to eliminate at least one island.

At this point, the people of Jackson may have made a big mistake. They agreed to turn their airport over to the National Park Service.

Now, some decades later, the airport is overdue for expansion. The only scheduled airline service is Frontier Airlines' propellor-driven planes. The runway and facilities need to be expanded to accommodate modern, small jet airliners.

The conservation lobbies are correct when they say that only a tiny fraction of Teton National Park visitors arrive by air. Scheduled airline service is strictly a one-horse operation and so it will remain until and unless they can begin to use contemporary airliners.

When and if that day can come, it could open the door to a higher proportion of visitors by public transportation and a consequent reduction in the highway traffic congestion at the peak of the visitor season.

Pollution? Jet airliners are stinky. Some progress has been made to reduce that characteristic. More will have to be made in the near future. It would make more sense to approve airport enlargement with the proviso that only airliners meeting certain strict pollution control standards could land there.

Effect on wildlife? Ever notice the herds of wild rabbits on the Oakland airport? If the presence of jet planes has any effect there, it can only be to increase their reproduction rate.

FINALLY, CONSIDER the situation of the 3,500 or so permanent inhabitants of Jackson.

Ninety-seven percent of the area of their county is in public ownership. The tax base comprises only three per cent of their area. They support streets, utilities and services to accommodate millions of summer season visitors.

They deserve consideration at least equal to that given by conservationists to the welfare of the native elk herds.

The Wilderness Society, Friends of the Earth and the Sierra Club would do well to expand their area of concern to include the feelings of the people in whose areas they choose to make their influence felt.

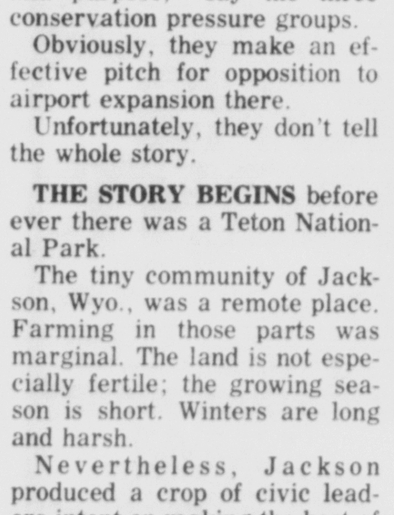
Symphony Reminder

We're a bit late in reminding Marinites that this is Marin Symphony Week, so proclaimed by the county board of supervisors.

But it's not too late to point out the purpose of Marin Symphony Week, which is to focus attention on an organization that has done a great deal for the cultural life of Marin — and which is engaged right now in its annual membership campaign.

Memberships give special privileges plus one free concert. And they help make up the difference between what it costs to present these fine entertainments and what comes in at the gate through ticket purchases.



"Bless you, stranger!"

Indian Summer Haze Distressing

This last week end was one of those warm still days that just a few years ago we called "Indian summer." Missing is the clear blue sky and in its place a foul haze so dense that Mount Tam coauld hardly be seen from Kentfield. Must we foul our nest so? Should not man's waste be a more important planning parameter than it has been?

'No Littering' Notices Needed Elsewhere

I was changing buses down the bottom end of Fourth Street in San Rafael a few days ago when I saw the lovely big new notices, "No littering by law or be fined." And me being a very true Englishman from London and nine years over here in the U.S.A. and most of the nine years in Marin County, I said to myself, out of many very good things which have taken place in Marin County this is the best day's work they ever did, when they put up these notices.

These should be put up all around the College of Marin and around the Kent Woodlands shopping center, as these places badly need them. And I do have a good lot of folks who would back me up in all I do say.

College Could Use Landscaping Class

I saw in Thursday's (Oct. 11) paper that the accreditation committee to College of Marin slapped the school's wrist for not enough career training.

As a candidate for the "C.O.M." board of trustees, I read the recent 10-year plan in which the committee suggested $175,000 to $250,000 for landscaping (a quarter of a million dollars — some landscaping!), of the two-year-old Science Building.

Looking at this stark building, one wonders if the board might not recommend a landscaping class and have the students do this massive job for far less and get a little career training at the same time.

Studies Find Moratorium Will Not Stop Growth

Two independent firms, one environmental and the other engineering, were paid $75,000 by the water district to study our current water situation apart from the current politics of Marin. What they found was, to put it mildly, sobering.

First of all, they recommended that we immediately augment our water supply or face critical shortages in the future. Second of all, they said that water conservation and a moratorium will not stop growth. Marin County and consequently our water usage is growing regardless of these temporary measures.

These were not the findings of the "political" water district, the developers in the county, or environmentalists. These were the conclusions of independent analysts who were paid to objectively study the situation.

I recommend to every resident that he or she read these reports at either the library or the district offices before the November election.

ART BUCHWALD

Solution To Agnew's Problem And That Of His Successor

WASHINGTON — If President Nixon had any class, he would declare the state of Maryland a disaster area. Several of its leading engineers and builders have admitted to bribery. Its former governor, Spiro Agnew, has been convicted of income tax fraud. Its present governor, Marvin Mandel, has announced publicly he's in love with another woman. He is living in a hotel room but can't afford to pay his bill, and Mrs. Mandel refuses to leave the governor's mansion because she says the governor has taken leave of his senses.

It seems to me that all these problems could be resolved to everyone's satisfaction, providing there is good will on everybody's part.

WHAT I PROPOSE is the following: Since former Vice President Spiro Agnew no longer has any need to live close to Washington, and since it may be difficult to maintain a $190,000 home without help from the Secret Service, I suggest that he and Mrs. Agnew move into the governor's mansion with Mrs. Mandel. The rent they would pay would go to Governor Mandel so he can still live in his hotel room.

The Agnews know the house well and would feel very much at home there. Mrs. Mandel would have companionship during these trying times and would be able to cut down expenses since she and the Agnews could share the food costs.

Now the important thing from Maryland's standpoint is that since it seems impossible to have their governor living in the mansion, they would at least have an ex-governor living there, which would give them confidence in their state government.

IN ORDINARY TIMES, Governor Mandel might object to having an ex-governor moving in with his wife; but these, as everyone will admit, are not ordinary times. I believe Governor Mandel would be grateful to know that all the bedrooms in the governor's mansion are not being wasted. And there is no doubt that the rent the Agnews would pay could help him out of his financial difficulties.

From former Vice President Agnew's standpoint, his housing problems would be solved for awhile and he would have a chance to renew old friendships with many people he had dealings with as governor of Maryland. While these relationships are now slightly strained, there is no doubt in my mind that if Mr. Agnew were living in the governor's mansion these former friends would come back to see him in the slight hope that they could get some more road-building contracts out of it.

Now I know you're saying it's a perfect plan, but we should look at the disadvantages. There is always the possibility that Governor Mandel could get a court order to evict his wife from the mansion. Then he might move in with the woman he loves. This could raise a great moral issue for the Agnews. They are very straight-laced people and might not approve of boarding in a house with an unmarried couple. It would smack too much of living in a commune.

They could, of course, move out with Mrs. Mandel and take another house, but it wouldn't be the same thing as living with her in the governor's mansion.

THIS IS THE ONLY drawback I can think of. I must admit I have not checked out my plan with the Agnews or Mrs. Mandel. And I haven't called Governor Mandel at the Hilton Hotel to see how he feels about it. But I have discussed the idea with many leading citizens of Maryland who are very enthusiastic about the idea.

One Baltimore resident summed up the feelings of all the Marylanders I talked to when he said: "It makes a lot of sense to me. The Agnews would be fools not to do it, and certainly Barbara Mandel would have nothing to lose."

Thorough Inquiry Is Needed Before Confirmation Of Ford

WASHINGTON — Rep. Gerald R. Ford's confirmation as vice president is insured by the cozy, clubbable spirit that enfolds a 25-year veteran of the House of Representatives. But that should not foreclose a thorough inquiry into the sources of secret and unreported campaign contributions to Ford's congressional races in 1970 and 1972.

By comparison with the big gobbets of money fed into the Nixon campaign, this is peanuts. Coming as the money apparently did from financial and industrial sources expecting favors or at least favorable consideration in return, it is one more example of the evils of the system of campaign financing by big money that reached a scandalous climax in 1972.

THE AGNEW CASE is in itself a sufficient warning for those who might want to let the Ford confirmation slide through. One of the mysteries out of that scandal is why the facts of Spiro Agnew's wheeling and dealing in Maryland were not brought to light when he was tapped by Richard Nixon in Miami Beach to be his running mate in 1968. Was the FBI asked to investigate? And, if they investigated, were the results of the investigation ignored?

The Agnew affair cannot be simply filed and forgotten, nor can anything he now says mitigate the bill of particulars filed by Att. Gen. Elliot Richardson with the Baltimore court. His sentence was a slap on the wrist.

Compassion for a man disgraced in the second highest office in the land may have dictated the deal that was made with the Department of Justice. But it will seem to many one more piece of evidence that the law means one thing for the powerful and the rich and another thing for the powerless and the poor. In a brief excursion into Middle America I heard comments such as this: "What would have happened to me if I had been guilty of evading my income tax? You know I wouldn't have got off as easy as that."

FORD HAS A respectable, if undistinguished, record in the House. As minority leader he has never wavered in his support of the administration's foreign and domestic policies. This may be the function of the Republican leader in the swarming mass of the House — to me-too and to round up as many votes as possible. In helping to sustain the president's vetoes, Ford has been the faithful Dutch boy with his finger in the dike.

One of the few initiatives he has taken was his effort to bring about the impeachment of Justice William O. Douglas. The minority leader rounded up close to 150 signatures on a resolution to impeach the justice, who is about to equal the record of the longest service of any judge ever to serve on the high tribunal.

Promoting the Douglas impeachment, Ford said that the cause for removal could be any crime the House decided on. This opened a broad avenue, with special significance now that Ford is about to hold an office subject to impeachment. The principal charge against Douglas was his connection with the Parvin Foundation and the allegation that the foundation had ties with organized crime and the Las Vegas gambling casinos.

This whole matter should be thoroughly examined in the course of the inquiry into Ford's fitness to be vice president. Did the White House back the impeachment move? The answer to that question could be very interesting.

IMPEACHMENT IS NOT just an unthinkable process. It was put into the Constitution by the Founding Fathers as a legitimate means for the removal of corrupt federal officers. There was no other way a president or a vice president could be removed from office.

With the Supreme Court soon to pass on the president's contention that he can refuse anyone the right to hear the confidential tapes he made of all White House conversations, impeachment will be very much to the fore. Justice Douglas will be one of the nine to pass on the confidentiality issue. The president has spoken of the force of a "definitive" decision by the court but he has never defined "definitive."

These are mind-boggling times, with war and the threat of a larger war just over the horizon. Ford cannot be considered an ordinary vice president, a chair warmer as so often in the past. His influence as an inflexible conservative can extend far beyond the function of breaking a tie vote in the Senate. Clubbable spirit to one side, the country is entitled to know everything about Gerald Ford's past and present.

Attack On Israel Proves Again: Surprise Is Matter Of Timing

The Israelis, we are told, were surprised when Egyptians and Syrians crossed the old cease-fire lines on Oct. 6 and started the fourth Arab-Israeli war.

As so often happens in the history of warfare, the Israelis knew that their enemies were deployed and capable of launching an offensive at any moment, but did not expect it when it came. They knew of the enemy's capabilities, but misjudged his intentions.

The most glaring example in modern military history of a similar miscalculation was Stalin's refusal, or inability, in the spring of 1941, to believe that the Germans would attack Russia.

He knew, indeed military experts all over the world knew, that the main German army with the bulk of the armor, the best assault divisions, and ample air support, were all deployed along the Russian military frontier in the right positions for launching a major offensive. But Stalin refused to believe the obvious implication of these deployments. His generals were not permitted to take the precautions which should have been taken and which they recommended.

PEARL HARBOR was a different kind of misreading of enemy intentions. The Americans knew that the Japanese were poised for war. All signs indicted an imminent attack. Admirals and generals at Pearl Harbor expected sabotage type attacks on the airfields and submarine attacks on the ships in the harbor itself. But they assumed the main Japanese attack would be delivered at the Philippines and Malaya. It never occurred to them that there might be a major air assault on the Hawaiian Islands.

The allied landings on the Normandy Coast represented a stunningly successful effort to deceive the enemy. There was no mystery about preparations for the invasion of the continent. The Germans knew exactly what forces were concentrated in England and prepared for the invasion. They knew almost to the day when the invasion would come. But they had to guess where. They guessed — wrongly.

But the Germans had one last success in the twilight of the war. They achieved equal surprise in the Battle of the Bulge. Their concentration and deployment was well known at allied headquarters. But that they would attack when they did was a surprise with dangerous consequences.

AT THIS WRITING it is still far from clear how much long-term advantage the Egyptians can get out of their success in surprising the Israelis on Oct. 6. It is possible that they can hold most or even all of the east bank of the Suez Canal. Their guns are covered by the SAM-6 missiles which seem to be highly effective against Israeli planes.

The Israelis would have to knock out all of the SAM-6 sites first to get at the Egyptian artillery. And they would then have to knock out most of the artillery before it would be safe to try to regain the east bank of the canal.

In the 1967 war the Israeli air force held control of the air over all of Egypt from the first day. They had absolute control of the air over the Suez Canal area. The deployment by the Egyptians of artillery and of antiaircraft missiles up to the canal has made a big difference.

It may well be that the Egyptians now have the capability of holding a strip perhaps 10 miles or more deep all along the east bank of the canal.

10 YEARS AGO

Oct. 20, 1963

Judge Richard M. Sims of Marin Superior Court issued an order temporarily banning the cutting of timber on lands designated for Point Reyes National Seashore.

The General Assembly of the United Nations refused membership to Red China, with 41 in favor, 57 against, and 12 abstaining.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 20, 1953

The San Rafael City Council voted to bar the public from "committee of the whole" council sessions.

Dr. Clarence Haylett, Marin County Health officer, told the county board of supervisors that Marin water should be fluoridated to reduce dental decay among children.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

We're not complaining. Never could figure how to re-fold the pesky things anyway.

Who needs maps? Your backseat driver will be happy to tell you where to go.

Besides, it's better to run out of maps than to run out of gas.

These days folks don't seem to care where they're going — just so they get there ahead of the other fellow.

Which way for prisoners? Idle hands inside... or working hands outside on job or school?

Plight Of Today's Prisoners

Behind The News

SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1973 37

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Is public safety to be achieved only by locking all criminals behind bars? No, reply innovative penal reformers who say many offenders can be kept out in the community — and that citizens will actually be safer for it.)

By ROBERT M. PRESS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

Dave, Norman, Carol, and more than 20,000 California young people are benefiting from a quiet revolution in penal thinking in the U.S.

Norman was released from a prison for a day, then returned voluntarily.

Carol was about to get a long prison sentence but got a job instead.

And many thousands of young offenders in California are living at home instead of in prison.

The revolution is aimed at making communities safer — in line with the belief by many reformists that American prisons are failing in their primary task. Community corrections programs are increasing — amid calls for moratoriums on construction of new prisons in some states.

Activists in the revolution point out that 95 to 98 per cent of the people sent to prison or jail in this country are one day set free again. But nearly two-thirds of the people in prison today have been there before.

This means that neighborhoods these people come back to after long, mostly idle years behind bars, may be less safe because of their return, reformers say. Prisons, they insist, delay problems of community safety — they do not solve them; in fact, reformers believe, prisons lessen community safety.

So change the way prisons are run and the way people are sent to prisons, they say.

But, reply critics, prison is for punishment. People in prison are there because they have committed a crime for which they should have to pay. Prisons should not be run like "country clubs" and prisoners should not be "coddled."

Reforms may be needed, the traditional argument runs, but when they result in a dangerous inmate getting loose before the end of his sentence, then something is wrong.

Yet a revolution in changing traditional ways of treating criminals in the U.S. is clearly gaining ground. Some states have been using prison reforms of various kinds for decades, other states will have few reforms.

"Many states are planning a series of community corrections programs," says Milton G. Rector, president of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, one of the nation's most respected corrections-reform groups.

"But we're at a highly critical stage," he said in a telephone interview. More than $2 billion of prison or jail construction at the federal, state, and local levels is pending, and none of it is needed, he believes. "This construction will take place unless there is a public expression of concern," he says.

A similar call for a moratorium on prison construction was made in the final report issued this month by the National Advisory Commission on Criminal Justice Standards and Goals, which was financed by the Justice Department. The commission called for an immediate halt to all construction of prisons for juveniles and — unless a comprehensive plan showed no alternatives available —to adult prison construction.

The American Correctional Association and the Federal Bureau of Prisons, however, say some new construction is needed to relieve overcrowding and reduce the use of old prisons in poor condition.

Key to any moratorium is the assumption that many of these people already in prisons or jails should not be there because they are not dangerous to society. Other kinds of treatment than confinement would help the offenders and the communities they will live in one day.

The American Correctional Association says 20 to 30 per cent of today's prisoners "represent a danger to society and must be securely confined." The rest "can be rehabilitated in less restrictive local institutions or under supervision in the community," the ACA says.

"No more than 15 per cent in some states — absolutely need incarceration," says Mr. Rector. "Get everyone else out," he urges.

"Already community alternatives to prison are being used for many middle- and upper-income offenders — fines, suspended sentences, probation," he says. "We talk about unequal justice — let's give the less well-to-do the same chance as the well-to-do."

He cites the example of William O. Wooldridge, once the highest-ranking sergeant in the U.S. Army, who pleaded guilty last fall to corruption in running clubs for American servicemen overseas. He and three others convicted on similar charges were not sent to prison. Instead they were put on probation for five years and ordered to work three years without pay for a charitable organization.

It costs at least $11,000 a year to keep a married man in prison, says the ACA. This includes the inmate's loss of earnings, cost to the taxpayer if his family goes on relief, and the loss of taxes he would pay — as well as institutional costs, which are not cheap.

By contrast it costs less than a dollar a day to keep a person on probation or parole.

Meanwhile, the person can earn a living, perhaps keep his family off welfare, and pay taxes.

On the other hand, a warning against letting too many criminals out of prison is offered by Norman Carlson, director of the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

"Approximately 40 per cent of the federal population is comprised of bank robbers, kidnappers, narcotics traffickers, murderers, skyjackers," he said earlier this year.

"Ihave grave doubts that we could turn 95 per cent of them loose tomorrow, even if there were enough community programs, without posing a significant threat to the American people."

As the debate continues on how many people in prisons should be released under supervision, reforms are going on in various states.

The programs that helped Dave, Norman, Carol, and the California youths are examples.

Dave bargained his way out of a Wisconsin prison and into a good job.

He signed a contract with prison officials who promised him a specific parole date if he completed a correspondence course he wanted to take on installation and maintenance of airconditioners. He completed the course and was released on the day promised.

"Now he is working as a maintenance electrician at about $4 an hour," says Gerald Mills, who runs the contract program for Wisconsin.

Known as Mutual Agreement Programming the reform offers inmates a chance to get a guaranteed parole date if they complete a study program they help choose.

"It gives the inmate a chance to take part in planning for himself," said Mills in an interview. Letting inmates know ahead of time the date they will be released — instead of wondering when and if parole will be granted — gives the inmate motivation to do his part, he said.

Norman Porter got out of prison too, in Massachusetts, for one confusing day, the state's furlough program. Before returning voluntarily to prison at the end of the day, he went to a shopping center where he was puzzled by electric doors, until someone showed him how to go in.

"They didn't have electric doors in buildings when Iwent doors in buildings when I went view after his return to prison.

The Federal Bureau of Prisons has a furlough program, and so does California, Oregon Washington, Michigan, Florida, Maine and other states. Furloughs allow an inmate to go home for a day or so to keep family ties alive or for other reasons. Massachusetts allows inmates approved for furloughs to go free up to two weeks a year. Maine allows much more time, depending on the inmate's behavior.

Two widely used variations of letting inmates out of prison briefly are the work and education release programs that allow approved inmates to hold jobs or study during the day. At night they return to be locked up.

"More than half the states have work-release programs, but in many states it is window dressing," says Mr. Rector. The idea of education release programs is spreading he says.

But while reforms such as these are aimed at getting nondangerous inmates out of prison quicker and preparing them to go back to a normal life on the outside, other reforms are aimed at diverting people from prison in the first place.

Carol, for example, was headed for a long prison sentence in Iowa after she murdered her husband. But instead she was given intense counseling and was helped to find a job. She has kept custody of her two children and has not gone on welfare.

Her act of violence was a "flare-up" in a marriage that wasn't working, says Neil Wheeler, who works on the Supervised Pre-Trial Release experiment in Des Moines.

Such crimes of passion, as they are often called, especially against a member of the same family, are far different from murder by a gunman who plans his acts. Murderers who act out of passion, reformists argue, are much less "dangerous" than the gunman and often quite susceptible to treatment other than confinement.

Iowa has some community-based jails that allow many inmates out to work or study. The state is stepping up its use of paroie. One of the men behind much of the experimental work is Bernard Vogelgesang.

"We are trying to demonstrate we can make use of community resources," he says. "Opposition has come mainly from some law-enforcement officials who say we are treating people too easily," he said in a telephone interview. But officials from other states — like Texas, California, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and New York — have come to see how the programs are working, he said.

This Week In The World

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Reports of diplomatic efforts for a cease-fire in the Middle East were circulating as the week ended.

On the northern front, the battle between Israel and the other major Arab nations involved, including Israel said its troops were waging a "holding action" digging in to stay on a 300- square-mile slice of Syrian territory seized in the current fighting..

The United States, noting the Soviet Union was resupplying Arab countries with tanks, missiles and airplanes, stepped up its shipments of materiel to Israel early in the week.

Meanwhile, President Nixon was reported pursuing "delicate diplomatic negotiations" with the Soviet Union "to achieve an end to the fighting as soon as possible."

Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin made a trip to Cairo during the week to meet with Egyptian president Anwar Sadat, and diplomatic sources said the two leaders explored the possibility of a cease-fire.

Hope for a quick settlement was tempered by conflicting official Israeli views on whether an outside peace plan would be accepted. A senior Israeli foreign ministry official told UPI Israel and the United States both oppose an in-place cease-fire.

He also rejected any moves toward an outside peace plan and said the war will end only through direct Arab-israeli negotiations.

Around The World, Around The Clock

FLYING OBJECTS — Reports of unidentified flying Reports of unidentified flying objects were widespread during the week, but in some cases the "UFOs" turned out to be the work of pranksters.

Police said two Hooks, Tex., women reported seeing an airborne object with red and white flashing lights and said they knew it was an unidentified flying object because they saw the letters "UFO" painted on one side.

A search was made but nothing was found. The dispatcher also said a man called, whispered, "I am a robot," and then hung up.

Near Greenwood, Del., five volunteer firemen were arrested and charged with disorderly conduct for building a "UFO" out of a seven-foot hoop dotted with orange lights and powered by a fire department generator. The sight caused a traffic jam and police throughout the area were swamped with calls from frightened persons.

PRIZES — Four Nobel Prizes were announced during the week in Stockholm and Oslo. U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and North Vietnam's special negotiators Le Duc Tho both won the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize Tuesday for negotiating an end to the Indochina War. Two days later, the University for work in predicting national economic change, and Australian Patrick White won the literature prize for introducing "A New Continent" into the literary art.

WASHINGTON — Spiro T. Agnew said farewell to Americans in a final televised speech Monday night. He said he did accept money from businessmen when he was governor of Maryland, but did not consider it improper at the time.

ATLANTA — Maynard Jackson won a runoff election and became the first Negro to be elected mayor of a major southern city. Jackson, 35, defeated incumbent Sam Massell, who had warned of a "white flight" if a black were elected mayor.

DETROIT — Teachers who had been on strike against Detroit's schools for 44 days settled with officials and classes resumed Thursday. But officicials said students will have to do without most of their holidays this year to make up for lost time. The strike ended when one school board member shifted his vote to break a deadlock on a contract agreement.

WASHINGTON — Chief U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica dismissed the Senate Watergate Committee's suit to obtain a set of secret White House tape recordings and other documents on grounds the court lacked jurisdiction.

Almost simultaneously, the White House announced it would appeal the ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals in the similar suit by special prosecutor Archibald Cox directing that Nixon turn over the tapes for Sirica's perusal.

Ecumenical Movement Not Failing

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The ecumenical movement — the attempt by Christian bodies with different faiths to find grounds for unity — is almost always reported to be foundering on the edge of failure.

While the largest of the official church union movements in this country, the nine denomination Consultation on Church Union, has its difficulties, on a broader range the movement is neither dead nor even dormant.

To cite an example, Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians in official, denomination-sanctioned conversations have found a common basis on which to discuss the question of papal primacy.

More than other single issue, it was the question of the primacy of the Pope — the power and role of the Pope in Rome — that brought about the schism known as the Reformation.

In announcing the agreement, the 24 theologians said "perhaps the most notable thing about the statement is that it has been possible jointly to compose it for publication at all!"

"To many, if not most, Lutherans and Roman Catholics, their respective traditional positions on this subject seemed irreconcilable," the theologians said.

The statement, which combines points of agreement, remaining disagreements and possibilities for steps both communions might take "toward the resolution of this historically divisive issue," will not be made public until early next year.

But it said that "a basis has emerged upon which for the first time since the Reformation, fruitful discussions between our churches on this subject are possible."

In Europe, almost in tandem with the American dialogue between Lutherans and Catholics, official representatives of the left wing of the Reformation — the reformed churches — and Lutherans have issued a joint declaration leading to a common understanding of the relationship of the proclamation of the Gospel and social action.

According to representatives from the two groups —the Lutheran World Federation and the World Alliance of Reformed Churches —the report means the differing traditional emphasis on the relation between "justification" and "sanctification" are fast disappearing.

The old Lutheran-Reformed dividing lines, dating back to the post-Reformation period of the 16th century, between "verticalists" (who understood religious faith primarily as a relationship between God and man) and "horizontalists," (who translated faith into action in the social-political sphere) are no longer relevant, the officials said.

"Our common understanding of the Gospel along with an accurate knowledge of the issues at stake should lead eventually to the development of a common mind on contemporary social ethical questions," the theologians said in their statement.

None of this means that all of a sudden — or even in the foreseeable future — Lutherans and Roman Catholics, or Lutherans and Reform churches are going to merge.

It does mean that some of the touchiest questions that have plagued Christian unity for over 300 years are no longer the obstacles they once were.

ORGAN RECITAL — Raymund A. Frazier tomorrow will present the first in a new series of organ recitals at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael. The recital is set for 8 p.m.

Special Prayer Breakfast Set

The Kiwanis Clubs of San Rafael and Ross Valley have invited religious and civil leaders to attend a community prayer breakfast at the new First Presbyterian Church, Fifth and E streets, San Rafael on Wednesday, Oct. 24, Unitd Nations Day.

A continental breakfast will be served at 7 a.m., followed by an ecumenical service at 7:30 with an address by Dr. Alonzo L. Baker, professor of political science and international relations, Loma Linda University, Riverside, and professor emeritus, University of Pacific, Stockton.

He will speak on the most "What Future for Our America". Services will be completed by 8:15 a.m.

DR. ALONZO L. BAKER
Prayer breakfast speaker

The purpose of the breakfast is to unite leaders of the community in a moment of prayer for guidance and thanksgiving.

Installation Tomorrow At St. Luke

The Presbytery of the Redwoods will install the Reverend Ian Frazer Young as pastor of St. Luke Presbyterian Church, San Rafael, tomorrow at 7:30 p.m.

Participating in the service will be Rev. Willard L. Frederickson, pastor of the San Geronimo Community Presbyterian Church, and moderator of the Presbytery; Martha Thomson, an elder in the First Presbyterian Church of Sausalito; John Eggleston, an elder at St. Luke; Rev. Donald Schilling, pastor of St. Andrew Presbyterian Church of Marin City; and Dr. Charles C. Griffin, pastor of First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael. Dr. Griffin will preach the sermon.

Music will be by the chapel choir and the sanctuary bell choir of St. Luke Church. The public installation will be followed by a reception in the Fellowship Hall of the church.

The pastor-elect said "St. Luke has attained a reputation for its strong music program over the years, and now we look forward to an expanded program of education for children and adults. The church will continue to offer its facilities for civic events as a visible way of showing its concern for the needs of the community. St. Luke is located at Bayview Drive and South San Pedro Road in East San Rafael.

Marin Covenant To Host Hubbard

Dr. David Allan Hubbard, president of Fuller Theological Seminary and a member of the California State Board of Education, will be the guest speaker tomorrow during the 9:30 a.m. worship service of the Marin Covenant Church.

As a member of the State Board of Education, Hubbard has been involved in discussions related to creation and evolution, moral guidelines for schools, and the revision of a Junior High sex education textbook.

At 10:45 a.m. following the worship service, Hubbard will hold a question and answer session on matters related to education, morals, creation and evolution, and religion that are of interest to the general public.

As president of Fuller Seminary in Pasadena, from which Marin Covenant pastor Gary R. Copeland graduated in 1966, Hubbard leads a student body of over 600 post graduate students in the fields of theology, psychology, and world mission.

Dr. Hubbard has recently published nine books. Three of the most popular are "How to Face Your Fears," "Is the Family Here to Stay?", and "Psalms for All Seasons."

DR. DAVID HUBBARD
Seminary president

The Marin Covenant Church is meeting temporarily in the auditorium of the Miller Creek Junior High School at 2255 Las Gallinas Avenue near Lucas Valley Road in Marinwood of San Rafael.

New Organ Recital Series Scheduled At St. Paul's

Rev. Al Price, organist-choirmaster at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, San Rafael, has announced a new series of recitals on the Centennial Memorial Organ in response to the public interest.

Inaugurating the series at 8 p.m. tomorrow will be Raymund A. Frazier a well-known organist and teacher in Bay Area circles. Frazier was born in the Bay Area and studied piano with Rose Millar and Janice Van Thiel Ludlum. He has studied organ with Herbert Bergmann, Dr. Frederick Kunstler, Dr. Pavel Lichtmann, Dr. Edward Curtis, Floyd Wright, Vernon Geir and Richard Purvis.

After receiving his bachelor of music degree in November, 1945, from the National Conservatory, Washington, D.C., he became a staff organist for the Columbia Broadcasting System. His professional career has also included many church positions as organist and performances at the Roxy Theater, New York City — and for NBC and the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Frazier is a composer, teacher and arranger and has served for two years as president of the San Francisco Bay Area Professional Organists Breakfast Club. He is also founder and chairman-emeritus of the California Conference of Professional Organists.

His program will include: Allegro - Concerto in D Minor, Handel; The Old Year Hath Passed Away, Bach; Marche Grotesque, Purvis; Benedictus, Reger; Hark, A voice saith All are mortal, Bach; Trumpet Tune in C Major, Johnson; Sonatina in A Major, Kuhlau; Where'er You Walk, Handel; O Thou of God the Father, Bach; Adagio in C Minor, Vierne; O Hail This Brightest of Days, Bach; Toccata, Gigout.

Subsequent recitalists will be by Rev. Price in November; A service of lessons and carols in December; January to be announced; February to be announced; Dr. Alexander Post of San Francisco State University in March; Mrs. Esther Johnson in April, Donald Sears in May and Terry O'Connor in June.

Gospel Concert

The Chapel Notes singing group will present a concert of gospel music at 6 p.m. tomorrow at North Marin Assembly of God, 1370 South Novato Boulevard.

Judith L. Donaldson Ordination Is Slated

Judith L. Donaldson, daughter of Mrs. Chalmers Donaldson and the late Chalmers Donaldson, Sausalito, will be ordained into the ministry tomorrow at the Chapel in the Valley, Swan Valley, Idaho.

Judith received her ministerial training from the San Francisco Theological Seminary, San Anselmo, graduating June 9, 1973. She served her internship at the Pasadena Presbyterian Church, working with the single adults and the senior citizens. Prior to theological seminary, Judith was graduated from Westminister College, Salt Lake City, Utah, and did graduate work in anthropology at San Francisco State.

Rev. David Jacobson, Sausalito Presbyterian Church, and Mrs. Donaldson will be present for the ordination services. Rev. Jacobson has been invited as a member of the Presbytery to give the sermon.

A conference call will be set up between the Swan Valley church and the congregation of the Sausalito Presbyterian Church so that both congregations may participate in the ordination service.

Soprano Slated To Give Recital

Janet Leidel, soprano, will give a recital in old First Church, Sacramento and Van Ness, San Francisco tomorrow at 4 p.m.

Mrs. Leidel, of San Rafael, began her musical studies in Massachusetts at the Longy School of Music and at the New England Conservatory where she studied opera with Boris Goldovsky.

As a Navy wife, she has had the opportunity to do recitals and oratorio in Florida, Puerto Rico, Pennsylvania, California and Japan. Locally she has appeared as soloist with the Vallejo Symphony and done work with chamber groups at Dominican College. She also directs one of the children's choirs at the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

Peace Lutheran Church To Observe Lay Sunday

Peace Lutheran Church in Tam Valley will observe Christian Laymen's Sunday at 10 a.m. tomorrow. As part of the emphasis, four lay members will take over Pastor Ken Behnken's pulpit to bring a personal witness as to how they have been "Enriched by Christ in My Life."

Gary Beard, an Air Force officer stationed at Travis AFB, will speak from the viewpoint of a young man who plans to enter the Lutheran ministry when his military service ends. Marian Deckman, 75, will represent the experience of the congregation's golden agers. Milton Larson, who works as comptroller of Foremost-McKesson, recently completed a two-year study in the teacher-trainee phase of the Bethel Series of Bible studies. Paula Pinckney, a youth of Peace, will tell what a summer as a member of a Lutheran Youth Alive contact team meant to her.

Another feature of the contemporary folk communion service will be the "graduation" of nine members who have studied with Pastor Behnken since January, 1972, to equip themselves to be teachers in the Bethel series. They are: Eunice Behnken, Byrt Bjerklie, Marvine and Milton Larson, Sam Seifert, Jane Thurston, Elizabeth Ward, Charlotte and John Wilbert.

First Methodist Church Adopts Education Plan

A novel plan for child and adult education has been placed into effect at First Methodist Church in San Rafael which not only provides Christian education for all ages, but also involves the younger participants in arts and crafts relating to the Bible, according to Hollis Hardin, chairman of the education commission.

Junior high and high school students are involved in a project of studying and making Chrismons, which are Christian symbols, each with its own meaning. They are made from old jewelry and will be used as decorations on the Christmas tree in the church sanctuary.

For the first hour the two-year-olds through sixth grade study and learn old Bible stories. At the older levels, study goes into the background of the times, the characteristics of the people, and the political climates, as well as the meaning of the stories.

The second hour is devoted to music and crafts, ranging from making banners of symbols to producing murals of the Bible stories studied. The high school and junior high students assist with these projects.

The children's program runs from 9 to 11 a.m. on Sunday. Adults attend one of two classes from 9 to 10 a.m., "What a Methodist Believes," led by Rev. Ralph Fellersen, pastor of the church, or "A Theological Approach to Situational Ethics" led by Dr. George Furniss, San Francisco Seminary at San Anselmo. Fee for adult education is $3 per semester.

Regular worship service is at 10:15 a.m. Nursery care is provided from 9 to 11 a.m.

Lecturer Will Speak At Hamilton Chapel

How an individual can turn to divine guidance for practical help in contributing to the solution of community and other problems will be explored in a public lecture to be given in Novato, on Sunday, Oct. 28.

John Richard C. Kenyon, CSB, of London, England, will bring out why intelligent guidance is so important in today's rapidly changing world.

A Christian Science teacher, Kenyon is on tour as a member of The Christian Science board of lectureship. He will speak in Chapel 1, Hamilton Air Force Base at 3 p.m. under the auspices of First Church of Christ, Scientist, Novato.

In his lecture, entitled "Where Do We Look for Guidance?" Kenyon will emphasize that everyone can learn to distinguish between misleading impulses and the guidance which has its source in infinite intelligence.

JOHN RICHARD KENYON
Christian Science lecturer

A graduate of Queen's College, Cambridge University, Kenyon served with distinction as a major in the British Army.

Peg Keener Grows, Wins With 'Mums In Year-long Job

Interest In Flowers Goes Back To Childhood Days

Peg Keener, who has had a lifelong attraction to flowers, is known to many as "The Chrysanthemum Lady."

"I've been growing mums for 15 years now, but flowers and growing things have always held intense attraction to me," Mrs. Keener said.

A member of the Marin Chrysanthemum Society, Mrs. Keener is looking foward to the society's annual show, Oct. 27 and 28 at Crocker National Bank, Fourth and B Streets, San Rafael.

MRS. KEENER has been tending her garden at 981 Butterfield Road since her husband, Lt. Col. Bernard H. Keener, retired from the Air Force in 1961.

She told of her early interest in flowers during her "girlhood days in one of those Baltimore row houses, one of those with marble steps. I have recollections of begging my mother to let me use the kitchen scissors to cut the new spring grass."

"Then when the Rose of Sharon bush, the only blooming plant in that tiny back yard came into bloom early summer, I could hardly wait to be lifted up to touch the first lavender-pink ruffled flower."

THEN, she said her family moved to the county, and "my mother, who indeed, had ten green thumbs, planted all sorts of flowers, among them hardy chrysanthemums, and I can remember the strange pungent-fresh smell they had in the fall."

Her passion for chrysanthemums was renewed years later when her husband was serving at Langley Field, Va., and she frequently walked past "a lovely fenced garden" on the way to the store.

In that garden, "I saw for the first time growing disbudded exhibition chrysanthemums," she said. "They were all yellow, gigantic and held a special attraction for me. Perhaps even then the germ was planted that later became an almost obsession.

"I GUESS what really 'hooked me' was when, one afternoon on an exploratory drive around our nearby countryside, we passed an open gate leading to a lovely old farmhouse and just through the gate I spied a display stand holding potted chrysanthemums — giant exhibition incurves and spiders, cascade styles and a few bonsais."

With only a few Japanese words at her command, she entered the yard and spoke to "a lovely young lady in a kimono," who "knew a few English words and readily understood my Japanese expression for beautiful flowers, beautiful chrysanthemums, as well pantomime that I wished to view the stand closer," Mrs. Keener said.

"There surely is a universal language and understanding among flower growers that needs no words."

When she was given "a magnificent bloom to take home" it was then "I decided that when we returned to the states I'd grow 'mums like that."

Within the first year after the Keeners settled in San Anselmo, Mrs. Keener joined the Marin Chrysanthemum Society, an organization she described as "a dedicated group with a special and strong bond of comradeship.

SHE HAS served as an officer of the society, and has helped others in the society "but certainly, at times of need, have received much more in return," she said.

"A few years ago, early August, I broke my ankle, a double spiral break, and was unable to do all important "bud taking" toward the end of that month. Bud taking means removing all buds except the one to go on to maturity on each stem, she explained.

Members rallied to her aid and spent hours disbudding while Mrs. Keener sat in a wheel chair "directing and suggesting."

"I have recollections of begging my mother to let me use the kitchen scissors to cut the new spring grass," Mrs. Keener recalled.

"Work begins in early spring getting bands, flats and pots ready. Potting soil is mixed and prepared at this time — different mixes and proportions of peat, sand, perlite and garden soil for different uses," Mrs. Keener explained.

"Oh, I'd received from boyfriends a "football" 'mum to pin on at game time, but they were from a florist shop, quite disembodied from the intense attraction that these growing ones held."

MRS. KEENER said she wished she had had the courage to go into that yard. "Young and naive, I hadn't learned yet that a little courage and brashness is all that is needed to make friends just by walking into a strange garden where something is of interest or attraction and expressing that interest."

On the move from base to base with the Air Force, Mrs. Keener said she didn't have occasion to see a flower show until her husband was transferred to Yokoto Air Force Base, Japan, in 1957.

The chrysanthemums in Japan were beautiful, and the prized plants were proudly displayed by entire families, she said.

"It was the "Year of the Broken Ankle" that my magnificent 'Ave Maria' took best in show," she said.

Two years ago, Mrs. Keener was hospitalized, and members again came to her aid. "Competition is stiff at our show, but it was those members who would be competing most strongly against me who gave their time and help," she said.

MRS. KEENER, one of three persons in California to have earned master judging credentials, won two major trophies at the National Chrysanthemum Show in Oakland last year . . . one for the best potted plant and one for best exhibition reflex.

"Growing chrysanthemums is a labor of love to be sure, but I do love it," she said.

"Work begins in early spring getting bands, flats and pots ready. Potting soil

Haunted House A Tradition

It wouldn't seem like the Halloween season in Marin without the "Haunted House" fashioned by the Jolly Rogers Chapter of the Children's Home Society.

Within the short span of a decade it has become a tradition for youngsters and their families who have traipsed past "devils, witches and ghouls" in fright and fun.

Chapter members learned in 1964, as horror-movie producers before them, that people will pay money to be scared.

Before then the chapter had about seven or eight activities a year, luncheons, teas, bowling parties, dances, rummage sales and bridge parties to raise funds, according to Mary McCarthy of San Rafael, a past president.

Barbara Wilson of Novato after viewing the Children's Home Society haunted house in Sacramento, thought it was "fantastic" and "we had to convince" the other members to have one "here because it meant we had to put out money," Mrs. McCarthy said.

ALL doubts were dispelled when the first haunted house was opened in an old house on B street in San Rafael, and crowds "were lined up going around the corner," even in pouring rain there were ladies with all those Cub Scouts, Campfire Girls and Brownies," Mrs. McCarthy said.

Workers volunteered and local merchants supplied material or money for the project and "the first year it was amazing we had as many as we did," she said.

Signs on the old shingled building read "San Marin Lumber Co., Craft Press, Horizon Girls, Wood's TV, Purity Stores, Scotty's Market," and so on . . . a show of support.

The haunted house was switched in 1965 to the old Coleman School building at Linden Lane and Grand Avenue, since demolished, and then in 1970 to the old Marin County Jail, its "best location," which was lost when the courthouse in downtown San Rafael was destroyed by fire and later demolished.

SINCE 1971 the haunted house has been in Novato, and the chapter will have its 10th annual house this year at 1485 South Novato Boulevard, Oct. 24 to 30. The hours are 3 p.m. to 9 p.m. weekdays and from noon to 9 p.m. on the weekend.

The Haunted House is closed on Halloween so all the ghosts, witches and devils can have the night off.

The job of presenting a haunted house has become a large task involving all 40 chapter members, their husbands, children and volunteers.

"You can't do anything like this without the husbands," Mrs. McCarthy said. "When we started it they must have thought . . . what have these harebrained women gotten us into," she said.

During the run of the haunted house each member works six three-hour shifts, and work preparing the house starts weeks before opening.

Manikins, mirrors and other equipment is taken from storage at the Nave Shopping Center in Novato, the new exhibits are set up and decorated, the wiring installed and countless other chores are undertaken.

"IT'S hard work," said Nancy Bechtel of Novato, publicity chairman. Then, after the closing, it starts all over again with the appointment of a new chairman for the haunted house in the following year.

The haunted house has attracted thousands from Marin, along with visitors from Sonoma County and San Francisco, and "our highest attendance was about 25,000 in the jail," Mrs. McCarthy said. "It was our best place. I think it was the atmosphere, with the bars and every-

PROFILE OF A MARINITE

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The flood of more than 30,000 Marin commuters crossing the Golden Gate Bridge each weekday carries only one man in a direct position to do something about the flood.

He is Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley, the only man on the 18-member board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge District who has to make the crossing to get to work. It is not surprising that he also is the board's prime mover to expand the bus fleet.

Meyer, 46, came on the board almost five years ago when it was overhauled to add elected officials and a third representative from Marin. The overhaul started an avalanche of changes that landed the district in the transit business.

THE OLD GUARD on the board, he said, has gone along with the changes "because they know that district wouldn't be there if it weren't for the effort they're doing to solve the problem for those who use that structure."

Never afraid to stick out his neck, Meyer had his first foray into public controversy when he was on the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission. He takes credit for instigating the firing of Parks Superintendent Joseph F. Penders in a bitter political battle. The pleasant but easily aroused Meyer found the commission's staff "just was not keeping up our facilities."

Meyer went on to win election in 1966 as a city councilman, serving as Mayor for two years before leaving office in 1970. "I was stealing from my family's time" to be on the council, he said of his decision not to seek reelection.

By then he was on the bridge board representing Marin's cities. After leaving the council, he moved over to the slot for the appointee to the bridge board from the county board of supervisors.

HIS performance on the bridge board again has proven how he throws himself into his tasks. He has missed only one meeting over the years, and never missed a session when on the county's transit district board for several years, he noted. That comes to hundreds of meetings.

In addition, he stops by the bridge office several times a week "to ask questions and get answers" from the staff.

Meyer admits to commuting by car usually, although he is a passionate advocate of transit. He explained that in his insurance brokerage business, he needs his car to get to clients in distant parts of San Francisco.

But his $125-a-month office in North Beach sports a "garage," even though it is on the second floor. It's a long closet where he parks the bicycle he uses to get around downtown.

MEYER runs the one-man, one-secretary operation from a tiny office he noted was air-conditioned when he opened opposing bay windows. He bought the business from his father 22 years ago after working several years for insurance underwriters.

"I am like the rest of the nuts; I get in my car on weekends and clog that highway, when we should stay home and enjoy what's right around us."

A native of San Francisco, and a member of the Society of California Pioneers, Meyer was reared in Burlingame. He served in the infantry with the first troops to occupy Japan, then attended the University of California.

He and his wife, Shirley, went to the same elementary school, but did not get to know one another until 1956. When first married, they lived in an attic apartment on Telegraph Hill in the second oldest building in San Francisco.

In 1958, with the coming of children, they built their English Tudor style home on a hill overlooking Mill Valley's golf course. They have three children, Douglas, 14, Danny, 11, and Susan, 8, a dog and two cats.

A SIERRA CLUB member for 35 years, Meyer has a love of the outdoors dating to the early 1940s when he used to ski at Donner Pass. "You would hardly pass a car on the highway back to Sacramento," he remembered.

The crowds at ski slopes today have "taken away from the natural enjoyment you used to get out of it," Meyer lamented. He still has a cabin at Alpine Meadows, but he and his family now spend most of their time away on a 320-acre ranch he bought three years ago in Trinity County.

It's a working ranch, with everybody pitching in to make it run. "We had 10 lambs last year, and that's 1,000 pounds of lamb for the family and some to be sold," he said proudly.

MEYER so loves Marin, however, that he regrets he leaves too little time to enjoy it more. "I am like the rest of the nuts; I get in my car on week ends and clog that highway, when we should stay home and enjoy what's right around us.

"We should learn as a society not to run off to someplace else to find what is so beautiful in our backyard. I'm a prime example of a damn fool in that regard, but I know better, and one day I'll change my ways," he vowed.

But he never will change his ways on the bridge board, he insisted, pointing to his reputation for bucking the usual political games that abound there. "I'm very direct, and sometimes willing to put my neck on a block — like almost running out to do it — because I feel that in the long run, honesty will out.

"I also have another bad trait. I don't feel it is that important to be in with the group, to be in with the other directors, as it is to be representing your constituency appropriately and saying what you feel like saying at the right time instead of playing the game.

"I'm very direct, and sometimes willing to put my neck on a block — like almost running out to do it — because I feel that in the long run, honesty will out," said Dean Meyer.

"THAT'S the only way it satisfies me, and otherwise I'd rather be out shoveling horse manure," he said.

To the obvious displeasure of many fellow directors, Meyer has been the prime pusher for a year to add 32 buses to the district's fleet of 188 overcrowded coaches. The purchase has been stymied by directors who refuse to increase transit deficits unless tolls are increased.

The need for the buses has put Meyer solidly in favor of hiking tolls from 50 to 75 cents, but opposition by San Francisco supervisors to the increase so far has blocked the increase.

The "overpowering" representation from San Francisco on the bridge board — half of the 18 members — was "a difficult political problem," Meyer said, "but we're coping with it because to change it, by pushing too hard to change it, we could lose the whole damn thing."

NOTING it takes a year to get buses even after they are ordered, he said the 32 coaches should have been put into service a year ago. The delay already has put the system two years behind the demand for commuter service, he said.

As for some motorists who challenge the toll increase, he argued, they should realize transit means less traffic and air pollution on the freeway. They forget what traffic was like three years ago before the transit system started, he said.

If the district had not started the transit system, Meyer said, congestion today would not just be what it was three years ago, rather "it would be a mess."

Asked about occasional reports he may be interested in seeking elective office, Meyer said he could be attracted to the county supervisorial seat held by his longtime friend, Michael Wornum, who is expected to run for state Assembly. If Wornum were elected, the vacancy would be filled by the governor.

MEYER is on the Marin County Republican Central Committee and was on the party's state central committee. He chaired the 1970 Marin reelection campaign of Rep. William S. Mailliard, R-Sixth District. He was finance chairman for the 1970 general election campaign of Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

But Meyer conceded that political ambition would compete with his family's need for "time to do the things we dearly love to do, and that's walk along a dusty road kicking a rock with nothing on your mind for a little while."

DEAN N. MEYER of Mill Valley, the only commuter on the Golden Gate Bridge District board, a fighter for more buses, stands at the Mill Valley bus depot as a district bus pulls up to a stop.

With the haunted house netting from $10,000 to $12,000 a year, the chapter is the largest donor in the state to the Children's Home Society, Mrs. McCarthy said.

In past years a few critics have complained that some of the exhibits were too gruesome for youngsters, but Mrs. McCarthy said there is a review of rooms at a preview session and those considered to be too strong, have been changed before opening time.

"WE KEEP clowns and people in happy faces and have a certain amount of happy things," she said.

During its history the haunted house has played a role in the families of members, some of the children literally growing up with the house.

President Tamra (Tami) Howard of San Rafael, a 10-year member, who portrayed a "witch" long before she was named to head the chapter, recalled that the first time she and her husband, Kenneth, worked on the first house, her oldest son was then six months old.

"Since then there has never been an October without a Haunted House. This is true for most of our members . . . complete family participation," she said. "Husbands work, children help and babies nap; all among ghouls, witches, black paint, sawing, hammering and eerie sounds. We even make our own cobwebs."

FAMILY participation is a little startling to the young tykes however when the mothers, in a rush, drive home in their witching makeup and costumes.

"When I'd come home, he'd look at me, and then come in the first thing in the morning to make sure I didn't really look like that," Mrs. Bechtel said.

Mrs. McCarthy recalled startling drivers along the highway as she drove by in full haunting regalia.

Every cent gained goes to the Children's Home Society which is now stressing counseling, and "the county gets the services," Mrs. McCarthy said.

There are more than 400 chapters and 246 Children's Home Society auxiliaries in California.

At the state meeting last spring the society approved working in four new areas of service to meet the needs of changes in society.

THE PROGRAMS listed were:

"Counseling and remedial services for children living in stress situations in their own homes.

"Therapeutic foster homes for children who need to be temporarily removed from the stress in their own homes.

"Group home service for small groups of children and adolescents not able to live in their own homes or with foster families, but who do not need institutional care.

"Family day care service for preschool children who need to be out of their homes for some time each day in order to relieve family stress."

Executive Director Julian Brantley told of the pressing needs of child mothers, reported last year that the society served 428 pregnant girls, 16 and younger.

Mrs. Bechtel said the Peter Pan Chapter of the society will sponsor the refreshments booth at the haunted house and "don't forget to mention that the Novato Police Explorer Post 392, will direct traffic and parking, and they donate their time."

Growing 'Mums Is A Labor Of Love is mixed and prepared at this time — different mixes and proportions of peat, sand, perlite and garden soil for different uses.

In April she made cuttings for personal use and for the society's annual plant sale, where funds are raised to finance the autumn show.

"I HAD promised 500 banded, rooted plants for the sale this year, but fell some 50 short," she said.

Speaking from her successful experience as a chrysanthemum grower, Mrs. Keener told about the work involved:

"Good growers like to take the banded young plant and transplant it up to a three-or-four inch pot before putting it directly into the ground or a larger pot in order to build up a good root system.

"Good show plants come from new cuttings started each year, and after cutting-taking, the old plants are dug up and usually destroyed. Since my growing area is restricted, I sterilize the beds where the show 'mums are to be grown. This is done at least once every two years with Vapan, which I have found the easiest to use of the soil sterilizers.

"I guess what really 'hooked me was when, one afternoon on an exploratory drive around our nearby countryside, we passed an open gate leading to a lovely old farmhouse and just through the gate spied a display stand holding potted chrysanthemums . . ."

"BEFORE this step and replanting, humus, peat and nutriments are added to the soil. The portion of the old soil removed to make room for the additives is put in the humus bin for recycling.

"I grow in well-drained, slightly elevated beds in long rows of three to four plants across and these beds have a permanent eight-foot high redwood framework over them.

"In late September or early October the frames are covered with a six mil clear plastic, arranged so the side and end drop can be either rolled or thrown up during clear weather. Good air circulation is a necessity for this flower when growing, and especially when in bloom, so the side covers are let down only when absolutely necessary. I learned the hard way that seven months work can be destroyed by one of our area's terrific autumn storms.

"A WELL-STAKED plant can stand wind, but a day or so of rain deteriorates a bloom once the petals have started to unfold. Oh, I grow many 'mums in unprotected beds around the property, but these are smaller flowers, hardies we call them, left to multiple bloom. But even these must be staked and well-tied for wind protection."

This is the month that all the toil pays off, according to Mrs. Keener. "When October brings in the flowers all the effort is worth it for me. Each morning I can hardly wait to get out to see how much the blooms have unfolded during the night."

The climax in the society's show will be from 1 to 6 p.m. Oct. 27 and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Entries will be received from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Oct. 26 at the Crocker National Bank, San Rafael, with nonmembers eligible to enter the competition.

SPRAYING is part of the job of keeping chrysanthemums healthy and Mrs. Kenner goes about that chore at her San Anselmo home, where she spends countless hours tending to her plants.

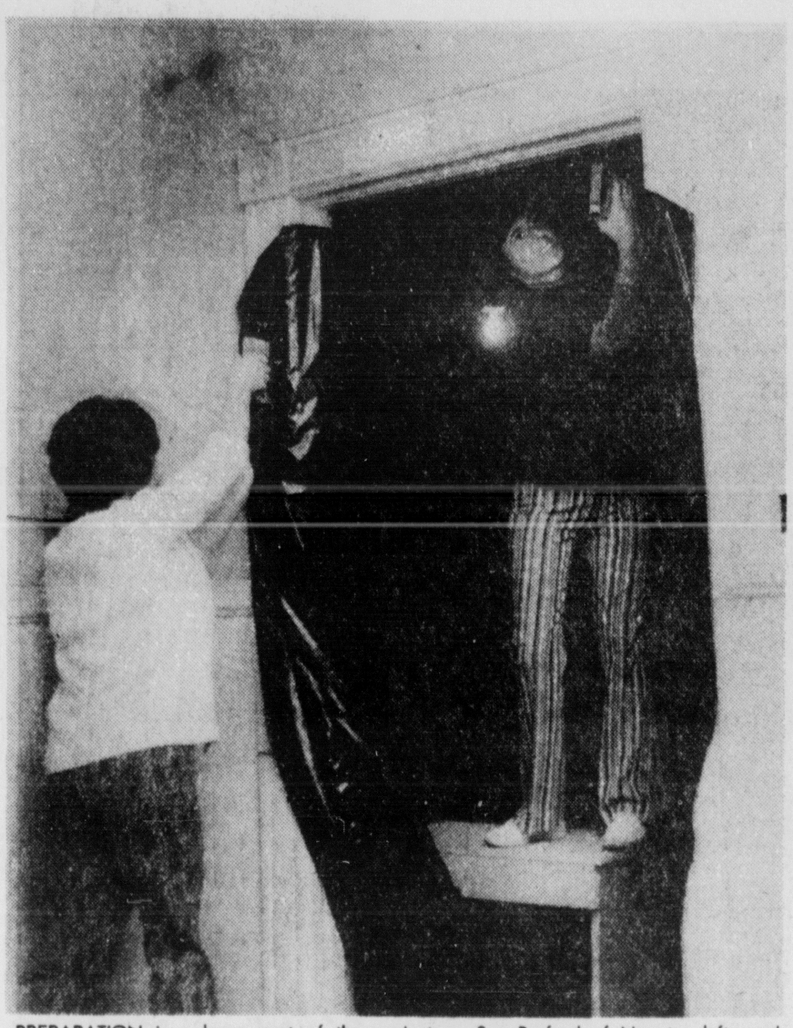
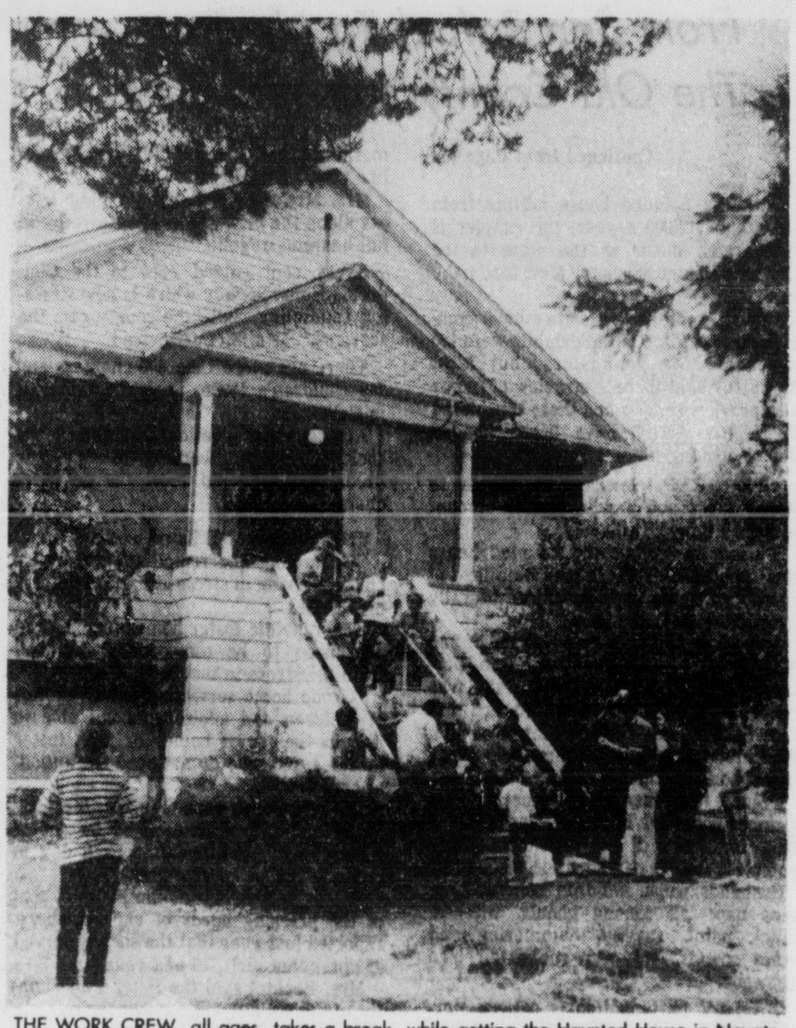
Scaring People Takes A Lot Of Work

WITCH'S WELCOME is given to youngsters at the Jolly Rogers Chapter's first Haunted House in San Rafael by then President Dorothy Bates, and the pirate's flag set the tone for the adventure ahead.



PREPARATION is a large part of the project as Sue Burford of Novato, left, and Dorothy Werner of San Rafael, prove as they put up dark material at the current Haunted House at 1485 South Novato Boulevard, Novato.



THE WORK CREW, all ages, takes a break, while getting the Haunted House in Novato ready for this year's haunting exhibits to be viewed Oct. 24-30.

EXPANSION IS A SIGN of success and the chapter is improving the Novato Haunted House, with the addition of a staircase.

LINES were long, an unexpected surprise, when the chapter opened its first Haunted House on B Street in San Rafael in 1964, and they have been long ever since.

MANIKINS are a vital necessity in a haunted house and the chapter stores its supply from year to year, a supply that Wayne Easton of San Rafael is unloading at the Novato site.

A SEVERED HEAD, a disconnected arm and a witch at work are a scary sight, but apparently people like to be scared, for the Jolly Rogers Chapter's Haunted House, is entering its second decade.

MARIN LIVING

OWLS AND WITCHES are a scary combination as Dianne Easton, above, proved in the 1969 version of the Haunted House, and Lois McCallum of San Rafael, right, proved in the 1965 Haunted House.

"Since then there has never been an October without a Haunted House. This is true for most of our members . . . complete family participation. Husbands work, children help and babies nap; all among ghouls, witches, black paint, sawing, hammering and eerie sounds. We even make our own cobwebs."

THE JAIL at the former Marin County Courthouse, served as the haunted house, a proper setting and one of the most successful according to chapter members. Barbara Jones of San Rafael guides a youngster past the modernistic skeleton.

Hollywood Then-Now

IT WAS FUN WHILE IT LASTED by Arthur H. Lewis, Trident Press, 320 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Jim Williams.

Marilyn Beck is considered one of the hottest reporters in Hollywood these days. She's a new Hedda Hopper. Her daily column is nationally syndicated and she approaches the tinseltown beat rather honestly if you are interested in the trivia of the new Hollywood.

She is more of a hard news reporter than a gossip columnist and in her new book she takes a candid look at today's set of filmland characters — Peter and Jane Fonda, Dennis Hopper, Elliot Gould, Jack Nicholsons and Donald Sutherland to name a few.

The columnist sees a rather bright picture for Hollywood, citing renewed vigor as 1972 came to an end. She does admit, however, on the closing page that it is the public which will decide the direction of today's Hollywood. Personally, while her comments are rather interesting, there's more important elements of our society which need today's public attention.

Arthur H. Lewis on the other hand takes a backward look at Hollywood, interviewing the likes of Mae West, John Wayne, Glenn Ford — some of the biggies before the Goulds, the Fondas and the Hoppers forged into the spotlight.

The interviews ring with memories of the past — when the stars lived in mansions, had countless servants and limousines a block long. But again, it is hardly prize winning material — looking into the lives of so many fallen stars of the Old Hollywood.

BROWSING BOOKMAN

Those who wish to combat rising food prices, without relinquishing an occasional evening out, can get an assist from two new food and wine paperback guides, published by Camaro.

One entitled "Hidden Restaurants of Northern California" lists inexpensive eating places in the northern section of the state, and the other "Wine Tasting in California" list wineries where sipping is free. They are priced at $1.95 each.

Attorneys Sherman and Warner of Berkeley, who wrote "How to Do Your Own Divorce In California," a do-it-yourself law book, have another, "Protect Your Home," a guide to how to protect your home by filing a homestead declaration. It is published by Nolo Press of Berkeley, at $2.95, with the promise that it gives step-by-step instructions.

Vernon Johnson, president of Johnson Institute in Minneapolis, a nonprofit foundation for research in alcoholism, reports on his research in "I'll Quit Tomorrow," published by Harper and Row.

There are many popularly held myths about alcoholics which need to be dispelled if they are to get the help possible for them before they hit bottom, Johnson said.

John D. MacDonald's fifteenth Travis McGee suspense novel, "The Turquoise Lament," (Lippincott, $6.95) will be published in hardcover, the first of the McGee series to be a Book-of-the-Month selection and first to be published in hardcover before appearing in a paperback edition.

Pierre Androuet, one of the world's foremost authorities on cheese, has written a guide entitled "The Complete Encyclopedia of French Cheese," published by Harper's Magazine Press, with the price at $10.

Chandler and Sharp Publishers Inc. of Corte Madera has announced its first list of books for this fall.

The books are "The Non-Coloring Book" ($2.50) by Denys Cazet, fragments of drawings which the user can complete at his leisure; "Underground Man" ($3.50) by Edward F. Abood, which develops a definition of underground man as he appears in fiction; and "No Trespassing: Explorations in Human Territoriality" ($8.95) by Cornelis Bakker and Marianne Bakker-Rabdau, an outgrowth of several years of marital and sexual counseling by the Bakkers.

SLEUTHS & SUSPENSE

THEY LOVE NOT POISON by Sara Woods; Holt Rinehart and Winston, 215 pages, $4.95; reviewed by Mary Leydecker.

For devotees of the English mystery, Sara Woods has written a good one.

"They Love Not Poison" is in the fine tradition of a tangled thriller of the type to curl up with before a roaring fire or in a hammock under the apple tree.

Austerity problems of those days are woven against a background of rumors of treasure buried on the farm during the English civil war of the 17th Century.

Some attractive young people are the main characters, and needless to say, the victim is not an especially lovable lady.

There's also a little witchcraft, romance and some thoroughly bad guys — adding up to a good suspense story.

A LIFE FOR A DEATH by John Creasey as Gordon Ashe; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 185 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Fred Wyatt.

Patrick Dawlish, a larger-than-life English police hero and head of an international group of police officials called the Crime Haters, is reported killed in Rome because he was trying to destroy the Farenza, an outfit similar to and buddy buddy with the Mafia.

Creasey, a highly prolific author with a reputation for what are called good police procedurals, here strays from the verisimilitude of reality I have found in his novels about Gideon and other criminal-catchers. It's too bad because there is suspense, notably in the scenes in England, that would be more gripping if the whole thing were more believable.

SERPENT'S TOOTH by Sara Woods; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 178 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Patricia Perry.

The newest in the Anthony Maitland, barrister, series, this mystery is set in a tightly-knit Yorkshire town. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Baker have raised a family of 12 foster children, and, inexplicably, one of them kills Mr. Baker.

Maitland, the thinking man and woman's investigator, digs and delves into the family's life, and that of the gossip ridden town, to uncover the reasons for the murder.

THE RICH GET IT ALL by Fran Huston; Doubleday, 230 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Apparently a first novel, this Crime Club yarn belongs to the Sam Spade-Lew Archer-et al school of "tough guy" detectives, with one big difference: Both author and sleuth are women.

Nicole Sweet, private eye and a pretty one, is hired to clear a young man of seemingly impeccable background of a murder charge. Her investigation requires some digging into the pasts of one of Southern California's most prominent, most powerful and wealthiest families and its associates. And the deeper she digs, the messier things get.

At times, Miss Huston seems to be a bit undecided as to whether to give her Miss Sweet the "hard-boiled" or the "humanistic" veneer, although the former generally wins out. And the way policemen and other males fall all over themselves to cooperate with the sexy girl detective is a bit overdrawn. But on the whole, it is an entertaining novel, quite good for a starter (for, no doubt, Nicole Sweet will be back). And the writer saves an effective if nasty surprise jolt for the conclusion.

Peg Bracken Takes Humorous Look At Hectic World Of Package Tour

BUT I WOULDN'T HAVE MISSED IT FOR THE WORLD! By Peg Bracken, Harcourt, Brace and Jovanovich. $6.95. Reviewed by Patricia Latimer.

She has done it again, but this time it is a light-hearted, lovable, laughable travel book, a "non-insistent, non-guide," full of incongruities — adventures, people, places, thoughts, truths and even facts, tied together through Peg Bracken's travels.

She writes with a skill which only the best humorists know how to use. She writes funny. How does she do it? She challenges conventional ideas and situations, adds her personal twist and winds up, leaving the reader in stitches.

Over the years she has come to know the English language and use it well. She can move words up and down, back and forth and sideways. Her dexterity with words and phrases, however, is only part of the Bracken appeal. She knows how to concoct paragraphs and chapters much like a stew throwing in flat-minded, hair-raising, hackneyed, out-of-the-ordinary facts, seasoned with realism. She mixes and churns until they blend. The end result? It is something just this side of fantastic.

Although Mrs. Bracken writes on a subject for which she willingly admits she had very little previous experience, she reinforces any doubt by actually taking a trip and doing her research, accompanied by her photographer husband Parker Edwards.

She meets people like "the small elderly woman in a powder blue knit dress . . . a round chipmunk of a lady" who travels with members of her bridge club. Her seatmate always goes along without her husband for exactly 30 days. Before she departs she cooks him 30 dinners which he freezes. The reason? Her husband is a home gardener who does not like to travel or eat T.V. dinners.

To alleviate any misinformation about any of the widely, publicized, often poorly touted package tours she and her husband sign up for one. "We were getting acquainted over lunch, all of us members of the Morocco Tour Group that had gathered that morning in Malaga bound for a six-day tour of the Imperial Cities." The group was composed of "the Hamiltons from Grand Rapids, real estate, a sallow French-Canadian couple with no English between them, a big boned newly divorced secretary from Chicago, Ione Jones, a retired dean of women, Mrs. Hutteman who asked terribly sound questions . . . and a hearty nurse on holiday, Sally Something who was allergic to eggs . . . Any tour is anonymous as an elevator load, till the second or third day out."

In time she and her husband discover the features of the typical package tour, such as lodgings with modest rooms, a lavish lobby and thin coffee; invisible tour members who are experts on what to see and what not to see; a historic emphasis on what was, not what is; and an impulsive pace to do and see more, in spite of the fact that it is often forgotten.

Throughout the book, she keeps us traveling creatively. She entices and entertains the reader on practically every subject from food to flying, although in several places I did not laugh as hard as in others. For truly delightful reading, I recommend this book.

Nuts, Seeds Nutritional Snacks That Are Tasty

NUTS AND SEEDS: THE NATURAL SNACKS by Rodale Press editors; Rodale Press, 173 pages, softcover, $2.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The late J. I. Rodale, founder of Prevention magazine and Rodale Press, was a staunch champion of seeds as a near-perfect food. It is, therefore, not surprising that this book in Rodale's Organic Living Series of paperbacks begins with introductory material taken from the senior Rodale's frequent articles on nuts and seeds.

"The seed is the crucible wherein the alchemy of life works its magic," he wrote poetically. "In this tiny place is contained the condensed germinating energy, the life-giving elements, including as yet undiscovered gleams . . ."

The book goes on to enumerate the special nutritive values of nuts and seeds —the vitamins, the trace minerals, the protein, etc. — and to examine individually some of the more popular seed foods — sunflower, sesame, pumpkin.

One of the more interesting sections deals with the growing of nut and seed crops, particularly the former. The reader picks up a wealth of information about nut trees —where and how they can be grown, their relationship to one another, their keeping properties, their histories, etc.

Finally, there is a small collection of recipes for delicacies with nut or seed bases.

The Rodale organization, strong advocates of health through nutrition, supports in the book some precepts hotly disputed by orthodox medicine and many nutritionists —that pumpkin seed consumption prevents prostate disorders, that apricot pits help to ward off cancer, etc.

But whatever credence one lends to those kind of questionable claims, it remains indisputable fact that nuts and seeds are a most nutritious food and, furthermore, a most tasty one — a far better choice as a snack than the candy bars, potato chips and cookies for which too many of us reach between meals and before the TV set in the evenings. And "Nuts and Seeds: The Natural Snacks" offers some engrossing and enticing reading that might well lure you into planting your own backyard nut tree, churning your own homemade nut butter, or growing your own sprouts.

Richmond Offers Tour Of Historic Treasures

RICHMOND, Va. — Autumn vacationers in Virginia will discover no better place to begin their sightseeing adventures than this busy capitol city with its panorama of historic and cultural treasures.

Visitors will find it easy to locate major attractions in the city this fall thanks to the newly-created "Richmond Tour," a self-driven motor route connecting 10 of the city's travel highlights.

The "drive-yourself" tour, already popular in several other Virginia cities, permits travelers to explore points of interest at their leisure, to spend as much or as little time as they wish at each stop, and to visit attractions in any order they choose. Distinctive signs, conveniently located throughout the city, will link attractions together and guide visitors from point to point in the comfort of their own automobiles.

RICHMOND, perhaps more than any city, is the heart of the Old Dominion and an ideal starting point for a visit to Virginia. Interstate highways, railroads and airlines reach out from Richmond to Williamsburg and Tidewater on the east, to Charlottesville and the Blue Ridge on the west, Mount Vernon and Washington on the north, and historic old Petersburg on the south.

The city played an unparalleled role in the events which helped to mold the course of Virginia and the nation. The capitol of the Old Dominion since 1779, Richmond also served as the capitol of the Confederacy during the Civil War.

Patrick Henry, Thomas Jefferson, George Washington, John Marshall, Robert E. Lee and Jefferson Davis once walked the city's streets, spoke from its pulpits, and went out from Richmond to change the tides of history. Their presence can still be seen and felt in the city today.

Modern Richmond is the heart of the state's cultural, business and commercial activity. One of the great tobacco markets of the world, it is a major center of government, finance, and industry. It is also a leading convention and trade center.

THE CITY is also the cultural heart of the state and is noted for its variety of theatres, museums, art festivals, and special events. It is also an educational center with several major colleges and universities.

The Capitol Building, designed by Thomas Jefferson after a Roman temple in France, was the first building of classic architecture in America. Completed in 1788, the structure serves today as the home of the oldest, continuous, English-speaking legislative body in the world. It houses a marble statue of George Washington by Jean Antoine Houdon, the only sculpture of Washington completed during his life-time.

THE TOUR also features several homes which together trace the city's history from colonial times through the post-Civil War period. The Old Stone House, dating from 1737 and believed to be the oldest existing structure within the original boundaries of the city, serves today as the Edgar Allan Poe Museum.

The John Marshall House, built in 1790, was the home of the great Chief Justice until his death in 1835. The house today contains many of the original furnishings, portraits of the Chief Justice and his family, and examples of his writings.

The Valentine-Wickham House, constructed around 1812, is regarded as one of the country's best examples of Federal architecture. A part of the Valentine Museum, it houses an extensive collection of period furniture, china, crystal and paintings.

Other historic houses on the tour include the Virginia House, modeled after three early English estates; Wilton, home of William Randolph, III; and the Brockenbrough home, which served as the residence of Jefferson Davis during his term as President of the Confederacy and today operates as the Museum of the Confederacy.

THE VIRGINIA Museum displays one of the largest art collections in the South. Its 14 galleries house art treasures from ancient Egypt to contemporary American and includes the largest public collection of Faberge Russian crown jewelry in the world.

Tree-lined Monument Avenue is perhaps the best example of old and new Richmond melding together. Stately townhouses providing some of the modern city's most gracious residences face each other across the broad avenue containing monuments to Virginia's heroes. Although a main traffic artery, Monument Avenue retains a spirit of earlier, quieter days.

Information on the Richmond Tour may be obtained by writing the Greater Richmond Chamber of Commerce, 616 East Franklin Street, Richmond, Va. 23219.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH in Richmond, Va., the site of Patrick Henry's ringing "Give me liberty or give me death" speech in 1775, is one of the attractions on a newly-created Richmond tour. The church still houses an active congregation, but is open to visitors throughout the week.

Holland's Delta Project A Highlight

By BILL HOLLENBECK

A visit to Holland's Delta Project may be just the highlight you've been searching for to make a European vacation a huge success.

Here's a drive I heartily recommend. It can take two days, or two weeks, or something in between. Along the way there are attractions for each member of the family.

There are many picturesque restaurants serving all manner of food, from good and wholesome to gourmet specials. The opportunities for picnics are plentiful. Tiny fishing villages are well stocked with tempting breads, cold cuts and cheeses as well as the beverage of your choice.

AND IF the breeze is too brisk along the seaward side you'll find acres of lush, placid canal banks where it's so quiet it's like sitting in a painted landscape. An occasional windmill is all that intrudes upon nature's backdrop of rich Vermeer blues.

Since you will undoubtedly enter the region from a northeasterly direction (The Hague or Rotterdam) you should make it a point to stop first to inspect the Delta Expo at Goeree. Here, in miniature, is a detailed display designed to explain this engineering marvel simply and effectively.

And since they provide a full ninety minutes or more of visual interest, it's well worth inclusion in your plans. By all means take your camera.

There is plenty of practical machinery and equipment in evidence along the canals and inlets. After the awful flood disaster of 1953 it was agreed to go all out on the Delta Plan and the work is now 80 per cent finished.

THE LAST of the planned dams to be closed will be that in the Eastern Scheldt and it will be ready in 1978. Even getting lost in the Delta area can be fun. It's the best way to meet people. For instance. We were somewhere between Delta Expo and Zierikzee where we planned to have lunch. I had just driven up out of a mean looking dead end road probably intended for wheelbarrows when we were aware of a rhythmical yach-a-ffft, yach-a-ffft kind of sound coming from the general area of the right front end of the car.

My wife remarked quietly but knowingly, "You have a flat tire." (Why is it whenever it's anything bad it's always "You have" and when it's good, like finding money, it's "We have"?)

With the authority acquired in some thirty years of driving I retorted, "Don't be silly, it's simply one of the tires going like yach-a-ffft, yach-a-ffft!"

Actually, we were both right.

I ENTERED the liquor store whose entrance we were blocking and in a very short time we were being liberally plied with beer by our host who spoke no English while his young friend who did arranged to have the tire changed and acted as translator for the duration of our comfortable visit. Try getting lost next time. You'll be glad you did!

One of the tastiest and most sumptuous meals of the whole trip awaited us at the Mondragon Restaurant in Zierikzee.

The town is one we've marked for a return visit of two or three days. The great variety of window glass design to be found in the houses is but one of the unique and fascinating features.

AFTER LUNCH we parked on the side of the main canal and watched a large procession of boats arriving to celebrate the 400th anniversary of the time the last Spanish troops were booted out of town. With the sound of the motors muffled by the grassy banks of the canal, a silent file of masts moved on the town from far away across the polders.

In whatever time you decide to set aside for covering the Delta area you'll find when it's over you've garnered an unusually large store of pleasant memories. For me the sting of sea wind blowing off the stone quay in the delightful little town of Veere was a one-of-a-kind experience. Hard to realize that from the 14th to the 18th century it flourished as a key port for the Scottish wool trade.

And so was suddenly hearing "It's A Long Way To Tiperary" ringing out from the carillon tower over the gabled rooftops in Middleburg, capital of the Province of Zeeland.

AND HOW can you forget the thrill of dining in the superb L'Escaut restaurant in the Grand Hotel Britannia in Vlissingen and watching the running lights of the great cargo ships plying between the port of Antwerp and the North Sea?

From Vlissingen (a name more easily recognized as Flushing) you might do as we did, continue your Holland tour by driving to Breda which will introduce you to the equally fascinating inland areas. Here's a chance to explore the many attractions of one of Holland's most important cities historically; this was the residence of the powerful House of Nassau. The Great Church is probably the foremost example of Gothic architecture in all The Netherlands. With Breda as your base it is possible to see three quarters of Holland or Belgium in a single day.

It is also possible to hole up in the Hotel Mastbosch in its lovely sylvan setting, with its excellent gourmet cuisine, and think seriously of immediate and total retirement.

Montreal Street Is The Place For Antique Hunters

In the market for a bargain-priced Chippendale dining table, gold-plated Napoleon china, Tiffany lamps, a 22-volume set of Thackeray bound in calfskin, or hand-carved 19th Century rocking horses?

If they aren't already sold, then you can get them somewhere on Notre Dame Street in Montreal, Canada, which has acquired a reputation among professional and amateur collectors as a goldmine of low-priced art objects.

One dealer offers a wealth of pine armoires, spinning wheels, and even blacksmith's bellows recreated as coffee tables.

Traveling By Car Best For Pace

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Planes fly too high, trains run too fast and buses have schedules to keep. So, next to hiking, probably the best way to see the U.S.A. or Europe is by car.

Traveling by car also allows you to set your own pace and choose your own itinerary. You don't have to worry about schedules and you can always spend an extra day or so at some particularly charming out-of-the-way place.

The growing popularity of auto travel among vacationists is underlined by the scores of fly-drive packages offered by domestic and foreign airlines here and abroad. They usually include air transportation, a car with unlimited mileage and some accommodations.

YOU CAN go on your own, too. Rental cars are available in cities throughout the United States and Europe. In many cases, cars can be rented in one city and left in another — or even some other country. Some companies charge an extra fee for this service while others do not. So check first.

Check also on car-rental taxes. Several European countries have imposed such taxes — France collects more than 20 per cent — so you could save money by renting a car elsewhere if you have a choice.

If you're going to Europe, you will need a valid passport for identification and crossing borders. But other required documents — including proof of insurance — will be provided when you pick up your rental car.

EVEN though your U.S. driver's license will be honored in most European countries, Hertz suggests delays at border crossing points can be avoided with an International Driving Permit (IDP). The permit is a "must" in Spain, Portugal and West Germany.

The IDP, which bears pertinent data in nine languages, can be obtained before leaving the United States from any American Automobile Association office. All you need is your local license, two passport-type pictures and $3. It is not necessary to be a member of the AAA to avail yourself of this service.

WHILE languages differ, West European countries use the same easily-interpreted symbolic road signs. For instance, a round sign with an inverted triangle means "stop at intersection" in Italy, Belgium and elsewhere on the continent.

Driving is on the right side of the road, except in the United Kingdom and Irish Republic where you keep to the left. When driving to the left, keep directional blinkers on as long as you remain in the right passing lane.

Watch out for "blue" parking zones. A blue zone has no parking meters; a timing device comes with the rental car and is set by the driver for as long as he wishes to park and then placed atop the dashboard. If time has expired before the driver returns, the car may be towed away.

When planning the itinerary, figure on a 60-kilometers per hour (37 miles) speed limit on most good open roads. Speed limits are much higher on the superhighways but traffic is usually very heavy and you could see more anyway by exploring the side roads.

While automatic-transmission rental cars are available in most countries, vehicles with clutch transmissions are best for mountain driving such as you'll find in Switzerland, the Austrian, German and French Alps and the Italian Dolomites. And they rent for less.

You can save on gasoline, too, by renting European-made compacts. Fuel economy is important in Europe where costs range up to 90 cents and more per gallon.

Familiarize yourself with European weights and measures. Speeds and mileages are usually given in kilometers — one kilometer is equivalent to roughly ⅝ of a mile — while gasoline is sold by the liter — slightly more than the U.S. quart.

Available free, through travel agents, is a 24-page brochure issued recently by Hertz titled "See the Real Europe," replete with driving tips, explanation of the international road signs, driving laws and other information.

Planting With Seeds Puts Fun In Growing

By FRANK J. TAYLOR

A lot of the fun of gardening used to be the poring over seed catalogs in mid-winter when next summer's garden was just a rosy dream. Another juicy slice of the joy was planting seeds when the sap began to stir — in the gardener's veins, that is — and checking expectantly every morning to see if the little corn or bean or calendula plants were cracking through the soil.

For me, this is still half of the sport of making plants grow. I'm still an old-fashioned square who delights in seeing a dry seed burst to life as a promising little plant.

Most of today's gardeners miss this exhilaration. They wait until spring is upon them and it's time to plant right now, then drive the wagon over to the nursery.

There the man digs half a dozen to a score of well-rooted tomato or petunia or pepper or marigold plants out of the long table of flats and Mr. or Mrs. Greenthumb hustles home with an instant garden.

IN THE garden centers, even the nurseryman doesn't grow the plants he sells. He orders them by the flat from an assembly line growing factory, a spread of heated greenhouses in which seeds are sprouted by the millions, usually in small, square bottomless plastic boxes, a seed to a box.

Well, I can't blame Mr. or Mrs. Greenthumb for doing it the easy way. This new supermarket method of starting a garden, sometimes already in bloom, saves time and bother. And in today's cramped backyards there isn't space to sow a fistful of packets of seeds, which cost fifty cents for a packet that used to sell for a dime.

I bow to the changing times but I still wouldn't miss the thrill of growing my own plants from seed.

Nowadays, in our garden, they have a long drool; as soon as I sow a seed bed I drop a wire mesh cage over it to protect the young plants until they are too tough to be pecked off. Cages over the corn and bean and sweet pea beds give the thrashers and bluejays ulcers, too.

Other adversaries make seed planting still more sporting. Take the root chewers that hatch out in the soil. I'm ready for them with my hose turf gun, loaded with Chlordane or Diazinon. Usually I treat the seed bed right after I plant. Sometimes, I spray again after the plants are about an inch high.

Of late, I've borrowed a page from the factory nurserymen who grow plants by the thousand for the retail garden centers. I fill small plastic trays with Jiffy Pellets or square peat pots saturated with plant food. With one seed to a pellet or pot, the trays go under small lights in the toolshed early in February. A sheet of plastic keeps out the cold night air.

By the time the spindly little plants are an inch high, I move the trays to a plastic covered cold frame in the full sun. A month of this toughening treatment and my home-grown garden is ready for transplanting in the soil. While Mr. Greenthumb is shopping for plants, I've grown exactly the varieties I want from seed.

Taking Plants Indoors Gives A Lift

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

With the nights growing cooler and the days shorter, the home gardener focuses again on house plants.

Those sitting outdoors all summer are refurbished and brought in. A few new ones can be added to give the indoor garden a lift to the home decor.

Plants that have camped outside need to become accustomed gradually to indoor conditions, especially of American heated houses and apartments.

IF POSSIBLE bring them in about two weeks before the heat is on, and while windows near them can still be open during the day. Set them in the coolest part of the house at first.

Before you bring them in, spray each plant with tepid water to wash off possible tiny insects and to clean the leaves.

If the pots have been plunged into the soil make sure that insects or earthworms have not crawled in. To do this, wet the soil in the pot, hold the plant upside down with one hand and tap the pot until the earthball comes out intact. Examine it and reset it in the pot. Next, scrub the pot thoroughly.

Some plants may need repotting. They tell you this by sending out roots through the bottom holes. If so, give them the next size larger pot — no bigger.

GERANIUMS and begonias should be severely pruned back to shape and repotted in fresh soil. They have been blooming outdoors all summer and need a period of rest. Toward spring you can increase watering and feeding. They will bloom in the garden another season. You can try rooting the cuttings in sand, or even in water, potting them up for new plants for next year.

Petunias, marigolds, sweet alyssum, impatiens, and other annuals in the garden can be potted up and brought in for house plants before frosts.

Choose smaller bushy plants still full of buds for this. Some will keep on blooming in sunny windows or under lights the better part of the winter. Others will last for at least several weeks.

Next spring you can plant some of them in the garden again. I have done this successfully with fibrous begonias, sweet alyssum, and impatiens.

IF YOUR poinsettia has been outdoors all summer, the stems cut back and already putting out leaves, bring it in now. If it seems potbound repot it in fresh soil and give it a chance to get established.

It needs special light conditions to help it bloom this winter —short days and long nights.

It should not remain in a room used at night. By 5 p.m., October through Thanksgiving, place it in a completely dark room until about 8 a.m.

In sunny windows or where you can provide fluorescent lights you can have flowering plants, adding gay new ones to your supply.

If you have mostly shade, you can go in for foliage plants, and there are many beautiful ones. You will find handsome tropicals and a variety of ferns in the garden shops from now on.

HAVE YOU a sunny kitchen? If so, why not a little herb garden, either in planters or in separate pots along the sill.

Plants can be lifted from the outdoor garden if care is taken to secure a ball of soil around each root.

Or you can get plants from some local garden centers or an entire "indoor herb garden" of plants from several mail-order nursery catalogs.

Chives, thyme, sage, marjoram, and mint will be included. Snipping off leaves here and there for garnish or in cooking is good for the plants.

You might like to consider flowering bulbs, too, in your house plant garden. Topping the list is the handsome amaryllis.

IN EARLY fall you can usually get the huge bulb locally and plant it yourself (partly sticking out above the soil) or you can order one preplanted that will bloom for Christmas.

In the garden shops you will find paper-white narcissus bulbs, which will flower when planted in pebbles and water. Started at intervals of two or three weeks these will give you fragrant flowers all winter.

If your house or apartment is overwarm for house plants, settle for tropicals, succulents, and a collection of fascinating cacti.

Or go in for terrarium planters, which enable you to control moisture. Bowls of water on the windowsill or plants with the pots set on trays of wet pebbles help, too.

YOU CAN have a fascinating time designing your house plant "garden." A sunny window for geraniums and other flowering plants can be supplemented by wall planters for foliage plants with or without fluorescent lighting.

Winter gardening, no matter where you live, can be a delightful adventure and a challenge to the home decorator and plant lover.

LIGHTED WALL planters in a living room give a lift to home decor and provide a challenge to the plant lover who wants to keep his touch during the winter months.

Visualize Spring In Fall Planting

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Autumn is bulb planting time, and the first of the parade of spring-flowering beauties to go in are daffodils and the fragrant cluster-flowered narcissus.

One of the many things nice about daffodils is that they multiply year by year. An investment of even a few this year can yield heavier clumps as the seasons go by. So it is worth choosing the loveliest and caring for them.

Another cheerful thing is that squirrels don't prefer them. So if you have that form of livestock digging up your crocus and tulip bulbs for appetizers, you can know they will leave your host of goldens alone.

BEFORE you plant, try to visualize how they will look in bloom next spring. A dozen bulbs well placed can give you a prettier garden picture than three times that many planted just anywhere you can find space.

Why not take a walk about the garden mentally designing your spring-flowering bulb pictures. There will be tulips, hyacinths, and all the lesser bulbs, too, which you will be planting throughout the autumn.

A THING you don't want is a long straight single or double line of them like a row of marching soldiers.

They have been so extensively hybridized that there is much confusion among homeowners as to which are daffodils, which jonquils, and which narcissus. Actually they are all narcissus, and so lovely it really doesn't matter. One can call them all daffodils.

In most nursery catalogs you will find them classed as large trumpet and medium trumpet daffodils, large cupped narcissus, and the poetaz with small cups. Some catalogs call them all daffodils. Some list as jonquils the small single and larger yellow fragrant narcissus borne in clusters. To add to the confusion there are also miniatures of all these — little charmers which will be discussed in a later article on the lesser bulbs.

IN THE catalogs and in some garden centers colored photographs of each variety enable one to choose the bulbs one wishes for one's garden pictures.

The cups and trumpets, large or small, have been developed in an amazing variety of colors and forms, both single and double. Some are various shades of orange, some apricot, some pink. There are frilly ones, and some edged with a contrasting color or marked like a burst of fire.

The perianths or surrounding collars, too, come in shades of yellow, cream, pink, as well as white. Some are frilly, some pointed, others rounded.

Try the whites, with white cups or trumpets, among hyacinths, primulas, and forget-me-nots at poolside for an unforgettable picture.

For naturalizing, most bulb dealers offer mixtures at a special price — for, say, 20, 50, or 100 bulbs. These are unnamed but are not seconds, nor are they all of one kind.

YOU WILL get daffodils and narcissus with large, medium, and small trumpets and cups of various colors and edgings, some double. You will even get some of the miniatures like Hoop Petticoat or cream-white Thalia. Next spring your woodland or hillside will give you delightful surprises, and for years to come.

Daffodils are planted six inches deep and six inches apart. Some people like those bulb planter tools that simply make a hole.

I prefer churning up the soil deeply where they are to go, insuring good drainage (which they must have) and conditioning it with humus and compost. They don't want manure.

They will start making roots as soon as you set them in this fall and should get well established before winter. This is why it is important in the North to get them in as early in the fall as possible. In the South and other mild climates wait until late November.

AFTER THEY have bloomed, cut off the flower stalk and let the leaves die down naturally. The bulb is building up for next spring. Dig in some plant food around each bulb.

In a couple of years you may find the clumps a bit crowded. In the early fall, then, lift them and separate the bulbs to give them more room. They will reward you.

Chrysanthemums Signal That Autumn Is Here

It's hard to imagine a fall garden without chrysanthemums, for this hardy perennial offers a colorful way to announce autumn's arrival.

'Mums are planted extensively throughout California because they are extremely easy to care for and provide a rewarding performance. To describe 'Mums as fall-flowering is a disservice, really. Certain varieties bloom in mid-to-late summer — others are flowering well into December.

Nurseries have 'Mums plants available right now. Some are just showing color, others are at the peak of perfection. Shopping for 'Mums is a fun family outing. Investigating the possibilities — from a wealth of shade of colors and myriad flower forms — and making selections of different plants is an educational and beautiful experience.

FOR SURE, the youngsters will find a plant or two that strikes their fancy. As 'Mums bloom year after year, this is an inexpensive teaching process, where the beauty can be shared annually by the entire family.

Home gardeners delight to button-types, pompons, daisy forms, decoratives, spoons, spiders, anemone, and exhibition types. These are readily available in nurseries and shopping will turn up even more forms — each with unique characteristics. If the various categories sound confusing, don't let that deter you from growing and enjoying varieties you like, personally. What you like should guide your selections.

Set out the plants in the garden or use them in pots or decorative containers to display on the porch or patio. The blooming plants can be enjoyed for several days indoors — where they serve as festive and cheery fall decorations in the home.

When you do plant 'Mums in the garden, choose a planting site that receives sun at least two-thirds of the day, advises the California Association of Nurserymen. In hot, interior valleys, afternoon shade is recommended.

Ups And Downs Of Humidity Cause More Than Complaints

By ANDY LANG

People have two types of complaints about humidity. There's either too much of it or too little of it.

Most areas usually get too much of it in the summer. Since we're not too far from the season of the year when many of us get too little of it, let's discuss that aspect.

How do we know when there's too little of it? By having a humidistat in the home is one way. But only a small percentage of houses have them.

THERE ARE other ways to tell when there's not enough moisture in the house. One is when you walk across a rug and touch a doorknob or metal handle or something similar and are startled by the static electricity you feel.

Another is when you get a dry skin condition known as "winter itch." Or you may feel cool even though the temperature is between 75 and 80 degrees.

Relative humidity is the amount of moisture in the air compared with the amount of moisture which air at that temperature could hold. Thus, if the air has half as much moisture as it could hold at a certain temperature, the relative humidity is 50 per cent.

Change the temperature and you also change the relative humidity, since warm air can hold more moisture than cold air.

TOO LITTLE humidity is a troublemaker. As the relative humidity of air is lowered, it begins to steal moisture from everything it touches — the furniture, parts of the building, even your body. Wood shrinks, paint cracks, floors separate and crack, paintings check and veneers peel, to name just a few of the results of excessive dryness.

People are more susceptible to respiratory infections when low humidity dries the mucous membranes lining the nasal passages.

There are differing opinions about precise necessary humidity levels, but it is generally believed that when the inside temperature is at 70, the relative humidity should be 50 per cent for human comfort. When it is at 71, the humidity should be 40 per cent; at 72, it should be 30 per cent.

HOW DO we correct conditions of too-low humidity? By adding moisture to the air. Grandma did it to a degree by placing pans of water on the radiators when the heat was on.

Today, it is felt that we should add one gallon of water per room per day under most conditions. And the best way this can be done is with a humidifier. If you decide to get one, take along a hatful of facts with you so that your dealer can help you decide the type and size to use.

The facts should include the kind of house, the number of rooms, the layout, whether there are storm windows, the type of heating, the number of persons living in the house, etc.

THE BETTER humidifiers have automatic humidistats to control the output of water. They turn themselves off when sufficient moisture has been released to bring the relative humidity to an acceptable level.

A TRELLIS-TOPPED screen angles across in front of the house, leading visitors to a walkway-deck extending along two sides of entry court. A screen of one-by-one inch slates on two-by-six inch stringers and four-by-four inch posts adds privacy to sitting deck. A box trellis of two-by-twos supports trailing vine.

Arbors Provide Privacy Screens

Have you ever wondered if you're getting your money's worth out of the land around your home?

For example, is the front yard useful as well as attractive? Or does it look like every other house on the block?

While the street side of shrubs, trees and fence "belongs" to the neighborhood, the other side is private and yours, and there lies your prime opportunity for enhancing your outdoor living.

A wisteria-trailing arbor atop an angled fence-screen helps enclose an entry court garden. It contributes generously to the enjoyment by one family in an area too often planted to grass and forgotten, except at mowing time.

THE SCREEN was placed to form a courtyard with the garage on one side and so as to block the view of cars in the front driveway. But a similar screening treatment could be applied to almost any front yard, flat or sloping.

An engawa, or decked walkway, about four feet wide, extends along the garage to the front door, then continues at a right angle along the front of the house.

In the area enclosed by the ell of the engawa and the screen at the front, a shallow concrete pool about 10 feet in diameter was added, surrounded by low shrubs, iris and moss.

This blends together as a secluded sitting area for coffee sipping, chatting or entertaining, as well as a serenely beautiful setting to give visitors the most favorable impression of the house.

THE SCREEN acquires a delicate appearance from use of one-by-one-inch vertical slats, set on two-by-six-inch stringers and four-by-four-inch posts of cedar. The trellis above is a box frame of two-by-twos attached to top rails of two-by-sixes on the posts.

A gap of 18 inches between trellis and the top of the screen lightens the mood.

The engawa is of two-by-two inch decking on four-by-four inch posts and joists. The decking is stained gold to match the house siding, while the screen was left to weather naturally.

Wives Also Can Utilize Household Job Booklet

By VIVIAN BROWN

That age-old advice to brides — "if you can read, you can cook" — might be updated to, "and you can also do it yourself."

Fortunately more new books are telling how to build, mend, saw, putty, measure and mortar in the easiest manner. Even if you can get a workman, you can't always afford this fee, so the advice is needed.

OBVIOUSLY intended for men — the publisher offers a 48-page household emergency booklet dividend for the homemaker — one new do-it-yourself manual should have as much appeal for women, who might even take on some of the jobs described in the book.

More than 2,000 color and black and white photographs and sketches, schematic charts and graphs make it easy to follow the most involved task.

The lady of the house may not want to undertake installation of an electric garage door opener or build a new staircase, even with the well-defined plans and illustrations offered in the book.

But chances are she could install her own gutters and downspouts with the simple pictorial directions offered and a good ladder. She might even get around to patching the blacktop driveway.

POWER tools need not be a fearsome mystery. This book shows how to use the various saws, planes, sanders and routers. From this knowledge a woman might consider building a wall-to-wall closet as outlined in the book. Women, who are so successful with sewing patterns, often resist big home jobs that involve cutting wood because of the figuring involved.

In the book, building projects include lists of parts with dimensions and suggestions for materials in step-by-step illustrations.

SUCH projects as the casting and laying of concrete slabs outdoors, repairing a chimney or building a brick barbecue unit, outdoor furniture or a tree house might be left to the man of the house. Ditto the building of new kitchen cabinets and maybe a dropleaf table with laminated top.

But what is to prevent an energetic woman from laying a ceramic tile floor after she reads the directions? Nothing, maybe, but time and materials.

If it is a house addition the family needs, she might be the one to wade through advice given on whether the man wants to be his own contractor, when to call the architect and how to finance the whole thing. It's all included in this complete Do-It-Yourself Manual (Reader's Digest.)

AN INSTRUCTIVE chapter on joints, which includes mortise and tenon, and four ways to miter, should intrigue any woman, even if she uses the knowledge only to contrive picture frames. She can also learn how to upholster furniture or repair and care for fabric. There are directions for covering walls with paper or other materials. Refinishing furniture also is explained.

Learning about heating systems and their maintenance may be valuable information. And there is a good deal about wiring codes, safer electric service and an electric repair guide with illustrations of switches, outlets and fixtures.

Wattage readings on various appliances are given. And one can learn, too, how door chimes work.

The man of the house can bone up on waterproofing the basement walls, installing plumbing pipes and repairing everything from damaged shingles and storm doors to shower doors and rotted window sills. Knowing how to install one's own door lock should save money too.

Paneling Made Easy

ONCE UPON A time, many home improvement jobs required real carpentry skill and specialized experience. When manufacturers of hardboard and plywood and publishers of directional material joined forces, simplified directions were produced that took all the fear, mystery and up to two thirds the cost out of modernizing a room with paneling. If you have long admired wood paneled walls, and hoped one day to be able to afford same, your day has arrived. By following the step-by-step directions outlined in the book offered below, you'll be able to panel walls like magic. Factory prefinished plywood panels can be applied over cracked plaster, plasterboard, paint, wallpaper, concrete blocks or to studs in new construction. They can be fastened in place with panel adhesive, nailed, or installed with matching metal moldings surfaced with wood veneer. Realizing few people know how to apply [illegible] all the information needed to cover every type of [illegible] basement or attic, hall, living or bedroom. To obtain the booklet send $1.50 in check or money order for oak Number 605 How To Apply Paneling to Independent-Journal, P.O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, New York 10510.

HERE'S YOUR ANSWER

By ANDY LANG

Q. — Part of our bathroom wall has ceramic tiles on it. A few of them have become loose. Is there any special cement needed to retighten them or any special technique required?

A. — Remove each loose tile carefully so that it doesn't fall to the floor and split. Scrape all old cement from the wall and the back of the tile. Resecure the tile with an adhesive made especially for ceramic tiles. It can be obtained at almost any hardware store, lumber yard or building supply dealer. In applying the adhesive, do so only on the back of the tile and not too close to the edges. Press the tile into place carefully. You may have to buy some grout to fill in the spaces between tiles. You can buy it where you get the adhesive.

Q. — Please settle an argument. The pilot light on our gas-fired burner went out recently for some reason. I relit it, using a piece of paper tied to a long metal rod so that I could reach inside the burner. It went on quickly and we have had no trouble since. A neighbor says that this is very dangerous to do and that it probably is against the law. Who is right?

A. — Your neighbor is correct in saying that there is a certain element of danger connected to the operation, but only if you do not know exactly how to relight the pilot. It is unlikely that it is against the law in your community. The wisest procedure is to have your local utility company send a man to show you the way in which the pilot light should be relighted so there is no danger. If his method agrees with yours, fine. If it doesn't then do it his way.

There is another aspect of this situation. The pilot light goes out for some reason. If after it goes out, it is relit and goes out again, either immediately or within a few days, the burner must be rechecked.

Q. — I took all the old finish off a dining room table with the idea of refinishing it. When I got through, there were still some light brown stains in the wood. Following a friend's recommendation, I bleached the wood. The stains got lighter, but are still there. What can I do now?

A. — Nothing. If a commercial bleach doesn't work, nothing will, because it means that you are trying to get out an oil stain that has penetrated deeply into the wood. But all is not lost. Apply a sealer, then restain the wood before refinishing, using a stain a little darker than the color of the residue of the old one. Seal in the new stain, then finish with varnish, lacquer or whatever you had in mind.

WHAT'S NEW

By ANDY LANG

What's new on the market?

THE PRODUCT — A jet "gun" for removing stoppages in toilet bowls, floor drains, wash basins and other piping complexes.

Manufacturer's claim — That gas pressure is released from an aerosol-type cartridge when the tool is fired . . . that the pressure strikes a single hammer-like blow to water in pipe or drain. . . that this pressure is transmitted 250 feet down the line, dislodging the obstruction . . . that the action of the tool will not damage piping. . . and that, since the gun is fired in water, there is no loud noise.

THE PRODUCT — Plastic housing that makes an electric drill shockproof as well as unusually light in weight.

Manufacturer's claim — That the housing is made of polycaronate and guaranteed for life against breakage. . . that it will not crack from low temperatures nor warp from extreme heat. . . that it is nonconductive and that the drills using it carry UL labels. . . that the housing won't rust, dent, peel or corrode.

Pianist Peter Nero Serene After Hit Brings Money

By MARY CAMPBELL

Pianist Peter Nero, urged toward jazz and pop playing by a classical pianist and composer because he could improvise, paid long dues, had a big record hit and now is at a higher plateau, sounding rather serene about his past, present and future.

The hit was the LP, "Summer of '42," one of Nero's, some 30 LPs. "It's my biggy. Things taper off, after a hit, but it doesn't take you back to where you were before. You're at a new plateau. Musically you're doing the same thing but suddenly you get people coming to see you who didn't come before. I play bigger halls. The amount of money goes up — that's based strictly on the number of people that will attend.

"THE COUNTRY is hit crazy. I'd like to be able to communicate with as many people as possible, so if it takes a hit for it, I'll try to get a hit. I'll lie down in front of a truck to get a hit.

"Clive Davis of Columbia Records had the idea for 'Summer of '42.' He said he thought there was a definite need for an album of romantic music. I'd never made an album like that before. My albums before had been bristling with ideas. In that one, I tried to get a sexy feeling across.

" 'The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face,' my next album on Columbia, was done on the same concept and so was the latest, 'The World of Peter Nero.' I think now it's time to go on to other things."

WE RECENTLY heard Nero play at a nightclub, where he was heckled by a drunk. He ignored the man but didn't play an encore.

"I could play in the middle of a bomb explosion," Nero says. "It's my classical training. The first thing you learn is concentration.

There are perils to playing in close proximity to people when they have had a few. In an auditorium, they'll yell a few things out, but that's all. I only play about four weeks a year in clubs now. The rest are concerts."

AS A teen-ager, Nero won a contest at Radio Station WQXR in New York, which specializes in classicial music, and Abram Chasins, composer and pianist, who was then director of the station, became his friend. Mrs. Chasins became his teacher. Chasins was the first to encourage him toward jazz and pop playing. "He felt if you had the ability to be creative, instead of recreative as you need to be in classical playing, you should develop it."

But one doesn't become a famous jazz pianist immediately. "My first job was at the Hickory House in New York, intermission piano. People were eating and drinking. I was playing my heart out.

"Then I spent two years in a lounge in Las Vegas. People were either gambling or watching the gambling. It began to dawn on the drummer and bassist and me that nobody was listening to us. We'd make mistakes on a ballad; hit wrong notes. Nobody flinched. We started playing crazy music. I was trying new tunes and styles. The bass player took a solo and put his nose on the strings.

"I WENT back to New York — the Village Vanguard, Blue Angel and Hickory House again. I was doing my Tatum imitation at that time. He did influence me the most. The owner didn't want anybody to listen. Anything I did that would get attention, he'd kill me. Friday nights they had fights on TV, I'd really have to play quiet then.

"The first time I stayed at the Hickory House three months; I quit the day before I got married. This time, in 1959, I stayed nine months. I had a child this time.

"I filled in for a friend of mine at Jilly's one night and Jilly offered me a job, and said I could have a bass player, which I wanted. I was at the bottom of the rung then.

"JILLY'S saved my life; it was a hip place at the time. I was there a year and a half. Sinatra came in twice during that time.

"I had taken on 12 pupils to supplement my income. There are 30,000 musicians in New York and 3,00 make a living playing music alone. I'd spent 15 years studying piano, gone to the High School of Music and Art and Juilliard on Saturdays on a scholarship in its preparatory division. I went 31 stops on the subway, studying 7 to 5, did two hours homework and three hours practicing."

But in 1960, Nero was signed by RCA, for whom he made 23 albums in eight years. "With my first album, I started to play clubs —and not as intermission pianist. It was part of going up the ladder. Eight months after that I got my first concert."

Now, Nero has made an arrangement of Gershwin works for symphony orchestra and trio, in which he performs and conducts. "I did the 'Rhapsody in Blue" at the University of Michigan with the Symphony Band. I became drunk with power. The 'Rhapsody' came out the way I wanted to hear it."

HOWEVER, Nero has no plans to play classical music as George Shearing sometimes plays Mozart or to become a symphony conductor, as Andre Previn has. He has arranged "Jesus Christ Superstar" tunes for trio and orchestra and intends not to branch out from that pop vein. "I think composers writing for other composers is what emptied out concert halls. I think the public is looking for another 'Rhapsody in Blue.'

"You cannot believe the effect that has on people. It's fragmentary musically. But it has an ability to communicate with an audience and it's stood the test of time. It would be wonderful to find something of the kind, of this time, with folk, rock and jazz elements."

Nero will perform in Australia in September. "I was there two years ago and tore it up. I took my wife and daughter, 15, and son, 12, then but this time it's the beginning of school."

There's a good deal of gray in the hair of Nero at 39, but he says it's been like that since he was 28. "I guess the road takes its toll."

ONCE MORE WITH FEELING — The Jazz Violin of Joe Venuti — Ovation/Ampex M 5198: A short little non-Dolby tape that is more pop than jazz, but a must for all fans of swinging violin work. The old master takes his turn at both recent hits like "Windmills of Your Mind" as well as originals like "Four Finger Joe." An A/B comparison of this tape with the Garner cassette illustrates that the Dolby processing has moved the cassette medium into true high fidelity. There has also been a change, (but not,, alas, an improvement) in the packaging of the actual cassettes. The older cassettes like this one have a one-piece paper half-glued to the plastic box which immediately lifts up at one or more of the three surfaces it covers. The new cassettes, however, boast a paper which stays glued on and has a bit more space for details, but the cassettes tend to fall out of the open side of the box.

I WANT YOU — CARMEN McRAE — Mainstream/Ampex M5387: One of our sublime jazz vocalist's latest, this cassette shows the unique and personal treatment McRae invests songs like "Sweet Georgia Brown" with, making one forget any thoughts of "Oh, not that old chestnut again," Ten very short tracks, but every one a Georgia Peach.

POET'S CORNER

SUMMER RETROSPECT

Shades of good times
Fill my mind—
Making memories glow
As did the sun
On that August day.
With willows weeping,
And strong scents of eucalyptus
Penetrating the warm afternoon;
I see, smell and learn,
The rocks are history,
The sun has seen all—
Like an immortal eye
Viewing life through the ages,
I drink of the land, in memory
And return to that pre-autumn day.

NOVATO — JOHN W. GATES

THE DOCTOR

Deep in the shadow of the night
When administering to the sick is done,
A doctor's coat is startling white
As he sits in gentle repose alone.

One arm resting across his chair,
One calming hand cupped to his face,
Lines of compassion by his mouth—
His mind wanders to another place.

A tired sign escapes his chest,
Lowering eyelids give up their fight,
One leg quietly crossed—
A humble figure melts into the night.

VOYAGE

Moving on to new waters
Farther down the muddy bank,
Looking for my age-old fathers
Blown on away to a dusty road.

Looking for the last moment,
Finding wood, and wanting gold;
Ah, at last, the one torment
Of seeing oneself, unique, alone.

Was moving on to new waters
Infinitely down the muddy bank
Useless search for my age-old fathers —
They had been there, never gone.

Picking A Man To Run A Network

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If I were running a television network, I would want my top programming executive to be:

— A man who automatically rejects new series ideas that are put forth primarily because they bear the name of a famous movie.

— A man who has little or no interest in signing up stars except for musical or variety shows.

— A man who has only two real targets in the new series he helps develop: A strong concept and excellent scripts. They are everything.

IT IS true that CBS-TV's "MASH" is an example of a weekly show that is drawn from a movie and is a success. But the reason it is a success and an enjoyable diversion is the strength of its video concept, its characters and stories — not its title, which has just an initial come-on.

There are new television series such as "Shaft," "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" and "Adam's Rib" that are also trying to cash in on the well-known movies they were named after.

But the fact is that the famous title come-on will only be effective for an episode or two. After that, the series will stand or fall on their own — in short, on their video concepts and their stories.

"MASH" was possible to translate to television with its tone farily well intact, though not as earthy as the movie. But I personally feel it would have been wiser to bring "Shaft," "Bob & Carol & Ted & Alice" and "Adam's Rib" to the home screen in a more indirect style — with essentially the same ideas as the movies, but with different titles. Why? Because by inviting comparison with the films they are named after, they are bound to disappoint the video audience.

"Adam's Rib," for instance, is pleasant enough, but it is constantly being promoted as the television version of the Spencer Tracy-Katharine Hepburn hit. And though Ken Howard and Blythe Danner and quite good on their own terms in the video adaptation, they are still not a fair parallel to Tracy and Hepburn.

Instead of burdening the young stars, and psyching the audience with memories, why not simply have pushed the series on its own terms — as a lively contemporary comedy about a married couple who are both lawyers, with the wife distinctly leaning towards women's lib.

A PREVIOUS title of this ABC-TV series was "Mr. and Ms.," and it would have done away with a lot of burdens and false hopes if the network had stuck with it instead of falling back on the movie title. Video's greatest series hits invariably are home screen oriented.

"If "Adam's Rib" cannot deliver what Tracy and Hepburn did, then "Shaft" cannot deliver on television what it did in the movies — the ultraflamboyance and frankness associated with the private eye who had the title role — and the video premiere was sad proof of this.

Why not simply take the premise of "Shaft" — a flamboyant black private eye — and sell it as a television series without the come-on approach that seems to promise what the movies had.

Work hard at the concept, and the stories, and the title needn't mean anything. Video audiences are traditionally different from movie audiences, and respond to their own separate impulses.

STARS from other fields mean little or nothing in most cases except music and variety shows. Television builds its own stars because it has an incomparable weekly showcase that no other medium ever had.

Consider some of the stars video has made: Caroll O'Connor in "All in the Family." Redd Foxx in "Sanford and Son." Beatrice Arthur in "Maude." Jim Arness in "Gunsmoke." E. G. Marshall in "The Defenders." Vince Edwards in "Ben Casey." Richard Chamberlain in "Dr. Kildare." Dick Van Dyke. Mary Tyler Moore. Carol Burnett. Television is a medium with very special requirements from stars. And, in the end, the single overriding factor in most weekly dramas and comedies is the strength of the basic concept. That's the message for program executives.

Petula Clark Commutes Continent To Continent

British singing star Petual Clark now makes her home in Cologny, Switzerland — only a three-minute drive from Geneva — but her career has given her an opportunity to travel all over the world.

Recently, she was in Nashville, Tenn., to co-host (with Tennessee Ernie Ford) the musical special, "Timex Presents: Opryland, U.S.A.," to be colorcast on the NBC Television Network Monday Oct. 22 (8-9 p.m. PT). The program was taped at Opryland, U.S.A., one of the world's most unusual amusement centers that is dedicated to the American musical scene. Carol Lawrence, Melba Moore and Wayne Newton will be guest stars.

Upon completion of the special, Petula's itinerary included a recording session in Nashville, a nightclub engagement in Las Vegas, a concert date with Leonard Bernstein in Vienna, Austria, and then on to play the new opera house in Melbourne, Australia. The peripatetic performer also has recorded in Paris, London, New York, Memphis and Miami.

Boone's Beginning

Richard Boone, star of NBC-TV's "Hec Ramsey," was a member of the first class of students to attend the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York City. Boone attended on the GI Bill after World War II.

Perry's Co-Stars

Redd Hires Cronies From 'Lean Days'

"Never forget the people you meet on the way up, because you'll meet those same people on the way down." These are the words and the show business philosophy of Redd Foxx, star of NBC Television Network's "Sanford and Son."

Redd proved to several of the people he met on the way up that he stands by his philosophy during production of the episode, "Fuentes, Fuentes, Sanford and Chico," which will be colorcast Friday, Oct. 26 (8-8:30 p.m. PT).

The script for that episode called for a skid row scene and several men to play bums. Redd suggested to producer Aaron Ruben that the show hire several of his old cronies from his lean days in Los Angeles in the early fifties. Ruben agreed and the men were hired.

They are Hucklebuck (Marlin Jackson), Jonesey (Ocie Jones), Nature Boy (Lee Andrews), Little Caesar (Harry Caesar), Black Dot (Elihu McGee) and Little Beaver (Gayle H. Dooms).

"I MET all those guys about the same time," said Redd. "We used to hang out in front of the Dunbar Hotel in Los Angeles and we were doing about as bad as human beings could. Usually, if we pooled all our money, we couldn't have gotten a dollar together."

At that time, Redd and Slappy White had just broken up their comedy act and Redd was having difficulty getting club gigs. "Around Christmas time," said Redd, "I used to paint greetings on store windows up and down Central Avenue. That was the best work I could get. To remind me of those years, I keep a little gold Xmas tree, which I've had since then, in my living room all year around. Because right now I'm having Christmas every day."

"Some of the guys we hired for the show aren't doing much better now," Redd continued, "but I've kept in touch with them over the years. Sometimes I go back over to the East Side just to talk." One of the men said Redd usually slips them money when they're in a pinch.

THERE are four men in the skid row scene who were not of Redd's lean years and one other who made the lean years bearable. Tony O'Dare is an actor who was on "Sanford and Son" previously and, according to Redd, "was one of the three white men who were added to make the scene realistic." Another white man was Shelly (Sheldon Slusman), who owns Redd's favorite jazz club, The Baked Potatoe! The third was Louis Guss, also an actor, who plays the mission caretaker.

Jose Busby met Redd in later years and was not originally asked to be in the series. However, when he heard the gang was going, he came too. Redd subsequently nicknamed him "Bogart" because he bogarted (slang expression for "forced") his way on the show.

Ray Herndon was the owner of a dry cleaning establishment in the early fifties and used to let Redd and the other guys sleep in the back of the shop, supposedly to act as nightwatchmen. Herndon is now a well-known bail bondsman in Los Angeles.

Of all the original "bums," only one has had previous acting experience: Harry Caesar appears in the feature films, "Emperor of the North" and "Lady Sings the Blues."

Roy Campanella Subject Of Special

"It's Good to Be Alive," a "GE Theater" two-hour special focusing on Roy Campanella, the great Brooklyn Dodgers catcher whose brilliant diamond career was brought to a sudden halt in a tragic auto accident in 1958, and based on his autobiography of the same title, will be presented on the CBS Television Network Feb. 22, 1974 (9:00-11:00 PM, PT).

The film will trace the life of the famed athlete through two of its most significant events. In the words of Campanella himself: "The first was the night of January 28, 1958, the night I became paralyzed; and the second took place one-and-a-half years later on a very special night at the Coliseum in Los Angeles. In the period of time between those two nights, I found out how difficult it is to be a man, but more importantly, I found out just how much 'it's good to be alive!'"

ON THAT fateful winter night in 1958, Campanella was crippled in an automobile accident that ended a career which saw the catcher earn baseball's Most Valuable Award three times, the devoted admiration of thousands of baseball fans and, ultimately, election into baseball's Hall of Fame.

A year-and-a-half later, May 7, 1959 was proclaimed Roy Campanella night at the Los Angeles Coliseum, where the New York Yankees were to meet the Los Angeles Dodgers in an exhibition game. Over 93,000 fans poured out in tribute to Campanella, and in between the fifth and sixth innings of the contest, Dodgers' shortstop Pee Wee Reese pushed Campanella out between second base and the pitcher's mound. The lights in the Coliseum were put out, and the players and fans, in an electrifying sight, lit matches in tribute to Roy Campanella the man.

The opening segment of the "GE Theater" presentation will reveal the fanstastic variety of awards, tophies, photos, placques and mementos that signify the distinguished career of Campanella, a roly-poly catcher, quick as a cat behind the bat, owner of a rifle arm, and a natural leader who survived a startling assortment of injuries to achieve stardom.

ROY CAMPANELLA himself will appear in the broadcast in an introduction to be filmed at his home in White Plains, N.Y.

The cast, to be selected from actors with physical resemblance to the actual persons involved in the story, will also include baseball personalities portraying themselves wherever possible.

Actor-director Michael Landon of the former television series "Bonanza" will direct "It's Good to Be Alive" for Metromedia Productions and for producer Gerald I. Isenberg from a script by Steven Gethers. Filming will begin in late October on locations in New York and Southern California.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dinah Shore's NBC "Dinah's Place" is being beefed up this season by adding such regular guests as Susan Saint James, Karen Valentine, Lyle Waggoner and Bill Toomey, Olympic decathalon champ.

Comedienne Lily Tomlin, who had her first comedy special last season on CBS, will do an encore for the network at 10 p.m., Nov. 2. Richard Pryor, who was on the first one, will repeat.

Stage and screen actress Geraldine Brooks has a regular starring role on NBC's "Faraday and Company," the new every-fourth week series starring Dan Dailey.

Hollywood's annual Oscar Awards will be aired at 10 p.m. next April 2 on NBC from the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center.

Stanley R. Greenberg, veteran television writer, has been signed by ABC to write an original script based on the Cuban missile crisis of 1962. Greenberg wrote last season's excellent "Pueblo," a sort of dramatized documentary of the North Korean seizure of an American Navy ship.

NBC is paying more attention to country music. The network will broadcast two 90-minute specials featuring stars of this part of the music world during the season, the first on Nov. 24 to be hosted by Mac Davis. Johnny Cash will be starred in the second early next year.

Pat O'Brien's First Love Is The Stage

"I was never crazy about making movies," the grandfatherly man with the heavy jowls was saying.

"The theater was and still is my first love. But don't get me wrong; the movies have been good to me. They've made me independent."

The movies may have been good to Pat O'Brien, but he in turn has enriched films with memorable roles as "Knute Rockne," as the priest in "Angels With Dirty Faces" and as a wide assortment of characters in nearly 100 films.

O'Brien is now nearly 74. His hair is white and wispy but his large Irish face lights up when he recalls his early days in Hollywood more than 40 years ago.

"We were all New York stage actors — Tracy, Cagney, Bogart, Ralph Bellamy — when they called us out here to make films," he said.

Telly Savalas Likes Character

How can one be unique in a season full of television detective series? That's the challenge Telly Savalas confidently faces when he makes his television series debut as Lt. Theo Kojak, a New York police detective, on "Kojak" beginning Wednesday, Oct. 24 (10:00-11:00 PM, PT) on the CBS Television Network.

Savalas first wondered, "Does the world need another television cop show?" He thought it didn't — until confronted with the role of Kojak, which e first played on "The Marcus-Nelson Murders" on "The CBS Thursday Night Movies." The role won both Savalas and the movie 1972-73 Emmy nominations.

"There are a lot of reasons why I agreed to recreate the character in a series," Savalas says. "I like the character and I have a great deal of regard for the creative team behind the series.

"KOJAK is a New York cop. He knows the neighborhood. He grew up among the people. He cares about them and sometimes is fooled by them, which makes him a very real person, instead of a white knight.

"This is a cop who can be tough when it's necessary — but he also knows when to look the other way. To him, the neighborhood is like a family. The people know him and trust him.

"Although the series will be based in Hollywood, we will use actual New York City locations as much as possible to provide the realism the series demands.

"I think this series will also show the American public just how tough a job the policemen have in this country. Each and every day, they expose themselves to all kinds of danger, while still being the target of criticism."

ANOTHER big factor in Savalas' decision to do a series was the people behind him in "Kojak":

Academy Award-winner Abby Mann is the executive producer, who won an Emmy for his script of "The Marcus-Nelson Murders," the television movie from which the series character was derived. Matthew Rapf, the supervising producer, has long been associated with top television series. He was producer of "Slattery's People," "Ben Casey" and "Longstreet." James McAdams, the "Kojak" producer, was formerly the producer of "The Virginian," "Road West" and "Ironside."

"That's enough talent to make any actor confident," says Savalas.

J.D. Cannon Has Flinty Personality

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Most actors give the impression of being extroverts, showoffs or compulsive talkers, but not J.D. Cannon, the tough cop in the "McCloud" series who rides herd on Dennis Weaver.

He uses his initials because when he began acting in New York City there was a comedian named Jackie Kannon. Rather than risk his full name, Jack Cannon, the actor decided to go with J.D.

THE CLIPPED sound of the initials suitshis personality. Cannon and his wife, Alice — a playwright — have been married 26 years and are childless. Neither do they have any pets.

They live on a small nine-acre farm in Rosendale, N.Y. It is a two-hour drive from Manhattan between the towns of Kingston and New Paltz. The Cannons call the place a shack. Actually it is an ancient farm house in need of repairs.

It has one bedroom but Cannon plans to add two more in the never-ending building program he has set for himself.

THEY chose the bucolic area because of the beautiful countryside and the isolation from crowds of people. Still, when the Cannons want the distractions of the city they need only drive to their second home in Greenwich Village, which they do once or twice a month.

They keep the modest apartment in the event J.D. is cast in a Braadway play, a dim prospect but one which he holds dear nonetheless.

It is necessary for the Cannons to spend six months a year in Hollywood, which they do grudgingly, for his role in "McCloud." At one time they rented an apartment in Beverly Hills on an annual basis.

Now they just take a hotel-apartment for the time it takes to complete J.D.'s work in the NBC series.

Because he has long days with nothing to do while the show is filming, J.D. took up golf but doesn't enjoy it. He does not read anything but the newspapers and is disinclined to socialize in New York or Hollywood.

When traveling from their home in New York to California the Cannons usually drive their automobile, stopping in St. Louis, Mo., to visit Alice's relatives.

Often J.D. routes their journey through Salmon, Idaho, where he was raised in the mountain country. He would like some day to live in his native state "if rich Californians haven't bought up all the decent land and ruined it."

In Hollywood J.D. sees Dennis Weaver during their working hours but the two are not close friends and rarely get together away from the set at Universal Studios.

Atlanta Award To TV Film

"F. Scott Fitzgerald and 'The Last of the Belles,' " a unique dramatization that combines a fascinating biography with one of Fitzgerald's finest short stories, has received the Atlanta Film Festival's Silver Phoenix Award.

The program was entered in the "Films for Television" classification and was selected "best in its category" at the close of the week-long festival.

"F. Scott Fitzgerald and 'The Last of the Belles'," filmed entirely on location in Savannah, Ga., will appear on the ABC Television Network during the 1973-74 season.

PUBLIC TV'S BIG BREAK:

Watergate Hearings

By ELDON BARRETT

Getting the public financially involved in public broadcasting is no easy chore, but Dr. Richard Meyer has accomplished that feat in Seattle where he became general manager of the city's educational television channel, KCTS, last summer.

Seven months ago he began a fund-raising campaign with a TV pitch that a sales manager for a commercial station could admire. It was quite simple: "If you like what you see, why don't you dig out your checkbook and help pay for it."

At the start what the viewers of Channel 9 were seeing were some pretty programs that probably never would have passed the commercial TV rating test — such things as British Masterpiece Theater and vintage movie classics along with Zoom, Sesame Street, Bill Moyers, William Buckley and other NET standbys.

MEYER suggested to the viewers that $20 was a reasonable price for a "membership" so that these and other programs could be continued or extended.

"We weren't doing too bad," explained Meyer. "But then came the big break-Watergate."

Meyer subscribed to NET's gavel-to-gavel coverage of the Senate Watergate Hearings, dug up some old Army-McCarthy hearing videotapes to run as a preview and increased the tempo of his membership pitch.

BY THE time the Watergate hearings had recessed, KCTS had signed 10,000 "members."

Ironically, the Nixon Administration had vetoed funds which KCTS — and most other PBS stations — needed to stay in business or, at least, keep their heads far enough above water to operate on a part-time basis. Now the administration's troubles were helping public broadcasting to boom.

One contributor explained that he was sending $20 not only because he was grateful for the opportunity to watch Watergate but also in the hope that NET would not discontinue its coverage. Several contributions came from housewives thankful that they could watch their soap operas by day and Watergate by night.

Now Meyer is suggesting viewers "subscribe" to the Ingmar Bergman Film Festival. Recently KCTS obtained a package of the Swedish filmmaker's most famous works and began offering them pending the return of Watergate.

AND WHEN the Seattle CBS affiliate, KIRO-TV, declined to show the controversial play "Sticks and Bones," Meyer asked permission to run the offering on Channel 9. KIRO not only granted permission but also taped the program for KCTS.

Meyer, 40, has been around public television for 17 years, having started in the business when he worked for KZSU, Standord, while earning degrees in history and political science. After a stint at KQED, San Francisco, he moved on to New York where he rose to a vice president's position in WNET-TV. He and New York got along great, he says, but when he was offered the general managership of KCTS he packed up his family and flew West to accept "a challenge that just doesn't come too often."

SINCE then he has brought in Art France from NBC, Chicago, to be director of community involvement; lured Richard Olham from WGBH, Boston, to become chief engineer and persuaded Robert Hagopian, KQED, to sign on as executive producer.

Of course Meyer has rocked some boats, but as Bill Hevly, director of the University of Washington's closed-circuit television department, remarked: "The station's moving; that is why he was brought here."

The chairman of the State Educational Television Commission who also is vice chairman of the Channel 9 Board, Mary Skelton, praises Meyer.

"It's a new day for public television stations which are having to go to the community for support," she said. "Richie has been able to mobilize the community and has been incredibly good for the station."

On the other hand, Jack Daniels, editor of the "Aero Mechanic," a union newspaper, claims Channel 9 and other public broadcasting stations transmit the "elitist philosophy." He asks for "more representation by and for people who work."

But Meyer isn't seeking praise, nor does he worry about his critics. All he asks is that the viewers "keep those $20 checks coming."

TV's Era Of Innocence

The contrasting view of TV in the 1950s and '70s was that in earlier days the show's author enjoyed almost the same fame as the star, while today the viewer is much more aware of an outstanding pro quarterback or Olympic swimmer, a veteran television reviewer believes.

John Crosby, radio-TV critic of the New York Herald Tribune and syndicated columnist, writing in TV Guide magazine, said television in the '50s was "a period of innocence."

"Ours was an age of innocence, and in retrospect some of the great stars - Jimmy Durante making those great exits in pools of light, Fred Astaire with his puckish grin on 'An Evening with . . .' and above all Mary Martin, who was perhaps the greatest TV star of all - seemed bathed in original innocence," Crosby writes.

Pilots Get Their Own TV Show

Most television weather reports try to give viewers a down-to-earth idea of what's blowing in the wind. But one TV report in the East sets its sights far higher. It's aimed at private pilots.

It's called "Aviation Weather" and is broadcast live Thursday and Friday nights, primarily for weekend fliers. Right now it's only seen on about 20 public TV stations in seven East Coast states.

But the Federal Aviation Administration says it wishes the show were nationally broadcast to help reduce weather-related flying accidents. The FAA says such accidents caused approximately one-third of the 600 general aviation fatalities in the U.S. last year.

"Aviation Weather," produced by the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting, is the brainchild of Vic Turner, a 34-year-old private pilot and an engineer at the center, located in Owings Mill, Md.

"It was something pilots have needed for a long time," said Turner, who got the show on the air in June 1972.

Turner said the show doesn't restrict its reports to the Eastern Seaboard. "We give the entire country. We don't hit the West Coast as hard as we should, but it's there. If you're flying there, you'll know what weather you're going into."

'Sesame' And School

Mothers of youngsters in poverty areas have given "Sesame Street" good marks for helping to make their children's entry into the classroom easier.

This was one of the findings in a survey conducted for the Children's Television Workshop, producers of the popular preschool series, by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc. in New York's East Harlem and Beford Stuyvesant communities and in low income communities in Chicago and Washington.

MOTHERS were asked if they felt that viewing of Sesame Street by their children in the four years since the experimental series was launched made any difference to their youngsters now in school. An overwhelming 92 per cent of the mothers in East Harlem and Bedford Stuyvesant said yes. In Chicago the comparable figure was 89 per cent and, in Washington, D.C. 84 per cent.

Typical reasons given by mothers included: "It taught the children how to count," "It helped them learn the alphabet and read" and "It helped to prepare them for school and made it easier." Spanish-speaking mothers reported: "It helped the children to learn English."

Capra Gets Rights

Frank Capra Jr. has acquired movie and television rights to "Movie Horses — Their Training and Treatment."

Reasoner On "Leaks"

Commenting recently on the controversy over news leaks from unidentified sources both in the Watergate affair and the allegations against Vice President Agnew, ABC News correspondent Harry Reasoner said, "I don't think reporters should invent leaks. But I think if they find out important news by leaks they should report it."

The full text of Reasoner's commentary, broadcast of the "ABC Evening News with Howard K. Smith and Harry Reasoner" and on the American Information Radio Newtwork, follows:

"I am as tired as anyone, in or out of the craft of journalism, of stories which begin 'sources said today,' and say things like 'according to aides of the Vice President,' and all of the other circumlocutions which have characterized the stories about the Watergate, White House and, more recently, the Vice President.

"BUT I don't think there is much at the moment that we as profession could or should do about them except to make sure that they meet reasonable tests of accuracy.

"The thing is we have been dealing with an Administration which has several admitted felons to its credit and a half dozen more indicted persons, and which, in the following fuss about the Vice President, has been busy chewing at itself like a trapped animal.

"I don't think reporters should invent leaks. But I think if they find out important news by leaks they should report it. The plugging of leaks among lawyers, for instance, is a matter for the lawyers. Self-censoring is the worst kind of censorship and I think the press should avoid it.

"It is analagous, in a way, to the controversy about election night. When journalism, by careful analysis of early returns, is able to announce how things are going to come out, there is some resentment. But the answer to this is a uniform national election law. It is not for journalism to conceal things it knows.

A REPORTER who comes into print or on the air and says I know something but I won't tell you is not going to be any better liked than the one who says I know something and I'm going to tell you and you may not like it.

"Hearing so much about the tragic national burden of the Watergate case, the tragic personal story of the Agnew investigation — both of these have been very hard on the American polity. The only things worse would have been not hearing about them."

FOR GEORGE PEPPARD, TV's "Banacek"

I hear you're through with women after becoming a two-time loser at marriage. True?—John Welton, St. Louis, Mo.

● No. I pay alimony to two former wives. Being a wife is the only job you can get for five years and then retire at the salary of a federal court justice. Mine is a high-stress business and I've yet to find a woman who doesn't start soaking up some of the tension. I am looking for a woman who is physically attractive, but that doesn't mean beautiful. Someone who likes men, as opposed to needing, wanting, hating, loving them. Not having a constant and warm relationship with a woman is like complaining about the rain. There doesn't seem to be much you can do about it.

FOR HUGHES RUDD, TV newsman

You were quoted as saying that you don't consider Barbara Walters of the "Today" show to be a newswoman. Isn't this just a cheap attempt to boost your new CBS morning show that is bucking "Today"?—D. Reynolds, Atlantic City, N.J.

● What I really said was that I don't look on Barbara as a reporter. I consider her to be a performer and she is very good at that. There is no way I can consider her a reporter when she has no background in that area, as Sally Quinn and I do.

FOR PETULA CLARK

You have sung all over the world, and for a lot of famous people. Who impressed you the most?—Lisa Morgan, Los Angeles, Calif.

● I'm not saying this because I was born in England, but it was the British royal family who impressed me more than any other people I've ever met.

FOR TERRY ANNE MEEUWSEN, 1973 Miss America

Was there any aspect of the Miss America Pageant that you didn't like?—R. Grant, San Antonio, Texas

● Yes there was, and I feel very gratified that this year they accepted my suggestion and left the girls' measurements out of the judges' books. First of all, they never check to see if someone has told the truth or doctored the facts. Secondly, that information isn't necessary.

FOR JOE NAMATH

Why take the chance of being crippled in a game when you could sit back and get money from insurance because of your injury?—Gary Carnary, Chino, Calif.

● There are really three reasons: (1) I enjoy playing football. (2) I don't believe you can live your life around the possibility that something bad might happen. If you did that you'd never leave your house in the morning. And (3) the money I'd receive from my insurance wouldn't leave me enough to buy a ticket to see a Jet game.

FOR LARRY CSONKA, Miami Dolphins star

What are your feelings about Astroturf?— John Brady, Durham, N.C.

● It can finish every player in the league years before his time. Let the engineers play on it. I hear there's a guy off somewhere working on a different weather-resistant surface. It's called grass. God bless him.

FOR LEE TREVINO, pro golfer

Have you found any change in your mental approach to golf since you reached the million-dollar winnings mark last May?—Frank Johnson, Sacramento, Calif.

● Yes. When you reach the first million, something happens. I still love playing the game, but there has been something lacking in the mental approach. That will change in January, I promise.

FOR JULIA CHILD, TV's French Chef

Did being a tall girl ever bother you when you were growing up?—Mrs. I. Walton Bader, Scarsdale, N.Y.

● Yes, when I was about 15 and all the boys seemed two feet shorter than me. Now I find it a great advantage because people in stores and restaurants remember that big tall girl. But clothes are expensive and hard to find!

FOR TAYLOR CALDWELL, author

What is your real first name? By using a masculine first name, are you saying it's easier to be born a man?—B. S., Lancaster, Pa.

● I was christened Janet Taylor Caldwell. When I started writing, I was told that editors would give more attention to a man's work than a woman's. And so I dropped the "Janet." No, I am not saying it's easier to be born a man. No one has it better than the American wife, and that is why so few of them want any part of that inane Women's Lib.

FOR DICK HAYMES

In 1961, after six marriages and a war with the bottle that nearly wrecked you and did ruin your career, you went to Europe. What happened to make you decide to come back to your career and America?—L. F., Watsonville, Calif.

● I never gave up my career . . . I continued to sing in Europe. But I spent most of my time examining what had become of my life. The pressure arising out of knowing what I'd done to myself, to my career and to others was agonizing. So I quit drinking. Completely. And I started planning to come home one day. In 1971, out of the blue, I got a call in Spain asking me to come back to the U.S., to be on a Tennessee Ernie special. I walked back into a top show and have been so busy ever since that I still haven't gone back to collect my stuff in Europe.

Dr. Joyce Brothers Explains How the Spotlight of the Hearings Changes Senators and Witnesses Alike

Wide World

Senator Ervin | Senator Baker | Senator Weicker

"Once the hearings are over, the senators' personalities will be a compromise between the new and the old."

UPI

H. R. Haldeman | John Dean | John Ehrlichman

"Even though the witnesses are in conflict, I think they tend to be believed as long as they are in front of the public."

No issue in years has caused as much all-consuming interest as Watergate. One of the main reasons for this has been the televised Senate committee hearings.

For me as a psychologist, one of the most fascinating aspects of the hearings is the behavior of the individual senators on the committee and how they have changed their images since they've been thrust into the limelight.

The Watergate senators are political and congressional veterans, so serving on committees is hardly a new experience for them. But the Watergate Committee is like no other. There hasn't been a congressional investigation of this magnitude since the McCarthy hearings in the early '50's and, like those hearings, the all-seeing eye of television has placed the senators into a fishbowl type of existence. These seven men have never had their work as closely scrutinized as they have during the Watergate proceedings. Of course, they're quite aware of this, and each member projects—intentionally or not—a particular image to his audience.

It is quite natural for us to behave differently when we know our work is being examined more closely than usual. We try to improve our performance because we are aware of someone figuratively looking over our shoulder.

"Changes in their public personalities don't take place without any awareness on the senators' part. . . . However, the fact that they are aware doesn't mean they have calculatedly adopted these changes or 'Watergate personalities.'. . . I want to emphasize that it isn't a conscious and intentional 'slipping into a role' or 'show biz.' "

By Dr. Joyce Brothers

What actually happens to the individual isn't much different from what happens on the stage. A big audience puts a spotlight on one's behavior. And the very act of observation on the part of so many other people changes our behavior. These changes in their public personalities don't take place without any awareness on the senators' part. At first they probably were not conscious of it, but by now, I am sure they are very conscious of it because these are astute men who read the papers and understand what the papers are saying about them. However, the fact that they are aware doesn't mean they have calculatedly adopted these changes, or "Watergate personalities." It just means they know what's going on, so to speak. But again, I want to emphasize that it isn't a conscious and intentional "slipping into a role" or "show biz." What happens is that there is a continuous feedback. An actor on the stage moves unconsciously in the direction of the audience, as a result of felt waves of approval or disapproval. Very much the same thing happens to public men in a situation like this.

The truth is, it isn't even very likely that the senators will slip back to being their former selves once the Watergate hearings are over. Each man by now has acquired a persona based on the hearings. And he has a vested interest in it. You know, the whole idea of role-playing in psychodrama is to obtain a change in behavior. People do change when they are "playing roles"—whether it's a role like the one of being assigned to find out the truth about Watergate, or a role in a play, or a role that is assigned by a psychotherapist in an attempt to change someone's behavior. What probably will happen to the senators is that, once the hearings are over, their personalities will be a compromise between the new and the old. In other words, they probably will incorporate some of their "Watergate personalities" into their private and public selves.

You'll notice that some of the senators have even gone on television shows—four of them (Sens. Howard Baker, Daniel Inouye, Herman Talmadge and Lowell Weicker) appeared on the "Dick Cavett Show."

In the case of the witnesses, I think there is a tendency to believe each man as he comes out to have his day in the spotlight. Even though the witnesses are in conflict, I think they tend to be believed as long as they are in front of the public. But later on, a Gallup Poll showed not only that the investigating senators all had favorable images (from Senator Inouye's 84 percent approval to 69 percent for Senators Weicker and Gurney), but that the witnesses all had unfavorable images (from 67 percent disapproval for John Mitchell and John Ehrlichman to 62 percent for H. R. Haldeman and 60 percent for John Dean).

We all pay lip service to the idea that everyone is innocent until proved guilty. But we don't really behave that way. When a man is on the witness stand, the very fact that he is being questioned about something that appears shady will color and taint the way we look at him. Only if we are really participating in an important judgment about a person, as when we're members of a jury trying to make an important decision about him, do we try to be fair. At least, that's what studies have indicated. One study showed that a member of a jury will tend to set aside his prejudices during a trial—but he can only set aside the prejudices that he knows about. Other prejudices creep in—the ones he has, but doesn't recognize. Nevertheless, the very fact that the witnesses appear to be "accused men" results in a negative reaction from the public.

Among the witnesses there is some role-playing, too. Once a man begins to act innocent, he begins to feel innocent. So I'm sure every one of those men feels most earnestly that he is completely innocent of any wrongdoing, and probably feels it more strongly after going on the witness stand than he did before. One theory is that if a person assumes the posture of an emotion, he begins to feel that emotion. Thus, if a man assumes the posture of grief, if an actor assumes the posture of grief, he very soon begins to feel that emotion. Right now, every one of the witnesses must feel very unjustly accused. I want to emphasize that this isn't "show business." It isn't a conscious "act." It just comes out, and in a sense it is role-playing. But it isn't something the witness sets out to do, and it isn't something the senators set out to do. They don't plan to slip into roles. It just happens as a logical extension of what they are doing, and the fact that they are doing it in front of so many people. Some people call what happens here "hamming it up." But actually, the meaning of what happens goes deeper than that.

Ironically, President Nixon has undergone changes of a very similar kind. The man who gains the American Presidency not only experiences a new role, but an enormous increase in stress, partly resulting from the immense changeover involved in becoming President. There is an enormous difference between the Nixon who made the "Checkers" speech and the present-day Nixon. One study about how life-changes affect us shows that pressures not only change us, but also they change us physically. Even positive changes have an effect of stress and strain on the body. For example, a man may become less resistant to disease after a great change like the one a President

I gave up smoking and lost 68 pounds.

By Carlene Paulk — as told to Ruth L. McCarthy

The day I took my last puff, it seemed like I blew away my will power. Because once the smoke cleared, that scale began to go up and up until I reached 196 pounds.

At first, you see, I was like everyone else who gives up cigarettes. When I stopped reaching for one, I started eating everything in sight. Why, my mouth was full all of the time.

I'll tell you, my appetite nearly ruined my life. And the whole congregation of King's Baptist Church in Vero Beach, Florida knows it. Why, more than once the pastor prayed with me — not about my fat, but my marriage.

As I gained, Billy (my husband) began calling me "Famous Hips." For good reason, too. I was 56 inches around, so I really earned the nickname. But how it hurt when I heard it. Yet instead of controlling what I ate, I kept loading up with more food and caring less. Even my son was ashamed to have me at school.

Still, I couldn't get hold of myself. I guess it was because I knew my husband was losing interest in me. If an invitation came for us, he'd refuse it, saying that he was getting too old to go out anymore. And imagine, he was only in his thirties!

Finally, we withdrew from one another, until all that was left of our marriage was the love we had for our children.

Understand, though I hated to hear about my problem, deep down it was gnawing at me. That's why I tried so many diets and pills. But they made me nervous, so I gave them up. When I did, my appetite doubled. I sometimes thought about going back to smoking, but I'd promised myself not to, so didn't.

Thank goodness, I'd been reading the stories of people who'd lost weight with the help of the Ayds plan. So I bought some vanilla caramel Ayds® at our local drug store. The label on the box said that Ayds contain vitamins and minerals, but no drugs. And they certainly proved right for me, because I experienced no nervousness, no side effects, no sickness at all on the Ayds plan.

For breakfast, I'd have two Ayds with hot coffee about 20 minutes before a hard boiled egg. At lunch, two more Ayds with black coffee, a salad, lean meat and a vegetable. Then a mid-afternoon snack of Ayds and tea. And at supper, two Ayds and coffee, before baked or broiled meat or fish, a vegetable and a salad. Those Ayds really helped me cut down on food, yet I was completely satisfied.

By the second week, I'd lost three or four pounds on the Ayds plan. Soon, I began to lose more — sometimes five pounds in one week. After that, nothing could get me off the Ayds plan, even when we visited Billy's family in Georgia, where I was surrounded by good cooking. That was about three months after I'd been on the Ayds plan and I was down to 160 pounds. My weight loss made such an impression on my sister-in-law, she bought a box herself. Of course, she only needed to lose about 10 pounds, but the Ayds plan worked just as well for her.

You can see why my husband used to call me "Famous Hips." At 196 pounds, I was as big as our car fender.

Look at the difference in my thighs and knees now. And that's not all being 128 pounds has done for me.

Those Ayds candies were wonderful another way, too. I could carry them around as easy as a pack of cigarettes. And since Ayds contain only 26 calories apiece, I was soon in pretty good shape. Instead of reaching for a cigarette or a fattening sweet, I'd have an Ayds.

Now, thanks to the Ayds plan, I'm down to 128 pounds and compliments are coming my my way. I don't mind saying, the whole church is proud of me. Billy and I are real close again. What's more, my husband's talked so much about my experience, I think the whole South knows of it. If they don't, I guess they will after reading this. So I'd like to add one last thing.

I'm not trying to preach to anyone, or to say the Ayds plan will help everybody in the world with a weight problem. All I know is that the Ayds plan helped me where nothing else did. And I hope and pray that this story will help someone else be as happy as I am now.

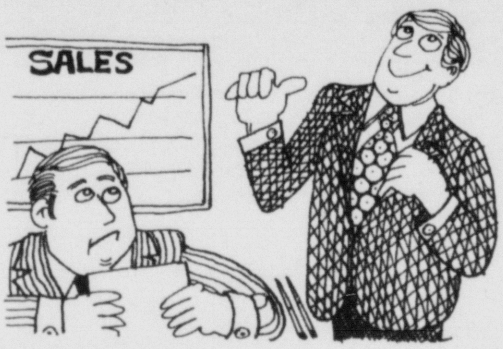
Jobmanship

How to Deal with Phonies and Shirkers



One of the most exasperating co-workers is the person who manages to win credit for work he didn't do. Your natural reaction may be to have it out with him or to march in and set the boss straight. Since neither way is apt to lead to the results you want, you'll have to use subtler methods. Dr. John Butler, a leading industrial psychologist, suggests you and any others involved send the boss a brief note about the job the phony hero has claimed for his own. In the note, just outline the contributions of each member of your work group. Give the simple facts, not accusations. After the note you can have a straightforward discussion with the boss to straighten out the record without tearing down any individuals—including the phony hero. Your conversation is simply to give the credit where it's deserved. If the problem is the reverse, where one member of your work team doesn't carry his load, Dr. Butler says it's often useful to try to understand why your co-worker is failing to do his share. Does he know what is expected of him? Maybe that's the problem. Does he have an assignment he is capable of handling? A well-respected co-worker could discuss the problem with the low-producer and ask him what he feels he can do about carrying his share. Setting up the low-producer with a "buddy" who would work closely with him and teach him how to reach the desired level of production can also be useful.

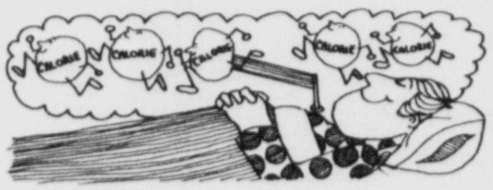
Count Your Calories by What You Do



Do you know how many calories you use up by sleeping? About half a calorie per pound of your body weight each hour. So if you weigh 100 pounds and sleep eight hours you lose 400 calories—or about one chocolate sundae! The U.S. Department of Agriculture breaks down our physical activity into five categories: Sedentary activities (reading, eating, watching TV, playing cards, typing—things that require little arm movement), in which you lose 80 to 100 calories an hour. Light activities (cooking, ironing, walking slowly, miscellaneous office work and activities done while standing), when you lose 110 to 160 calories. Moderate activities (making beds, machine laundering, walking moderately fast—things that require some arm movement while you're standing and vigorous arm movement while you're sitting), that will let you lose 170 to 240 calories. Vigorous activities (changing beds, walking fast, bowling, golfing, gardening), when 250 to 350 calories are lost. Strenuous activities (swimming, dancing, bicycling, playing tennis, skiing), in which 350 and more calories melt away.—By Harriet La Barre

We listen.

And we know that these days there's a lot of concern about a fuel shortage and an energy crisis. About inflation and rising costs.

If you're in the market for a new car, these things might even influence what size car you buy.

But before you make up your mind, you really ought to think about how you're going to use your new car.

For instance, the family of six trying to get by with a small size car may soon find out that a full size or mid-size car isn't an extravagance—it's a necessity. On the other hand, it might be just right for them as a second car or a personal car.

To help you choose the right car for your needs, Ford Motor Company will send you a free book.

It's the 1974 edition of "Car Buying Made Easier." And it tells you the pros and cons for the different size cars.

Part I is about cars in general—types, styles, engines, options, etc.—advantages and disadvantages. This information can help you regardless of which make of car you buy.

Part II covers 1974 Fords, Mercurys and Lincolns—all the models, features, specifications, even prices.

Watergate as Show Business

undergoes when he takes that office, with its constant spotlight and enormous pressures. Another thing that happens under stress is that a man's aging is accelerated. That's one of the things you see in Nixon.

The witnesses have some disadvantages that go beyond the fact that they are obviously sitting "at the wrong table." If I could show you a graph of how tension affects people, you would see that there's a point of tension where you function better than you normally would. The senators, in all likelihood, are on the up-slope of the graph. They are at the point where they function best, spurred on by the tension that exists in the situation. The witnesses, probably, have gone beyond that point, over the peak, and to the downslope of the graph. At a certain degree of tension, our ability to function at our best becomes adversely affected, and the witnesses have gone beyond that point, hence their effectiveness is probably impaired by excessive tension.

The presence of seven men on such a panel has the crucial effect of making judgment much fairer than any one man's judgment could ever be. A ten-year study of judges and jury verdicts found that judges would have come to the same conclusions the juries came to except in 10 to 12 percent of the cases. But in most cases where he differed from the jury, the judge said that the jury came to a fairer decision. The jury was able to take into consideration extenuating circumstances, their own instincts for kindness—or even severity. The judges themselves, however, are not allowed to take any of these things into consideration. A judge must "follow the letter of the law." Thus, it seems to be true that a large number of people sitting in judgment tend to be fairer than a single person.

DAVID BIRNEY:
"America's Live Theater Must Be Saved!"

"America is neglecting one of its vital cultural assets—the theater. Something must be done to support it before the situation gets any worse. Opera and symphonies seem to find support in the larger cities. Why not theater?" David Birney, who began as a stage actor but zoomed to fame on television as costar of the "Bridget Loves Bernie" series, concedes some facts of life: "Obviously TV and movies have done damage in terms of getting audiences for theater, and the audience for quality theater is always a smaller one. But strong and healthy theater is important to the community as a whole, and it is vital toward cultural growth and development to have places where the classics can be done. The public has been discouraged by lots of bad theater, but it responds to exciting theater. There is nothing like live theater. TV and movies, no matter how good, can't replace the live experience. It's the difference between watching a skiing race on TV and being there as the skier comes by. Live theater must be helped to stay alive and flourish. It probably will take some type of government subsidy to accomplish this—it is time!"

Susan Saint James: "I Vote for Life And for Nonviolence"

Pictorial Parade

"My baby's named Sunshine because she looks like it."

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

Last April Susan Saint James was voted most popular TV actress by FAMILY WEEKLY readers. Rock Hudson's husky-voiced leading lady in "McMillan & Wife" is a refreshingly different TV personality. That she's different away from the TV screen as well was evident when I met her for lunch at the Brotherhood of the Source restaurant, run by a "family" who believe in the awakening of spiritual wisdom in the Western world, which includes serving only raw, natural foods. Susan showed up in a long loose blue skirt and pink sweater, canvas shoes, no makeup, a bag slung from one shoulder, and her 11-month-old baby daughter —wearing tiny gold earrings in each pierced ear—riding on one hip.

FAMILY WEEKLY: What is your baby's name?

SUSAN: Sunshine.

FW: Why Sunshine?

SUSAN: Because she looks like it.

SUSAN: No. It's Miller. Actually, it isn't Miller either. It's now Mrs. Tom Lucas. But Susan Miller was my maiden name.

FW: What made you change it ?

SUSAN: It was part of a dream I always had—becoming a glamorous actress. I thought changing one's name was part of the game.

FW: How did your parents feel about it?

SUSAN: I was living in Paris at the time, and they sent me a telegram saying "Saint James sounds great."

FW: Why did you live in Paris?

SUSAN: My father believed that straight white teeth and an ability to speak French were the prerequisites to the success of any young lady. I wore braces for a year and a half, and I was sent to Paris when I was 15, during my last year in high school.

FW: How long did you stay?

SUSAN: A year. I came home when I was 16 and enrolled at the Connecticut College for Women. But I stayed only a few months. I couldn't endure all those females any longer.

FW: Then what?

SUSAN: I went to New York and got a job as a model. But after a year I got bored with New York and went back to Paris to model there. I soon realized modeling could be deadly and that I really wanted to become an actress.

FW: I read somewhere that Charles Aznavour was instrumental in getting you into show business. Is that true?

SUSAN: In a way. I had a crush on him, and I applied for a job as a curtain puller at the Olympia Theatre in Paris while he appeared there. I didn't really work, but they were so sweet. They put a stool in the wings so I could watch from there. He agreed I should become an actress, and when he came on tour to this country, I acted as his interpreter. When the tour hit Hollywood, I decided to stay.

FW: Why did you choose to meet me at this particular restaurant?

SUSAN: It's the closest to my philosophy of life—and it is nutritional. All the food here is raw, except the soup, melted cheese and rice. The family that runs this place doesn't even drink coffee, but I still do because it is so great here.

"There are people who hate, who like war, who think prisons are fine. That if someone commits a crime he should be there. Like if someone kills my daughter, I should be the one to pull the hanging rope. No way!"

FW: When did you get started on this?

SUSAN: About three or four years ago, when I met Tom [her husband, makeup man Tom Lucas] in Albuquerque on location. I was always weight conscious so we fixed salads all the time. We gradually eliminated all meat, then chicken, then fish. I even changed my wardrobe.

FW: In what way?

SUSAN: I used to wear a lot of leather jackets to go with my jeans. I sold all of them. That's the nicest part of the philosophy. Saving animals. Don't kill them to get leather or fur to wear. Or to eat.

FW: Do you believe in a strictly nonviolent way of life in all circumstances?

SUSAN: Absolutely. There are people who hate, who like war, who think that prisons are fine. That if someone commits a crime he should be there. Like if someone kills my daughter, I should be the one to pull the hanging rope. No way! That sort of thing. I vote for life. And for nonviolence. I am not for death.

FW: You said you don't wear anything made out of leather. What about your shoes and your purses on the television series?

SUSAN: I only came to this conclusion just about the time we went on layoff. I will try very hard to carry my philosophy into the series as well. I don't carry purses in the show anyway because they always look empty. As for shoes, women used to wear silk shoes, and they have nice canvas shoes now. My husband used to have beautiful leather boots. Now he's having them made out of canvas. We haven't seen them yet, but I may have some made too.

FW: Is your husband involved in your career?

SUSAN: Very! Tom and I always decide everything we do as a unit.

FW: Where do you live now?

SUSAN: In a house that belongs to a friend. It's a big house and has a separate place with a tiny little room that Tom and I used until we expected Sunshine. Then our friend moved into the little room and we moved into the big house. We painted and wallpapered it .

FW: Do you own the house?

SUSAN: No. I don't believe in owning things. We eliminated that as much as we could. We gave away most of our clothes, and we even gave away our furniture. We have pillows on the floor and a low table so we can sit down with the baby on the same level when we eat, like humans.

FW: Do you sleep on the floor as well?

SUSAN: We sleep in a normal bed, and the baby sleeps with us. It is much easier, because I breast-feed her.

FW: Isn't that a problem when you work all day?

SUSAN: Not at all. I take her to the studio with me.

FW: What do you do when you're on leave from the series?

SUSAN: Go camping, live in tents. The ultimate thing must be back-packing, which is what we intend to do when Sunshine is a little older. Just live off the wilderness.

FW: You gave away most of your possessions, you live simply—what do you do with all the money you make?

SUSAN: I make more money than a lot of other girls, but not that much more because I am under exclusive contract, and I haven't been under contract that long that the money is so extravagant. Someday in the future we'd like to buy a farm in Northern California and build our own place. Develop the land and live off it.

FW: What do you think about the quality of your voice?

SUSAN: I think it is an asset. People notice it. Today I forget about it. But as a kid I was always teased because it was so low. Other kids would say. "What's the matter? Got a cold?" In school plays I always played boys' parts, like the sailors in Gilbert and Sullivan.

FW: Were you spoiled as a child?

SUSAN: Yes, a little bit. I got things I didn't need. Like a car before I was old enough to drive—a '54 MG that I sold to my brother for one dollar.

FW: Because your father was an executive in a toy company, did you have all the toys you wanted?

SUSAN: It was fine for my brothers because he made mostly toys for mature boys. I would have to trade them off for dolls. I always thought I got the short end of the stick.

FW: How did going to a girls' school influence your life?

SUSAN: The boys would say, "She's a great girl, she's been to Catholic school!" They felt because I was so much more protected, I might go overboard the other way. All along I kept searching for answers in school. I wondered why a woman would become a nun instead of getting married and having children, which is natural.

FW: What goals do you have today?

SUSAN: I concentrate on relaxing. Yet I want to be totally involved in some things, not stand by as an observer. If that sounds like a contradiction, I guess it is. I want the good things out of life, the simple things. But my mind is always working, always thinking. I would like my mind to be more peaceful.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

How Much Do You Know About ESP?

True or False: A person's ESP ability is related to his IQ. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Some people can send and receive ESP messages from virtually any place in the world.
2. It's difficult to tell if a person is likely to be good at ESP.
3. Telepathy, intuition, and other products of our sixth sense can be invaluable in everyday life.
4. A person's ESP ability is related to his IQ.
5. It would be wonderful if your ESP faculty was developed to the point where you could sense others' thoughts and "read people like an open book."

ANSWERS

1. True. Results of tests in bridging great distances with ESP have shown that in some instances the ESP scores of subjects "declined significantly as the distances increased." In other cases, however, distance was found to have no effect on ESP. It has been suggested that the mood and personality of the individual may have more effect than the number of oceans and continents the telepathic thought waves must cross. The question has also been raised of "whether ESP goes around the earth or directly through it." There is evidence to indicate that the path of travel is around the earth.

2. False. A team of researchers compared the scores of subjects on ESP tests with the results of a standard personality inventory. Their findings provide a personality profile of the person who may be expected to be good at ESP. "He is warm and sociable rather than aloof and stiff; good-natured and easygoing rather than critical and suspicious. At the same time, he is assertive and self-assured rather than submissive and dependent." He is also described as tough-minded, enthusiastic, talkative, alert, adventurous, impulsive, emotional and carefree.

3. True – but they should be carefully screened and evaluated before we act on them. Studies show that our intuitive promptings can be just as subject to misinterpretation as the conclusions we arrive at through ordinary garden-variety thinking. And nothing is easier for many of us than to let our intuition become confused by wishful thinking.

4. True–according to the findings of studies evaluated by Dr. H. J. Butcher, professor of higher education at the University of Manchester. The findings suggest "that intelligence is relevant–not, as one might suppose, that more effective extrasensory perception is dependent on superior intelligence, but that high intelligence may depend on ESP!"

5. False. It takes little imagination to appreciate what would happen if everyone could read everyone else's thoughts. It's been truly observed that "with total telepathy, life would be chaotic – and every exchange, however fleeting, could well prove fatal." For example, a great many family gatherings would likely end in free-for-alls. And if your boss knew some of the thoughts you'd had about him at times, how long do you think you'd be on the payroll? But since evidence indicates little likelihood of total telepathy occurring, the development of all our abilities–including the faculties of our sixth sense–would seem eminently desirable. ·

A Great Buy for Collectors and Investors!

ONLY $7.95 EACH

Shown 1½ Times Actual Size to clearly show detail.

"AMERICA'S GREATEST EVENTS".

CHOOSE ANY ONE OR ALL FIVE–BUT EDITION IS LIMITED TO ONLY 10,000 IN SILVER–WHEN THESE ARE GONE, THERE'LL BE NO MORE!

Come. Rediscover America with this NEW series "America's Greatest Events." Choose from five fine art ingots minted in 999 Pure Silver. Take: The Signing of The Declaration of Independence; The writing of The Star Spangled Banner; Lincoln's Gettysburg Address; The Linking of the Trans-Continental Railroad or Man's First Step on the Moon.

A TREASURY OF FINE ART

Five flawless, gleaming mirror-like proof finish ingots will be issued, each quarter year, until late 1975 . . . ideal to display individually or as a group during our country's bicentennial celebration in 1976. Future ingots will commemorate the most outstanding discoveries and events in our country's history.

A STRICTLY LIMITED OFFER

The Hamilton Mint, known for its magnificent relief sculpture and craftsmanship will strike this series in an extremely limited edition of 10,000 proof finish sets in Pure Silver. To protect the integrity of this edition, only one complete "proof" set will be minted for each subscriber and the dies will be destroyed after all editions are completed. Proof sets are usually reserved only for masterworks of medallic art.

GUARANTEED PRICE PROTECTION!

If you purchase all five now. The Hamilton Mint will guarantee this remarkably low purchase price for future purchases in this series should you choose to make them. Although the price of silver and gold have almost doubled this past year, The Mint will commit for a sufficient quantity of silver and gold at current market prices to fully cover your future orders. (No matter how high the price of silver and gold may rise while the collection is being minted.)

YOUR PERSONAL SERIAL NUMBER

Your individual proof finish ingots will be minted expressly for you and each ingot will carry your personal matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark and certification of Silver and Gold content. If you purchase all five in this initial group, your same serial number will be reserved for you for all future ingots in this collection.

Each group of five will come smartly packaged in clear lucite display case along with fascinating historical background of each subject commemorated . . . details worth preserving together with your valuable ingot collection.

REMARKABLE INVESTMENT POTENTIAL!

This remarkable opportunity to acquire ingots of artistic and historical significance in Silver and Gold is at a time when leading economists and investment advisors are predicting silver and gold will continue to become even more valuable in the years to come. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. A 1970 Christmas Ingot, for example, was issued for $12.00 and is now being re-sold for $185. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and is now trading at about $62. So please act promptly to share in the excitement of building a magnificent collection in silver and gold at a guaranteed cost. Your order can only be accepted if it is received in time, to be included within the edition limits. Order yours today!

Deluxe Version: 24KT Gold on Pure Silver
The beauty of these silver ingots is made even more exquisite and the ingots made more valuable with gold layered on pure silver. Only 5,000 of each will be minted. Each will also be individually serially numbered and each will cost just $12.50.

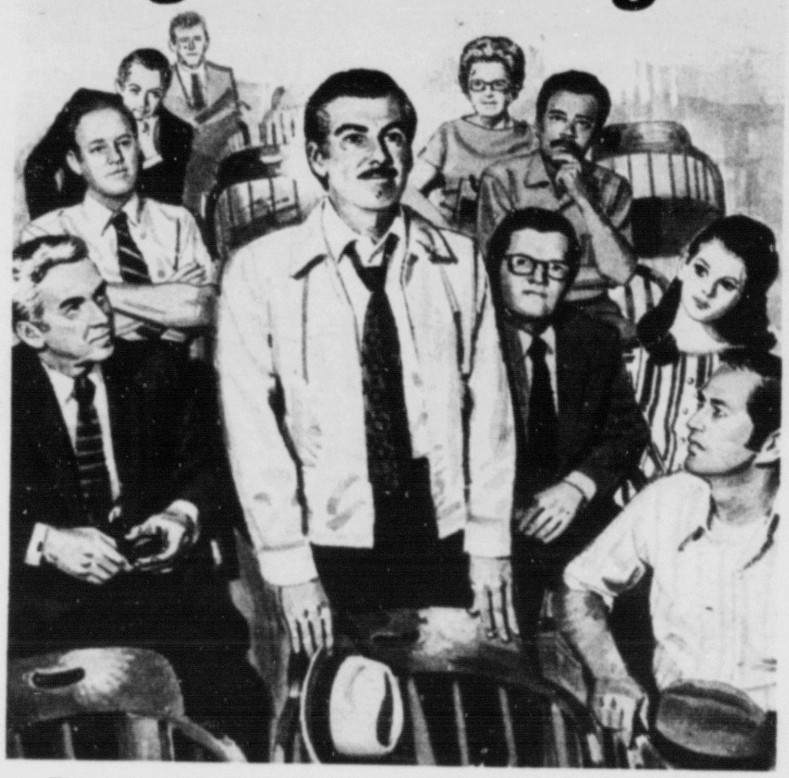
Do you feel the urge to emerge?



There's no denying that the world is a moral mess. Once again, man is finding out that he can't achieve justice and peace unless he works in partnership with God.

This requires first of all belief in God and, indeed, in a God who cares about what happens to man. This kind of belief demands a religious life of worship and service. Man can't work this out for himself. But God is constantly offering His help. Faith and its supporting graces are there for the taking. Yet, from all appearances, the world has few takers.

Where do you fit into this picture? Do you take religion seriously? Do you work at it? Or do you take a "leave it to the clergy" attitude? The time to come out of your shell is now. That urge to emerge and do something to bring men back to God is God's own call to you. "Why are you standing idle? Go into my vineyard." It's not just a message for the clergy but for all.

To help you think about your God-given "urge to emerge," we are offering a free pamphlet, "The Lay Apostolate." Write for a copy today. No one will call.

MARGARET COURT: Tennis Is Second to Danny

The Courts—Barry, Danny and Margaret—play off-court.

Margaret Smith Court is living proof that motherhood is no bar to tennis success. The 30-year-old Australian, who has won the U.S. tennis championship at Forest Hills five times and the Grand Slam of world championships in 1970, retired late in 1971 to have a baby, and said she would not play in tournaments again. But her husband, yachtsman Barry Court, convinced her to make a comeback, and she won the Virginia Slims tournament and the Australian Open, while also taking the lead as this year's No. 1 money-winner in the Grand Prix women's tennis circuit. Margaret has such a powerful service and forehand drive that opponents complain that "she plays like a man." . . . The Courts travel with their infant son, Danny, and Margaret is usually seen with tennis racquets in one hand and a pacifier in the other. Tennis buffs say she has become prettier and slimmer since becoming a mother. . . . The statuesque Australian is a native of New South Wales and grew up in Victoria. She won her first title 13 years ago, then went on to win a series of championship tournaments. In 1966, however, she retired abruptly to run a dress shop in western Australia. After meeting and marrying Barry, she decided to un-retire because he was willing to travel with her. . . . The rise of young female tennis stars like Chris Evert and Evonne Goolagong is a source of joy to Margaret. "I think it's terrific for women's tennis and I hope there'll be more youngsters coming up. They've given our sport a boost," she says. She's not ready to concede any titles to the younger set, however—she expects to remain at or near the top for at least another two years.

Spanking: By Dr. Fitzhugh Dodson

This Doctor Says There Is a Right Way—And a Wrong Way

"Many parents also have the impression that modern psychology teaches that you should not spank children.... However, as a psychologist, I believe it is impossible to raise children effectively—particularly aggressive, forceful boys—without spanking them."

Over the years I have discovered that many parents have major misconceptions about modern psychology.

Modern psychology does not believe it is good for parents to be permissive, if by permissive we mean letting a child do whatever he feels like doing. No sensible psychologist has ever advocated such a strange idea. But incredible as it may seem, I have actually known parents who let their children scribble on the walls of their home with crayons because they thought it would be psychologically harmful to stop them! What is really happening in most of these cases is that the parent is afraid of saying no to the child and tries to use modern psychology as a rationalization.

Many parents also have the impression that modern psychology teaches that you should not spank children. Some psychologists and psychiatrists have actually stated this idea in print. However, as a psychologist, I believe it is impossible to raise children effectively—particularly aggressive, forceful boys—without spanking them. This does not mean that any kind of spanking is all right for a child.

I want to make it clear that there is a "right" kind of spanking and a "wrong" kind. By the wrong kind I mean a cruel and sadistic beating. This fills a child with hatred, and a deep desire for revenge. This is the kind that is administered with a strap or stick or some other type of parental "weapon." Or it could also mean a humiliating slap in the face.

The right kind of spanking needs no special paraphernalia. Just the hand of the parent administered a few times on the kid's bottom. The right kind of spanking is a positive thing. It clears the air, and is vastly preferable to moralistic and guilt-inducing parental lectures.

Some of you may have heard the old saying "Never strike a child in anger." I think that that is psychologically very poor advice, and I suggest the opposite: "Never strike a child except in anger."

A child can understand very well when you strike him in anger. He knows you are mad at him and he understands why. What a child cannot understand is when he disobeys mother at 10 a.m. and she tells him, "All right, young man—your father will deal with you when he gets home!" Then when Dad arrives home he is expected to administer a spanking that will "really teach the boy a lesson." That's the kind of cold-blooded spanking a child cannot understand or forgive.

What I advocate is the "pow-wow" type of spanking: your "pow" followed by his "wow!" Spank your child only when you are furious at him and feel like letting him have it right then. Too many mothers nowadays seem to be afraid to spank their children. They talk and nag a great deal as a substitute; they try to negotiate. This is a huge mistake because it reduces their authority as parents.

What you should do is tell your child once or perhaps twice what you want him to do or to stop doing. Then, if he refuses to obey your reasonable request, and you have become frustrated and angry, let him have it right then and there!

After spanking, sometimes your first immediate reaction may be frustration and guilt. It may bother you that you've blown your cool.

Courage, Mother, all is not lost!

You can always say to your child, in your own way: "Look, Mommy goofed. I lost my temper, and I'm sorry I did." Then you can go on from there. You don't have to be "stuck" with the guilt, the frustration and the unhappy feelings.

Wait until you really feel better about the situation and about your child. It might be five minutes or five hours later. But if you feel you have blown your stack, it's important to admit it to your child. Above all, don't pretend to him that the sole reason you spanked him was for his benefit. That's as phony as a three-dollar bill, and he will know it.

"I advocate 'pow-wow' spanking: your 'pow' followed by his 'wow!' "

If we were 100 percent perfect parents, we would all be so mature we would never need to spank our kids except in unusual or extreme situations (such as when a child runs out into the street). The point is, we are not such 100 percent perfect parents. We are not able to administer discipline calmly and serenely all the time. We get fed up when our kids misbehave and we lose our cool and swat them. But that's nothing to feel guilty about. We feel better and they feel better. The air is cleared.

If you are quite honest with yourself, you will find that there are times when you will lose your temper, fly off the handle at your child, and yell at him or spank him—only to realize afterward that what he did should not have elicited such a violent outburst from you. You were really mad at your husband or your neighbor. Or just cranky for some unknown reason. And you took it out on your child.

What can you do in such a situation? Well, you could pretend you are a holy paragon of virtue and that your child fully deserved the scolding or spanking he got. Or you can have the courage to say something like this to your child: "Danny, Mother got mad at you and scolded you. But I can see now that you didn't do anything that was really that bad. I think I was mad at something else and I was sort of taking it out on you. So I'm sorry."

Your child will feel a wonderful warm feeling toward you for admitting you are human and fallible. This will do wonders for his self-concept —and yours!

I smoke. And I'm not going to apologize for it.

Sure, I've heard it all. I'd light up at a cocktail party. And somebody would remind me of what they've read about smoking in the papers.

Well, I read the papers, too.

I've heard all that stuff they say about high 'tar' and nicotine. And I'd be less than honest if I said it didn't make me concerned.

So I went the whole route. Tried one of those low 'tar' cigarettes, and got as much flavor out of it as a toothpick.

But I kept trying. Guess I enjoyed smoking too much.

That's when I ran across Vantage. And what do you know. It tasted like a cigarette.

Now Vantage wasn't the lowest in 'tar' and nicotine. It didn't claim to be. Just the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette that still gave me the full tobacco taste I'd missed.

Maybe it's the Vantage filter. Frankly I don't know, and I don't care.

I just know I can cut down on 'tar' and nicotine. Without cutting out the flavor.

Now I don't have to make any excuses for smoking. Not since they made Vantage.

Maybe you'll feel the same way.

A Succulent Stew— The African Way!

This week, Food Editor Marilyn Hansen fixes dinner with an African beat. "One of my young friends served in Africa in the Peace Corps. Greatly influenced by native foods there, she has prepared many of them at home. Here are some I enjoyed."

MARILYN'S AFRICAN MENU

Wedges of Hard-Cooked Egg and Avocado
West African Stew* Rice
African Green-Bean Salad*
Crusty Hard Rolls Margarine
Compote of Stewed Peaches and Figs*
Coffee Tea Milk

*Recipe given

WEST AFRICAN STEW

- ¼ cup corn oil
- 1½ lbs. boneless chuck, cut in 1-inch cubes
- 2 cups water
- 1 beef bouillon cube
- ¼ cup creamy or chunk-style peanut butter
- 1 medium onion, sliced
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 1 tablespoon cornstarch
- 2 tablespoons water
- 1 large tomato, sliced
- Cooked enriched rice (½ cup per serving)

1. Heat corn oil in large skillet over medium heat. Add beef cubes. Brown on all sides, turning as needed. Add 1 cup water and bouillon cube.

2. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer covered 45 minutes.

3. Add remaining 1 cup water; gradually stir in peanut butter. Add onion slices, salt and pepper. Bring to boiling. Reduce heat and simmer covered about 45-60 minutes, or until meat is tender. Add water if needed to maintain consistency.

4. Blend cornstarch and 2 tablespoons water together until smooth; gradually stir into stew. Bring to boiling and boil 1 minute, stirring constantly as sauce thickens. Add tomato slices and heat 1 minute, covered, until heated through.

5. Serve over cooked rice.

Makes 5 servings

AFRICAN GREEN-BEAN SALAD

- 1 lb. fresh green beans
- Water
- Salt
- 2 medium onions, thinly sliced lengthwise
- 2 fresh hot chilies, stemmed, seeded and cut into thin strips
- 3 tablespoons vinegar
- 2 tablespoons corn oil
- Dash ground black pepper

1. Remove tips from beans. Cook in small amount of boiling salted water until tender-crisp, about 8 minutes. Drain; cool.

2. In a bowl, mix beans with onions and chilies. Add vinegar, oil, 1 teaspoon salt and pepper. Toss lightly with a fork until evenly coated.

3. Cover and refrigerate. Flavor is best if beans are chilled at least 2 hours.

Makes 4-5 servings

COMPOTE OF STEWED PEACHES AND FIGS

- 2 cans (1 lb.-1 oz. size) peach halves
- 2 cans (1 lb.-1 oz. size) kadota figs
- 2 cinnamon sticks
- ⅛ teaspoon ground cloves

1. Combine all ingredients in a 3-qt. saucepan. Bring to boiling, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes, uncovered.

2. Refrigerate, covered. Serve chilled.

Makes about 2 qts.

This child has a good home, nice clothes, a loving mother- and Pin-Worms!

A tormenting itch in the rectal area, nose-picking and fidgeting are often telltale signs of Pin-Worms. It can happen to anyone in any family—young or old, rich or poor. It's so common, medical authorities say that 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, have Pin-Worms without knowing it. And because Pin-Worms bring on itching and fidgeting, they can distract children and affect their school work!

What's more, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

What can you do about it? Fortunately there is an easy-to-take medication that gets rid of Pin-Worms. It's called Jayne's® P-W® tablets. Ask your pharmacist. He'll tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that gets Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.

Here's real relief from constipation

If you've been taking magnesia, salts, oils or harsh chemical laxatives once a week or more and you're still not satisfied—here's a better way to end constipation worries. Take gentle, effective Serutan. It's different!

Unlike other laxatives that may cause irritation or griping, Serutan, taken daily, forms a soft gel which moistens food wastes and shapes them into a well-formed stool. Serutan produces the proper amount of bulk needed to help bring peristaltic stimulation to your sluggish colon. This is utterly different than forcing your system with harsh chemical laxatives which may dry you out. You can take gentle Serutan every day because it is a pure vegetable hydrogel and contains no harsh roughage, no chemical laxatives. Take Serutan every day to get regular—and keep regular.

Delicious Fruit Flavor

Serutan is available in delicious fruit flavor. Get Serutan fruit flavor or unflavored powder, or toasted granules. When you read Serutan backwards, it spells "natures." And nature's way is best.

What Do Many Doctors Use When They Suffer Pain Of Hemorrhoidal Tissues?

This Exclusive Formula Gives Prompt, Temporary Relief In Many Cases from such Pain. Also Helps Shrink Swelling of Hemorrhoidal Tissues Due to Infection.

News about a most effective medication comes from a recent survey of doctors. Asked what they, themselves, use to relieve such painful symptoms, many of the doctors reporting, named one particular medication they either use themselves or in their office practice.

This medication gives prompt relief for hours in many cases from pain and itching of hemorrhoidal tissues. And it actually helps shrink swelling of such tissues caused by infection. Tests by doctors showed this to be true.

The medication used was Preparation H®—the same exclusive formula you can buy at any drug counter without a prescription. Just see if doctor tested Preparation H doesn't help you. There's no other formula like it. Ointment or suppositories.

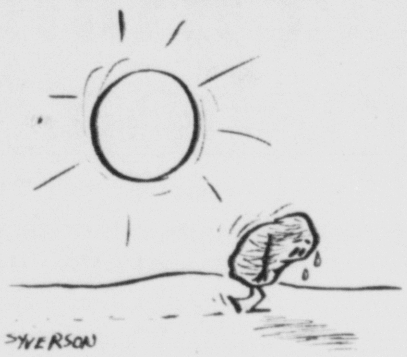
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



CONSIDER THE RAISIN

The raisin, that was once a grape,
Unlined and smooth, with rounded shape,
Is now unlovely, flattened out,
With lines and wrinkles all about.

Of raisins I am fond indeed.
Their food supplies my body's need.
And yet to my close-peering eyes
They look like prunes, of smaller size.

I wonder, could a raisin be,
Though good to taste, so sad to see
Because of envy, forced to pine,
Left out, not winding up as wine?

You know who would have done well with the gas shortage? Columbus. He got 3,000 miles to a galleon.

RAMONA VAN ZIJL
Men fall for her

Ramona van Zijl of Holland became interested in the Japanese art of self-defense, jujitsu (judo), when she was 13. Now 20 years old, she holds the highest honors a woman can receive in that sport: the Black Belt. And she teaches judo at the College of Further Education in Dusseldorf, West Germany. Most of her pupils are men, and they are quite surprised when they see their instructor. It only takes a few minutes, though, for them to realize that 5-6, 108-pound Ramona is well worth her Black Belt honor. In jujitsu, weight and size are not important, for judo is an art of balance, holds and throws. During her years of training, Ramona has broken her own teeth and bones, and has had numerous dislocations, but she says it was all worth it. "The problem," she adds, "is where do I go from here? I have reached the highest honors for women in jujitsu, and as I am only in my 21st year, I have a whole life ahead of me. . . . I suppose that I will try to become upgraded into the male class, but at present, that looks very unlikely."

"Helen Keller delighted in showing off her garden. . . . Miss Keller, relying entirely on her sense of smell, pointed out the . . . flowers. She spoke in a harsh, guttural voice, which, of course, she could not hear. At first, the animal-like sound of it added to the strangeness one felt about Miss Keller, but soon one became accustomed to her way of speaking. When my [wife] Helen got to know her well, she asked whether she felt the loss of sight was worse than the loss of hearing. 'My dear,' Miss Keller said, 'you can touch a rose. You can smell it. You do not have to see or hear it to know it. But not to hear a fellow human being's voice is the greatest of deprivations.'" From "The Autobiography of Dr. Samuel Rosen," by Samuel Rosen (Alfred A. Knopf, $6.95).

Brown Braid Loafer

With shoe prices zooming up, Up, UP – how can anyone afford these new, more interesting, better-made Brogues? In fact, while some men wonder how to get together $25 or $40 for a single pair of brogues, thousands of others are solving all their shoe problems and saving time and money buying direct by mail!

Haband Company of Paterson New Jersey carries a tremendous line of high quality Executive Brogue style New Price Shoes, 2 pair for $17.95. They are all new 100% man-made materials that look and feel like full grain leather, yet perform even better. All have a thick one-piece heel and sole, built-in support shank in the arch, cushion insole, fine laces, bindings, linings and trim. The detailing is remarkable, and the fit and style are Authentic Brogue in every way.

Take a close look at the shoes shown here: 1974's new colors and styles indeed, yet built on the traditional full fitting Executive Brogue Last which you can be sure will feel just as well-made as it looks!

EASY TO SEE! We will be proud to send you any 2 pairs you like, to see and try on in your own home. Just see if your size is shown on the order form and tell us what styles you want. You will be delighted at our excellent high quality and fast reliable service. More important, you will be amazed at the many direct compliments you get for wearing such handsome Executive Brogues. People will notice!
